Hot at Any Hour

After the hottest day of the year to date—a day of 99-degree temperature in which one heat death occurred in the Capital and ten Washingtonians were treated at hospitals for prostration—the Weather Bureau last night promised a definite break for the week-end.

Local showers and thunderstorms will hold the thermometer to 88 today, the forecaster said. And it will be still cooler tonight and tomorrow. Showers are predicted for tomorrow also.

These moderate temperatures, the forecaster believed, will be the beginning of the cool wave that has been moving eastward across the Middle West for the last 48 hours.

The high for yesterday (99) was reached at 3:20 p. m.

The mercury, steadily climbing since the day's low of 76 at 5:30 a. m., brought a halt to activities in the General Accounting Office at 10:30 a. m., when 14 employes were reported to have been overcome in less than an hour.

Other Government establishments, including the Bureau of Standards, Agriculture, Treasury, Commerce, FCC and the District Building, sent home employes who were in nonairconditioned quarters.

Weather Men Give Up

The Weather Bureau, which occupies an old brick building, turned out at 12:30 p. m. all employes whose services were not imperative.

The fatality was Alexander Dodd, 929 Potomac avenue southeast, who collapsed at Eighth and L streets southeast at 1:30 p. m. He was identified at Casualty Hospital. His body was taken to the Morgue.

Hospitals reported cases of prostration as follows: Emergency Hospital, Jane Gilbert, 41, 1301 Massachusetts avenue northwest; Paul Huffman, age and address undetermined; Miriam Henry, 29, 922 Twenty-third street northwest; Thelma Keasley, 20, 311 R street northwest; William Jones, 23, 1321 I street northwest, and Ruth Hill, 22, Bethesda, Md.; Casualty Hospital, Louis E. Weaver, 32, 1616 Lang place northeast.

Jerome Geraci, 50, of 444 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was treated at Freedmen's Hospital after he collapsed at First and O streets northeast; Thomas Todd, 23, of 907 C street northeast, received first aid at Georegtown Hospital and John Wyman, 44, of Bethesda, Md., was revived at Providence Hospital.

Cooler Outside

While the Bureau of Standards let out almost everyone, Dr. S. Ingberg, chief of the fire resistance section, stayed around the high-voltage house, determining the efficiency of fire walls. Outside, the temperature was 99 degrees. Dr. Ingberg worked with a test chamber whose temperature was 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. He said it was all right, there were some windows in the place. He was more interested in the work than the weather, trying to increase the heat to see how much the fire wall could stand.

Government buildings poured hordes into the streets, but farming went on at the Government's research center at Beltsville, Md. "Still working," it was said, after midday.

Old Tom Displays Real Horse Sense

RESCUERS PULL Tom from the East River

By the Associated Press

New York, July 26.—It must have been the heat.

Pat Dundee stood on the dock at the foot of Fulton street and wrung his hands in despair.

There was Tom, his 1,500-pound horse, swimming north with the tide. Behind him was a horseless wagon with 1,000 pounds of fish for delivery at waterfront markets. What to do?

Tom had been munching at a bag of oats hanging from his head with the mercury at 94. Suddenly he bolted, shook off the wagon, and reaching the end of Fulton street, plunged into the cool East River.

Dock workers plunged in after Tom and two of them had to be rescued.

Police and fire rescue squads worked for hours, trying to effect a rescue, reaching a point of near prostration, as Tom swam on.

Finally, Tom hove to, hard by a tugboat.

Capt. William J. Sweeney, master of the vessel and a salt from way back, proved he was just as adept at the tricks of the plains as the tricks of the sea.

He lassoed Tom, held him until assistance arrived and then watched the department of sanitation derrick pull him out of the water.

Dewey Plans To Campaign For Willkie

Republicans Map Aggressive Campaign In Southern States, Talk of Third Party

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, July 26.—Wendell L. Willkie said today that Thomas E. Dewey, one of his opponents for the Republican Presidential nomination, would make "an active campaign" for him.

Seated at a press conference beside J. Russell Sprague, New York Republican committeeman and one of Dewey's preconvention managers, Willkie told reporters that Dewey and all his other opponents for the nomination had been "one hundred per cent" in offering their support.

Word circulated among Willkie's associates today that an effort might be made to form a new party to support him in the Democratic South. Willkie said he would make "an aggressive campaign" for Southern States.

Southern Drive Planned

Authoritative reports said Willkie managers were considering the formation of a third party which would permit Democrats to retain their party registration and, at the same time, vote for the Republican candidate. "Democratic Union Party" and "Democratic Unity Party" were titles mentioned as possibilities.

Willkie's friends said one major question was whether State laws would permit voters in a third party to vote for Republican electors. That problem now is being studied.

Willkie told reporters he had received many letters from the South pledging support.

Sprague told reporters that the primary thing New York Republicans had in mind "is the election of a Republican President."

"The New York State situation looks very, very favorable," he continued. "We will carry the State."

His Own Campaign Only

Asked what position he would take in regard to the New York Senatorial fight, Willkie said:

"I will not take any position regarding any candidate for any other office. It is a matter of selection by the voters. It is not the place of a candidate for President or of a President to select who shall be a candidate."

"In other words," Willkie was asked, "if you are elected you won't conduct a purge campaign?"

Willkie laughed but did not reply.

The Republican nominee released a new list of persons who had promised their support.

Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, former Undersecretary of the Treasury in the New Deal Administration, telegraphed:

"I give you my wholehearted support in your campaign. An end must be made of centralized power, personal rule and uncontrollable spending."

Nobel Prize Winners Join Up

Willkie remarked that President Roosevelt had commended Coolidge and John W. Hanes, another of his supporters, when they left the Administration.

"I am glad," he continued, "that I am in this kind of company rather

Free France Carries On

The Tri-Color Flies Against Nazis on Sea

Many French Sailors Are Aboard As Conquered Nation's Ships Steam Out With British Against German Mosquito Fleet

By the Associated Press

London, July 26.—Britain and the Frenchmen under her flag manned for sea tonight a powerful squadron of French men-of-war to meet the new and spreading menace of flotillas of marauding Nazi torpedo motor boats, attacking in Britain's waters with clouds of German bombers.

The admiralty disclosed "a number of French ships of varying sizes are now being manned and prepared for sea" both by men of the "free French naval forces" and by British seamen. At least one of these, it disclosed, already has been operating "successfully."

This new coup of Winston Churchill's "fight to the end" government was disclosed while the admiralty acknowledged the loss or crippling of half of a 21-ship convoy before combined Nazi air and torpedo boat attack in the English Channel.

Moreover, the German bombers struck for the first time today at a convoy off the coast of loyalist northern Ireland, Britain's vulnerable back door. Shore watchers saw fighting between the ships and the attackers, while British fighters sped to the scene. One German plane appeared to have been shot down.

Intent on sapping the basic strength of the German air force, the Royal Air Force again blanketed Germany's industrial areas with bombs Thursday night. Oil storage dumps in half a dozen cities were reported set afire, 14 airdromes in Germany and Holland were blasted and plane factories, docks, blast furnaces and other military objectives were bombed.

The raids cost the British five planes.

The admiralty said the "free Frenchmen" who are sailing on the French warships are under Vice Admiral Emile Musillier, appointed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, whom Britain recognizes as the leader of Frenchmen "not in bondage."

French ships "which cannot be manned by free French naval forces are being manned chiefly by British crews assisted by a nucleus of French ratings," said the communiqe. The men of war will fly both the tricolor and the white ensign of the British naval forces.

Twenty-eight German raiders were shot down yesterday—but there were hundreds of them. Today, bombs in one southeast town killed one person and wrecked some houses.

U.S. to Double Plane Engine Production

(Knudsen Statement, Page 7.)

Plans for building a new aircraft engine factory capable of doubling present American production capacity, were announced yesterday, as the conscription bill was whipped into final shape for presentation to the Senate next week.

Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones said the RFC had loaned $92,000,000 to the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, to help finance a huge new engine plant in Hamilton County, Ohio, designed to turn out 12,000 motors a year. It was the first big Government loan to industry under the defense program.

Knudsen Reports

Meanwhile, William S. Knudsen, defense commission member in charge of production, made his initial press conference "progress" report on the results of the arms program to date. Declaring that progress toward the group's objective of preparing industry for great arms output has been "substantial," he added:

"We can be confident of a production machine capable of attaining the definite goal specifically stated in the request now before the Congress for funds to equip completely a modern army of 2,000,000 men."

After the Senate committee had put the finishing touches on the conscription measure, including insertion of a section prescribing jail sentences up to five years and a maximum fine of $10,000 for "draft dodgers," Chairman Sheppard said a formal vote on the bill would be delayed until Tuesday.

Sheppard said he knew of no opposition to the bill, which has already been approved section by section, among committeemen. A vigorous fight is expected on the floor of the Senate, though leaders expect passage.

Knudsen painted a rather dark picture of Great Britain's prospects for getting any great increase in plane deliveries in the near future, but declared the arms expansion program to be progressing satisfactorily.

At his first press conference since taking charge of production for the defense commission, the General Motors chief was questioned about the announcement in London of an order to be placed in the United States which would produce 3,000 warplanes a month beginning January 1, 1941.

Knudsen said it will be mid-1942 before American industry is turning out that many planes and later before such a total could be produced and also care for our own needs.

895 for August

He said the total United States production in August is expected to be 895 planes, not counting "cubs" and other small planes. Of this number the Army and Navy will receive 396, Great Britain 236, other foreign countries 84, United States commercial orders 174 and unclassified orders 5. September deliveries will be slightly less than in August, with an increase expected in October, Knudsen said.

Reporting on the progress made on the arms program since the appointment of the defense commission, June 6, Knudsen revealed that it had granted Army and Navy

Yugoslavia Said To Be Incensed By Carol's Proffer Of Help to Italy

By International News Service

Budapest, July 26.—Bucharest advices to Budapest said tonight that Rumania, through Germany, had offered to cede part of Transylvania to Hungary and determine the status of the rest of that province by plebiscite.

Simultaneously, acute tension suddenly arose between Rumania and Yugoslavia by a reported disclosure that Rumania had secretly offered military help to Italy in case of an Italo-Yugoslav war.

The tangled Balkan crisis assumed a grave aspect on the heels of today's Berchtesgaden conference between Chancellor Hitler and Rumanian Premier Ion Gigurtu and Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu.

Visit Duce Saturday

The Rumanian compromise offer to Hungary was embodied in a formal memorandum handed to German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop by Gigurtu at Salzburg this evening shortly before the Rumanian diplomats departed for Rome to meet with Premier Mussolini Saturday.

According to information from Bucharest, the highest political quarters in the Rumanian capital learned that the memorandum expressed willingness to cede to Hungary outright only certain parts of Transylvania, while in the other sections the inhabitants would vote on whether they wished to remain under Rumanian sovereignty or be transferred to Hungarian control.

[The Associated Press, in a Bucharest dispatch, said the Rumanian ministry of marine reported tonight the seizure of three Rumanian ships by the British at Port Said.

[The ministry listed the ships as the Bucegi, a freighter bound for Constanta, Rumania, with a cargo, and two oil tankers.

[Diplomats said this incident was regarded as Britain's answer to confiscation of British oil properties in Rumania.]

Nazis Report Reprisals

[The German radio reported, according to United Press, that the Rumanian government, in an immediate reprisal, had confiscated 18 British craft on the Danube.]

Yugoslavia's position forged swiftly into the hazardous Balkan picture when reports from Belgrade stated the hard-pressed Yugoslav government instructed its minister in Bucharest to protest against the alleged Rumanian offer to Italy.

The purported offer, Belgrade reported, was to the effect that if Italy did not require Rumanian military aid in the event of war with Yugoslavia, the Rumanians would turn over to the Italians certain Yugoslav military secrets.

The Yugoslav-Rumanian tension was aggravated by the fact that Gigurtu and Manoilescu were en

Wallace to Quit Or Take Leave In Campaign

To Drop Cabinet Work in Late August, He Says

By Robert C. Albright

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced last night that he will either resign or take leave without pay from the Cabinet before he opens his Vice Presidential campaign.

He said this will be shortly after his notification ceremonies and acceptance in late August. The ceremonies have been tentatively set for about August 20, probably at Des Moines, Ia.

The Secretary's announcement came after the President at his press conference had indicated Wallace will retire.

Mr. Roosevelt had cited his own resignation as Assistant Secretary of the Navy at Woodrow Wilson's request, prior to his own 1920 campaign for Vice President.

Denies Politics Charge

Wallace previously has intimated he would remain at his post.

He coupled his announcement with a vigorous denial that "the farm programs and those who work in them will be—or can be—used as a sort of a political machine."

Other developments here as campaign machinery ground slowly but finely:

Postmaster General Farley, who will step out as national Democratic chairman on August 17, conferred lengthily with the President following yesterday's Cabinet meeting. Farley said his own resignation from the Cabinet was not discussed, and there was no indication of who will succeed him. As for his own plans, he said: "My position is unchanged. I am the one whose position has not changed."

Norris Favors Local, National D. C. Suffrage

He Warns, However, Congress Must Keep Control in Crises

By James D. Secrest

Warning that the Senate will insist that Congress retain absolute control of the National Capital even though it grants Washingtonians the vote, came yesterday as passage of the Sumners bill (HR 9832) by the House appeared assured by an indorsement by Majority Leader Rayburn.

Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, the ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, said he had no objections to either local or national suffrage providing Congress did not surrender its control of the District.

"I see no reason why the people of Washington should not vote for a mayor or city council or have representation in Congress," he said, "but it is absolutely essential that Congress be in a position to take control of the city in an emergency."

Senator Norris recalled that the populace of Washington was hostile to the Federal Government during the Civil War and that it was the intention of the founders of the District that it provide protection for the national legislators from local pressure or influence.

A demand that Congress enact local suffrage legislation at once, along with the Sumners resolution which proposes a constitutional amendment to give the District national representation, meanwhile, came from Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland.

9 Men, 11 Women Plead Not Guilty To Vice Charges

Nine men and 11 women, who were seized with 142 others in four vice raids Thursday night, pleaded not guilty yesterday when they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

All of the defendants were charged with conspiracy to operate a disorderly house in warrants served on them by Detective Roy Blick and his 27-man raiding squad. Commissioner Turnage ordered all of the suspects to post $1,000 bail each and continued the cases for one week.

Blick said yesterday the raids culminated an investigation of nearly two months, during which time two "rookie" policemen lived in the four establishments—three restaurants and a downtown hotel. The others taken into custody were released after being questioned.

Havana Sees Compromise On Mandates

Plan Would Allow Argentina to Avoid Antagonizing Reich

By the Associated Press

Havana, July 26.—A compromise which would maintain continental solidarity on the controversial question of European possessions in the Western Hemisphere appeared nearer tonight after a meeting of the peace committee of the conference of 21 American foreign ministers.

A subcommittee of the peace committee, headed by United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull, will meet tomorrow with Leopold Melo, head of the Argentine delegation and the chief objector to the proposals for a joint mandate for threatened European possessions in the Americas.

A meeting of the full peace committee tonight was brief. That indicated to some observers that the Argentine delegation might be waiting to hear further from its government on how far it might go in joining the other American republics in measures to keep European colonies in the New World out of unfriendly hands.

Hull Is Hopeful

On leaving the session, Secretary Hull would say only that he was hopeful. One Argentine said he thought progress was being made.

Earlier today a three-point compromise solution of the problem posed by Argentine's lone opposition to the United States proposals for an American trusteeship over the European colonies in the Western Hemisphere was indicated when members of the peace subcommittee agreed on recommendations.

Delegates disagreed on whether final compromise drafts could be phrased to everybody's satisfaction before tomorrow, but reliable circles said the conference was pointing to

Willkie Leads by Slight Margin In Pennsylvania's First Returns

By Dr. George Gallup,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., July 26.—Further evidence of an upswing in Republican Party strength since the nomination of Wendell Willkie is revealed today in a Statewide survey of Pennsylvania voters just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

DR. GALLUP

Returns for Pennsylvania show Mr. Willkie leading President Roosevelt by the narrow margin of 52 to 48 whereas the Democrats led in the State six weeks ago, the survey shows.

Whether or not the upswing indicated for the G.O.P. in Pennsylvania is matched in other States will become clear in a short time, as the Institute completes its post-nomination studies in the remaining States. A complete report on the 48 States will be published Sunday, August 4 in The Washington Post.

The fact remains, however, that whereas only 45 per cent of Pennsylvania voters said they would favor a Republican candidate for the Presidency in the Institute's pre-convention survey reported June 16, 52 per cent now say they would vote for Willkie—a Republican gain of 7 percentage points in the State.

Pennsylvania voters were asked: "If the Presidential election were held today, would you vote for the Republican candidate, Willkie, or

Under Swedish Flag

Nazi Raider With Disappearing Guns Terrorizing West Indies

By the Associated Press

New York, July 26.—Rescuers of the crew of one of two British ships sunk by a German vessel in West Indies waters said today that the raider striking at British lifelines was a new and fast 10,000-ton vessel disguised as a harmless Swedish freighter.

Capt. Holm Brynilsen of the Norwegian freighter Leif quoted crew members of the British freighter Davisian, 6,433 tons, as saying the raider came alongside unsuspecting freighters with the help of the Swedish flag and then blasted them with disappearing 6-inch guns.

The Leif picked up 25 crewmen from the Davisian July 20 after they had sailed, drifted and rowed 640 miles in a week in a leaky lifeboat.

They said the raider had the name "Narvik" painted on her prow when they met her July 10, some 240 miles northeast of the Virgin Islands in the vicinity of the neutrality zone drawn up by the 21 American nations.

When the "Narvik" approached, they said, a swastika painted on canvas went over the raider's side and her guns blasted the gun crew of the Davisian, wounding five men and causing the ship to surrender.

The Germans took the crew aboard, sank the British ship and three days later sighted the 5,223-ton King John, which had 21 crew members from the torpedoed Panamanian ship Santa Margarita on board.

The King John surrendered after shells wrecked her lifeboats. Later 66 British seamen were set adrift with hard tack and water.

Forty-one men in two lifeboats reached St. Barthelmy Island, but the 25 from the Davisian drifted on and on. They were only a mile from Samana, Dominican Republic, when the Leif sighted them. They were "more dead than alive," Brynilsen said.

Show Place

Barometer of Washington's attraction to tourists is the Smithsonian, for more visitors go there than to any other place in the Capital. But the Smithsonian Institution is more than the ugly, red building on the Mall. It includes 9 divisions: National Museum, National Gallery of Art, Freer Art Gallery, National Collection of Fine Arts, Bureau of American Ethnology, the Zoo, Astro-physical Observatory, Division of Radiation and Organisms, International Exchanges.

"Our Town in Pictures" in this Sunday's Post gives you the complete picture story. Stuffing a bluejay and assembling a dinosaur. World famous scientists. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis." First interior pictures ever published of the new National Gallery. Meteorites. World's finest Whistler collection. Measuring the effect of light on plants. House Committee Backs Refugee Bill

Hennings Measure Wins Unanimous Support of Group

A bill amending the Neutrality Act to permit American ships to take refugee children from the war zones under guarantee of safe conduct was unanimously recommended to the House yesterday by the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt declared at his press conference that the crux of the matter was the safety of the children, and that it would be a pretty big responsibility to transport the youngsters to America without reasonable assurances that the ships would not be torpedoed.

The bill, introduced by Representative Hennings (Democrat), of Missouri, would not permit American ships to carry the children unless a guarantee of safe passage was granted by all belligerent nations. The ships would also have to have American flags and other identification prominently painted on the sides.

British Attitude a Question

The attitude of the British government, the very deep desire of Americans to do what they can and the safety of the children themselves are the three sides to the question, the President said.

Pointing out that a list of 10,000 children for transfer to America is being built up. The President said he supposed the next step would be to find out the British attitude and to learn how many ships they are able to supply.

If American ships are eventually used, he said, it would be most important that there be reasonable certainty that they could embark the children and get out of port without being torpedoed or bombed.

Risk Still Possible

Asked what he considered reasonable assurance, the President replied that that was an unanswered question. He cited the fate of the French liner Meknes, which was torpedoed and sunk while transporting French repatriates from England to France.

The British said they had been given a guarantee of safe passage, but the Germans denied that, President Roosevelt observed. Even supposing the United States should get assurances, he commented, there might still be quite a risk.

When a reporter asked if the United States was trying to obtain such assurances, the President responded that that point had not yet been reached.

Ships Must Be Unarmed

Under the Hennings bill, the evacuees must be under 16, "fleeing from war zones," and may be accompanied by such adult personnel as may be approved by the Secretary of State. The ships must be in ballast, unarmed and not under convoy.

When Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, one of the arch-isolationists of the Senate, was told about the House action, he commented: "Sure—go get the British; let the Americans starve to death. These people are thinking of Europe all the time, and only of Europe."

A plan of expediting consideration of cases of political and intellectual refugees was agreed on at the State Department yesterday. The President's Advisory Committee on Refugees, headed by James G. McDonald, will canalize the appeals for help and transmit them to the State Department. The plan was reached after conference between Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, McDonald, and other officials.

Welles said the Department desired to do everything within the law to relieve the condition of these refugees, who are located principally in Spain, Portugal and unoccupied France.

leader in the unsuccessful fight for local governmental reform.

Kennedy said that he thought the time was ripe for Congress to extend the right of complete self-government to the 660,000 residents of Washington while awaiting State action on the constitutional amendment.

He pointed out that Chairman Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee had expressed the opinion that Congress now has the authority to delegate the power of self-government to the District.

"Now's the time to strike," he said.

Kennedy said he interpreted the District plank in the Democratic platform to mean an indorsement of local suffrage as well as national representation.

Earlier Majority Leader Rayburn's promise to support the Sumners resolution, if brought to the House floor, practically assured its passage by the House this session.

Rayburn's indorsement came on the heels of a pledge of Republican support by Minority Leader Martin, who suggested that the minority members might have to put over the legislation.

A majority of the Judiciary Committee has indicated that the resolution will be reported favorably on Tuesday.

President Roosevelt declined to comment on the new suffrage move or the plank in his party's platform at a press conference yesterday.

In answer to a question, he said District suffrage was still in "a study stage" and explained that he had not had time to consider the matter because of the pressure of national and international affairs.

Meanwhile, proponents of suffrage on Capitol Hill expressed fear that a conflict might develop between advocates of local suffrage and national representation that would induce Congress to drop the entire matter until next year.

Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, has taken the position that no action should be taken by his committee on local suffrage until after the House Judiciary Committee acts on the Sumners resolution.

contracts totaling $1,728,195,829, an average of nearly a quarter billion dollars a week.

While optimistic as to the progress of the defense program, the Danish-born General Motors president urged patience and cautioned against expecting too quick results in the application of industry to defense production.

To Reopen Shipyards

He also announced plans for reopening and expanding five "dormant" shipyards on the Pacific and Gulf coasts, to help build a "two-ocean" Navy for the United States. There is every indication, Knudsen stated, that the goal of 25,000 Army and Navy planes will be reached by July 1, 1942.

To carry out the British proposal to build 3,000 planes a year for her air force, the construction of 38 new factories would be necessary, he said, and added that it takes 6 to 11 months to construct aircraft factories.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, announced his first trip to inspect the expanding defense establishment. He will leave tonight on the yacht Potomac for Norfolk, where he will inspect the defenses of that area. Navy Secretary Knox and Chairmen Walsh and Vinson, of the Senate and House naval committees, will accompany him.

The President also said he had no further defense recommendations to make to Congress at the present time. Pending are the $4,800,000,000 Army-Navy appropriation bill, legislation authorizing mobilization of the National Guard and the draft measure.

Mayor LaGuardia of New York City and Owen D. Young, industrialist, indorsed the conscription proposal before the House Military Affairs Committee yesterday, while Socialist Norman Thomas attacked it as the "basic principle of totalitarianism."

LaGuardia declared boys of 18, just out of high school, should be trained first, in preference to men employed in industry. He declared no exemptions should be made for conscientious objectors, cripples or ministers.

Young, appearing as chairman of the American Youth Commission, disagreed on this point. He urged that no one be called younger than 21, and also warned against race discrimination or disproportionate selection from the unemployed.

Afraid of Temptation

Thomas declared conscription would give "armament makers, investment bankers and oil prospectors an Army so powerful that it will be a standing temptation to them and their Government to impose their will by force on our neighbors."

The Senate committee perfected the draft of a reemployment guarantee to drafted men which had been agreed upon earlier. Under it employers engaged in interstate commerce would be held guilty of "unfair labor practice" if they failed to reemploy a draftee "unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to afford such reemployment."

Nothing was stated in the bill as to what agency would determine whether an employer refusing reemployment is "unreasonable," but Chairman Sheppard said he expected it would be handled by the National Labor Relations Board.

Government employes would be given leave of absence if called for military service, and as to men working for employers not engaged in interstate commerce, the bill declares it the "purpose and intent" of Congress that they should be reemployed.

Other amendments approved by the committee provide for a director of selective service, to receive $10,000 a year and who must be confirmed by the Senate, and a proviso which exempts from draft men who have served six years in the National Guard.

Visitors to Capitol Must Be Registered

Visitors to the Capitol after 4:30 p. m. henceforth will be required to come in through the law library entrance under the rotunda and be registered.

The new regulations went into effect yesterday. Only employes with a special card and House and Senate members are exempt.

Capitol police said only that the move was intended to "find out how many people are entering and leaving the Capitol."

U. S. Will Hold French Funds Pending Peace

Armistice Did Not End State of War With Nazis, Treasury Holds

The United States will maintain its protective custody of French funds deposited here until Germany and France sign a final peace treaty, The Post learned yesterday.

This decision, arrived at in conferences between the Treasury, the White House and Ambassador William C. Bullitt, definitely bars the possibility that the French fortune here, estimated at close to $2,000,000,000, could fall into Nazi hands in the very near future.

In the Treasury Department view, it was learned, the French-German armistice signed in the World War railroad car at Compiegne, June 22, did not end a technical state of war between the two nations.

Britain Opposes Release

The funds, which have been "frozen" here since collapse of the French armies, include almost a billion dollars in securities, sizable direct investments and an unknown quantity of gold, much of it shipped here after the start of the Nazi blitzkrieg.

Sir Frederick Phillips, British Treasury Undersecretary, who conferred with Secretary Morgenthau and President Roosevelt last week, urged that the United States not relinquish these funds.

At the same time, President Roosevelt yesterday ordered steps to tighten "freeze" orders, steps that are aimed at preventing "bootlegged" securities from invaded countries being liquidated here to German advantage.

Importation Rule Tightened

In order to forestall any possible smuggling of securities from invaded nations into the United States, the President signed an order tightening a previous requirement that imported securities be inspected by postal and customs authorities.

The new order requires Treasury approval of the sale of any security that bears a foreign tax stamp or other evidence of having been at any time in the invaded countries.

To carry out the policy, the Treasury ordered printing of a new stamp which, when affixed to a security that has been in an invaded country would nullify that "curse" and permit the security to be marketed freely in this country's exchanges.

The new order even requires Treasury approval to transfer any security that is not physically situated in the United States.

Willkie Disowns 'Souvenir' Book With $1,000 Ads

New York, July 26.—Letters received here today from "the executive committee" of the "Elwood notification committee, Willkie-for-President Club, Elwood, Ind.," soliciting advertisements at $1,000 per page in a "pictorial souvenir edition" of the August 17 ceremony provoked considerable consternation before disavowals were received from all parties concerned.

Mayor George M. Bonham of Elwood, who was listed on the letterhead of the solicitation as a co-chairman of the executive committee, telegraphed to the New York Herald Tribune:

"Willkie pictorial souvenir edition is strictly commercial enterprise. Letterhead and letter of solicitation was wholly unauthorized. Willkie notification committee denies any and all responsibility."

From Colorado Springs came this message from Willkie:

"There is no such official program. It is a strictly commercial adventure and is in no way authorized or approved."

The present survey measures opinions only as-of-today, and further tests will be made as the campaign progresses. But today's survey—conducted since the renomination of President Roosevelt at Chicago last week—indicates that the contest for the Keystone State's 36 electoral votes may be one of the keenest of the campaign.

Republicans will be striving to swing Pennsylvania back to its "normal" GOP allegiance, for the State has gone Republican in every Presidential year but one since the Civil War—the one exception being President Roosevelt's triumph there in 1936.

The election four years ago was a high-tide—to date—of Democratic strength in the State; President Roosevelt received 58 per cent of the major party vote, to 42 per cent for Gov. Landon. By the mid-term Congressional election of 1938, sharp Republican inroads had been made, the GOP carrying the State by a margin of 54 to 46 in electing Gov. Arthur James.

Glenn Frank Says He's Willing To Run for Senate in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., July 26 (AP).—Dr. Glenn W. Frank, former University of Wisconsin president, announced today he would enter the September primary race as a Republican candidate for the United States Senate if supporters who urged him to do so could obtain sufficient nominating signatures by the July 30 deadline.

DR. FRANK

Dr. Frank, chairman of the Republican Party's national program committee, said he preferred "to make whatever contribution I can to the life of the State as a private citizen rather than through any political office." He added that he was willing to accede to many requests that he enter the primary.

New York, July 26 (AP).—Councilman Alfred E. Smith, jr., had a Wendell Willkie button on his coat lapel today.

"Do you mean it?" he was asked. "I certainly do," Smith replied. "Is your father wearing one?"

He is," answered the son of the 1928 Democratic Presidential candidate.

Young Smith was elected to the New York City Council as an independent Democrat.

Kansas City, July 26 (AP).—Because his old friend, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, failed to notify him, a meeting of Jeffersonian Democrats had been postponed, William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray made a fruitless trip to Chicago.

"Jim Reed kinda pulled a trick on me there," said Murray, en route home to Oklahoma, where he once was Democratic Governor.

He predicted "that man Roosevelt won't get elected again."

Des Moines, Iowa, July 26 (AP). Paul H. Cunningham, 49, Des Moines attorney, was chosen as the Republican nominee for Congress from the Sixth District at the party's district convention here today.

Selection of a nominee in convention was necessary because none of the five primary election candidates received the required 35 per cent of the total vote to assure nomination. Robert Goodwin, incumbent, was not a candidate.

nounced he would make no move to block Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, in his plan to hold Senate judiciary subcommittee hearings on the third term as an issue. "He is chairman of the subcommittee and that is his right," said Ashurst. Burke will confer over the week-end on selection of witnesses for the hearings.

Notification ceremonies for Senate Minority Leader McNary, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, were tentatively set for the last week in August at the Salem Fair Grounds. Such G. O. P. figures as National Republican Chairman Martin and Gov. Stassen of Minnesota are expected to be present.

Reports that another Jefferson Island Democratic peace party may be held to harmonize differences of Congressional Democrats circulated at the Capitol.

Woo La Follette

A political rapprochement between President Roosevelt and Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, meanwhile was awaited as a possible first step in the forthcoming liberal alignment of the new Democratic campaign organization.

La Follette, up against a hard reelection fight, and at loggerheads with the President on aid to the Allies, has committed himself neither to a third term nor to Wendell L. Willkie.

New Dealers in command of the Democratic campaign hope to work with Wisconsin Progressives in the party's new liberal setup, but have been equally chary of open commitments. The President needs Progressive votes to carry the State, and La Follette could use New Deal help.

Key to a campaign understanding was said to be Ambassador to Belgium John Cudahy, close personal friend of the President. Democratic Senatorial nomination papers have been circulated in Wisconsin for Cudahy.

Favored With Census Jobs

Cudahy's elimination of himself from the race against La Follette when and if it comes would be interpreted here as at least a tacit understanding that nothing would be done to handicap La Follette in his fight for reelection. Should Cudahy stay in the race it might inversely mean that the President wanted him to.

First indications of a possible rapprochement came during the 1940 census check when jobs were so freely given to Wisconsin Progressives that State Democrats protested. New Deal strategists, meanwhile, are casting around for American Labor Party, Farmer-Laborite, A. F. of L. and C. I. O. support.

Friends of the Progressive Senator point out that while La Follette does not see eye to eye with the President on foreign policy, he is supporting the defense program and has gone largely along with the President's domestic policies.

Viewed as Rebuttal

Wallace's announcement that he will leave the Cabinet "as soon as I begin active political campaigning" was accompanied by a long rebuttal of "political machine" charges aimed at the AAA, State, county and community farm setup.

Secretary's Statement

Secretary Wallace's statement said:

"As the President has indicated, I plan to resign, or take a leave of absence without pay, from my post as Secretary of Agriculture as soon as I begin active political campaigning. This will be shortly after my notification ceremonies and acceptance in late August.

"I should like in this connection to call attention to some facts with reference to the farm programs operated by the Department of Agriculture.

"Charges that the farm programs and those who work in them will be—or can be—used as a sort of political machine in the coming election reveal an amazing ignorance of the manner in which the programs are carried on. For example, in the case of AAA, by far the largest and most extensive of the various programs, regulations governing payments under the program for the 1940 crop year were drafted months ago. The extent of the individual farmer's participation in the program determines the size of his check. Nothing that the Secretary of Agriculture does now can affect the amount of that payment. Further, the triple-A farm programs are administered in the counties by farmer committeemen, elected by their fellow farmers. These men are not in the employ of the Federal Government; their limited expenses are paid by their neighbor farmers, and many of them serve at a real sacrifice. Some of the committeemen are Democrats, some Republicans, and some members of other parties or members of no party. These farmers would—and should—vigorously resent any attempt to use them or the programs for political purposes.

Necessary Safeguard

"Anyone with a real interest in the welfare of agriculture would not try to use the programs and their farmer-administrators for partisan political purposes. From the very first we have had strong and rigid regulations for the protection of the programs against political activity. We have realized that this was necessary in order to safeguard the interests of farmers and to make the programs truly national. Any political activity on the part of the committees has been prohibited and committeemen cannot be committeemen and at the same time be members of party committees or engaged in partisan activity.

"But even if party enthusiasts had wanted to get the programs into partisan political activity, attempts to force county and community committeemen, farmers themselves and elected by farmers, into organized politics would be bad politics and could result in nothing but political setbacks for those making the attempts. Obviously the best way to get and keep farm support is to plan and operate nonpartisan programs that are for the benefit of all agriculture. We have tried to operate on that principal.

"Under any leadership that might be established, the considerations that I have mentioned would be determining with respect to the conduct of the farm programs. The fact that I am a Vice Presidential nominee will, quite naturally, reinforce the care that has been exercised in the past. It is obvious that the entire department and I myself will have to guard every action. There is no way in which this need for care could be circumvented by subtlety; we could not be subtle in dealing with 7,000,000 farmers.

"It is my hope that there will be an end to these loose charges of political activity, or prospective political activity, by farmer-committeemen who are directing the Triple-A, and other programs of the Department of Agriculture. These charges constitute a reflection upon the integrity of thousands upon thousands of able and honest men, men who have tried to operate national programs for agriculture from the standpoint of the national welfare."

In revealing earlier that Secretary Wallace probably would follow his own 1920 precedent and leave the Cabinet to campaign, President Roosevelt said President Wilson made a study of historic precedents for a high official remaining in office during his campaign for Presidency or Vice Presidency.

Cites Own Precedent

The President said Wilson's conclusion was that the average of precedents called for withdrawal at the point where active campaigning begins.

He said Wilson told him this after his own nomination for the Vice Presidency and asked when he should submit his resignation from the "Little Cabinet." Mr. Roosevelt said he thought probably it was good procedure and common sense.

He indicated a long leave of absence for Wallace was not precluded.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to be drawn into a discussion of possible successors to Postmaster General Farley as national Democratic chairman.

Tax Rulings To Be Eased, Knudsen Says

Assures Industry Amortization Period Will Be Shortened

Heavy industry had official assurance yesterday that its cooperation with national defense would not be impeded by what it regards as "onerous" Treasury rulings.

William S. Knudsen, production member of the Defense Commission, told reporters that he thought he could convince industry that Congress would support the Administration's bill to ease terms of amortization on capital expenditure for new plant capacity.

Earlier in the day, President Roosevelt told his press conference that proposals to repeal limits on arms profits and to shorten the amortization period to five years would have to be coupled with an excess profits tax, in order to protect Treasury revenues and also prevent any profiteering.

Confer on Tax Yields

The President left the implication that a tax bill, coupled with provisions for charge-offs of money spent for plant expansion and provision for lifting legal limits on arms profits, was making progress in conferences between the White House, the Treasury and Congressional tax leaders.

The President and Treasury officials conferred on taxation Tuesday, discussing reports of tax yields that would be provided by various rates of taxes, the President said.

It was the President's belief that the three suggested changes must go together.

If 8 per cent limits on profits from Army and Navy contracts are lifted, the President said Treasury income must be protected. He said that, therefore, an excess profits tax must be enacted simultaneously.

Should Cover Loopholes

If the period for charging off plant expansion expenses is cut to five years, the President said, the Treasury should not suffer in this case either. Again, this change should go hand in hand with an excess profits tax, he contended.

The tax bill, now in committee in Congress, should cover all possible loopholes, the President said in response to a questioner who asked if the tax should apply to individuals as well as to corporations.

Obviously, however, the President pointed out, 99¾ per cent of the incomes affected by an excess profits levy would be corporate incomes.

Army Orders Million Antitank Shells, 3 Times As Powerful as Projectiles Thrice Their Size

By International News Service

New York, July 26.—The Segal Lock & Hardware Co., Inc., today received a "go ahead" order on the first million units of a high explosive antitank projectile perfected by the United States Army.

Sidney Kuttin, vice president of the lock company, said:

"This projectile will have a destructive force three times greater than projectiles three times its size and will be fired from a lighter gun, enhancing the mobility of such armaments."

Louis Segal, president of the firm and its inventive genius, has perfected a hand grenade that can be locked and its fuse cut off to prevent its firing. This "safety" device is now under consideration by the Army.

Midwest Asks Share

Kansas City, July 26 (AP).—Chamber of commerce representatives from 60 Middlewestern cities voted today to "draft" 81 Congressmen to a Kansas City conference to hear demands for the Midwest's share in the national defense program.

The action followed rejection of a proposal to send a 100-man delegation to Washington.

"We're tired of going to Washington and being stymied," shouted one delegate.

A third delegate's suggestion that it might be selfish to ask Congressmen to leave Washington with so much important legislation pending brought the reply, "Congress has been dallying for years. Certainly it can spare them three days."

Victor Barnett, president of the Tulsa Chamber, was authorized to arrange details of the demand to be made upon Congressmen from Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Arkansas, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Oklahoma.

Preliminary phases of production already under way include the drawing up of blueprints and specifications for the plant, machine tools, production equipment, materials and supplies necessary for the mass output of the engines.

'Profession' Class Urged for Press

College Deans Testify At Pay-Hour Hearing On Defining Newsmen

Recognition of the professional status of newspaper workers was sought before the Wage-Hour Administration yesterday by counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers Association, and deans of three college schools of journalism.

They spoke at a hearing at the Hotel Willard which was one of a series to take testimony concerning proposed changes in the definitions of "executive," "administrative," and "professional" under the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

Spokesmen for the newspaper industry maintained that both editorial and advertising employes should be classed as professional because of the public service entailed by their work and its importance to the full functioning of a democracy.

Hanson Speaks for Publishers

Elisha Hanson, counsel for the publishers association, asked, specifically that reporters, writers, editors and advertising employes be classified as professional. He included among advertsing employes all who solicit, write, prepare and lay out advertising.

In presenting arguments to support this position, he added, the publishers' association did not concede that the law was applicable to newspapers at all, nor did it concede the right of Congress to regulate the business of the press or to classify it for purposes of regulation.

Newspaper reporters, writers and editors were professional men, he claimed, and newspaper cartoonists "would shoot you if you made any attempt to classify them as anything but professional men."

Exemptions Have Been Refused

Confusion over administrative definitions of the exemptions has hampered the normal and regular operation of newspapers, Hanson said.

The Wage-Hour Administration, he added, had refused to grant exemptions to newspapers as "service" establishments engaged chiefly in intrastate commerce, and had also refused to exempt advertising solicitors on the ground that "an outside salesman must sell some tangible physical object, whereas an advertising solicitor was merely selling a contract for service."

Intellectual requirements, exercise of discretion, and requisite training, in addition to the public service aspect of their work were emphasized by the college deans in their argument for defining newspaper workers in the "professional" class.

Carl W. Ackerman, dean of the Columbia University school of journalism; Frank Martin, dean of the school at the University of Missouri, and Kenneth E. Olson, dean at Northwestern University, were the educators who appeared at the hearing.

Dean Olson declared newspaper workers should be acknowledged to have a professional status because their work is predominantly intellectual, because it is varied in character, and because it requires a consistent exercise of discretion.

"The profession of journalism," he said, "is as important to our democracy as are any of the other professions. Only if the people of our country are given the facts in regard to their government and in regard to the social, political and economic problems which confront them, can public opinion be articulate and democracy work.

"By every standard which the wage and hour division has itself set up, the work of newspapermen and women is truly professional." Dean Martin pointed out that in England journalism is accepted, without dispute, as a profession.

The University of Missouri educator pointed out also "that our State governments many years ago recognized journalism as a profession by establishing instruction for journalism in State schools throughout the country, through acts of official governing boards, and by continued financial support with State-appropriated monies."

Yesterday's hearing was one of a number at which representatives of wholesale and retail businesses, trade associations, and others, have stated their reasons for believing changes should be made in the present definitions of "executive," "administrative," "professional," and "outside salesmen," in interstate businesses.

Paper Files Test Case

Dallas, July 26 (AP).—The A. H. Belo Corporation, publishers of the Dallas News and allied publications, brought suit in Federal Court today to test the applicability of the wages and hours law to newspaper employes.

The publishing company requested Judge William H. Atwell to rule on rights and obligations of the corporation and its 200 employes under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938.

Named defendants were G. C. Street, jr., regional director of the wages and hours division, and J. Wilmer Truly, Robert W. Finklea and Ruth Buckner, employes of the A. H. Belo Corporation. The last three are members of the class of all employes whom Street claims 1938 act.

Red Cross Head Denies Germans Seized Supplies

Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, last night vigorously denied that any of the supplies his organization has sent to war-torn Europe had been seized by the Germans.

The denial was made in a radio speech in which Davis also reported that the $20,000,000 war relief goal is "in sight."

The fund yesterday totaled $19,823,510, a sum slightly more than $176,000 from the goal, he said.

"I am able to state categorically that the German authorities have not seized 1 cent of Red Cross funds nor have they taken a single item of our supplies," Davis declared.

D. C. Employes Joining Colors Sure of Jobs

Two-Year Leaves Will Be Granted For Military Service

The District Commissioners yesterday acted to save the jobs of municipal employes conscripted for military service or who accept commissions in United States military reserve organizations.

Acting on a request by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who reported policemen belonging to the National Guard, R. O. T. C. or similar organizations were being offered commissions, the city heads agreed that a two-year limit be placed on such leaves of absence and that employes be reinstated upon return.

Col. David McCoach, jr., Engineer Commissioner, said the two-year limit would not mean that an employe leaving the service could not remain with an organized reserve for a longer period without danger of losing his job.

"We felt that we should place a limit on the time in hopes that the men would report from time to time their status in the reserve or regular service," McCoach said.

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, who served on the Draft Board during the last war, has been asked by the Commissioners to prepare the order to keep the jobs safe for the men.

Although there is no official estimate of the number of men in the District service who are members of the reserves, the Police Department alone has about 300. They are members of the Marine, Navy and Army Reserves and the National Guard.

Defense Counsel John S. Leahy said he would file a motion for a new trial.

Boehm will be at liberty meanwhile on his earlier bond.

G. B. Shaw Spends 84th Birthday, Free

Despite German Reports of Jailing, Author Found Happy

By International News Service

London, July 26.—German radio reports to the contrary notwithstanding, George Bernard Shaw today spent his eighty-fourth birthday—out of jail.

Hearty as ever despite his years, the bearded Anglo-Irish author treated with the sardonic wit that has made him world-famous, the Nazi radio announcement that he had been stowed away quietly in prison for having said Britain will lose the war. He observed:

"I suppose lots of people would be glad. I am sorry to disappoint them.

"It isn't true, though one shouldn't be surprised at anything these days."

Shaw, whose verbal barbs have twitted the world's rulers for two generations, claimed the Berlin radio has misquoted him on the subject of the war. To set the record straight he reiterated:

"I still think Hitler has not a dog's chance of winning, if Britain handles her reserves properly."

Observing but not celebrating his birthday in his London home, the "aged youngster" of international literature asked with a chuckle that he not be reminded of the event, saying: "It would be kinder to forget it."

July 20, 1930, the temperature was 106—hottest the Weather Bureau remembers, unless it was August 6, 1918, when the same round figure was attained. Temperature of 105 was recorded on July 10, 1936; 104 on August 7, 1918; 104 on July 9, 1936, and 102 on July 19, 1930.

The Mails Go On

Through heat, high water and gloom of night the mails, according to the tradition, went through yesterday. The Postoffice Department press office people viewed it as a foolish question. "Of course," they said, for the whole vast postal workings. The postmaster's office said of the carriers: "They are a hardy lot and sweat right on through it."

Ninety-eight civilians employed at Police Headquarters were sent home about noon. Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Superintendent of Metropolitan Police, left at 2:30 p. m.

Tradition wilted in the Police School. The rookies were permitted to open their coat collars while in class, an unheard-of procedure. The rookies were cautioned, however, not to leave the classroom in disarray.

The great Central Heating Plant workers reported it wasn't bad there, with plenty of windows and some breeze; the air conditioning in Postmaster General Farley's office was said to have failed; dry cleaners, whose work, ordinarily is in no iceberg environment, said they were carrying on. Among the hardest-luck ones was the press section of the Agriculture Department, in a nonair-cooled section of the Administration Building, between two air-cooled wings. They had to stay on.

The Committee of the Washington Air Derby Association felt the weather and wrote The Post "Due to vacations and the heat, the event scheduled for Sunday (the treasure hunt) will be postponed. Sorry."

One of the few cool spots in the Capital was the Capitol, where members of Congress and legislative clerks lingered longer than usual at their desks. The reason for their devotion to duty lay in the air-cooling system of the Capitol. Some clerks confided that they had stayed at their offices until late Thursday night.

N. Y. Cooled Off

Thundershowers and hail sent New York's temperature down to 71.

The thermometer hit 101 at Baltimore, the hottest in four years.

A cool wave moved slowly Eastward across the Middle West last night while Eastern sections of the Nation sweltered.

The cool air mass, accompanied by thundershowers and strong winds, rolled southeastward from Canada Thursday night, sweeping a low-pressure area ahead of it.

Talk Politics, But Privately, Mitchell Warns

Civil Service Workers May Contribute Funds Voluntarily

Government workers, and the State employes brought into the "clean politics" setup by the new Hatch Act, can still talk politics and contribute to the campaign chests of political committees, Harry B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, said yesterday.

The political talking, however, has to be done in private, said Mitchell, and the cash contributions have to be made voluntarily.

Mitchell, speaking to the West Virginia Branch of the National Association of Postmasters at Clarksburg, said that the penalties for State employes violating the political activity ban of the Hatch Act face more severe mandatory penalties than Federal civil service employes under the "clean politics" clause of the Civil Service Act.

Under the civil service rules, said Mitchell, the commission can fix penalties for banned political activity, based on the seriousness of the offense and ranging from a reprimand to discharge from the service.

For violation of the Hatch Act, however, the only possible penalty is removal from office, he said.

"The law does not appear to give the commission any discretion in the matter of fixing a lesser penalty," said Mitchell. "Experience under the civil service rules has shown that there are many cases of political activity on the part of Government employes which ought to be punished, but which do not warrant removal from office."

President Issues Proclamation On Oil and Metal

President Roosevelt last night issued a proclamation formally subjecting to a licensing system exports of petroleum products and scrap metal needed for defense purposes.

Limited in scope, it applied chiefly to petroleum products from which high-test gasoline for planes may be obtained and to No. 1 heavy melting iron and steel scrap. It also requires licenses for export of tetraethyl lead, used to increase the firing power of low-grade gasolines.

Mr. Roosevelt denied at his press conference the licensing represented an embargo. Officials contend the licensing system is designed to see that adequate stocks of materials needed for defense purposes are retained here.

Japanese concern over the export curb was shown when Ambassador Kensuke Horinouchi talked with Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State. He declined to say whether the licensing system was discussed, although it was understood this was the case.

Great Britain's Ambassador, Lord Lothian, conferred with Welles on what was described as routine matters but, upon leaving, he indicated his pleasure by saying anything which tended to keep petroleum from reaching Germany was welcome to Britain.

Mr. Roosevelt announced the American Government will keep the coast of the Iberian Peninsula open to American shipping as long as possible, since it is the only point of contact with Europe.

He made this observation in response to a question whether Britain's announced tightening of its blockade would result in a pronouncement that Spain and Portugal are in the combat zone and therefore barred from American shipping.

G. O. P. Chief Sees 'Excellent Chance'

Portland, Me., July 26 (AP).—Sinclair Weeks, Republican national committeman from Massachusetts, told a G. O. P. group today that the Republicans have an "excellent chance" of carrying Virginia, North Carolina, Florida and Tennessee in the national election.

Here on a campaign finance tour, Weeks said the third-term issue would have a bearing on the swing he envisioned in the Southern States, but said it was not the only issue.

"The people of those States," he said, "do not believe in Roosevelt or his policies. They have had him for eight years and they want no more of him."

River Dragged For Yachtsman, Blast Victim

J. W. Brightenburg Jumps in Potomac With Clothing Aflame

Harbor police dragged the Potomac River until dark last night in an effort to recover the body of John W. Brightenburg, 33-year-old manager of the District Yacht Club, who drowned when his 39-foot cabin cruiser exploded and burned to the water line early yesterday.

With his clothing aflame, Brightenburg leaped overboard from his stalled craft about midway between Hains Point and the Naval Air Station. He sank from sight almost immediately, other occupants of the boat said.

Brightenburg, who lived at 5726 Conduit road northwest, was pouring gasoline into the carbureter of his drifting boat when the fuel exploded, spraying him with the flaming liquid.

Girl Injured

Hilda Thyrring, 22, of 417 Oglethorpe street northwest, who was at the wheel of the boat, the Jay W. Bee, said she heard "a terrific boom" and when she looked around she saw Brightenburg writhing in flames on the deck.

"He jumped up and, without a sound, flung himself overboard," she said.

Miss Thyrring and two companions, Richard Wells, 27, of 1437 Kennedy street northwest, and Norene Campbell, 28, of 3230 Walbridge place northwest, stayed aboard the flaming craft until the heat became too great. Miss Thyrring suffered burns to her right leg.

With only one life preserver, the trio finally abandoned the boat and managed to stay afloat until they were picked up by John W. Murphy, of 1252 Park road northwest, who came to their aid in a speedboat.

Wreck Towed to Dock

The District fireboat, Firefighter, was called to the scene but was unable to extinguish the flames in time to save the boat. The wreck was towed to the fireboat dock.

Brightenburg lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen C. Brightenburg, and one brother, Paul. He was an engineering graduate of George Washington University and a native of Nebraska.

Six persons burned in another yacht explosion Thursday night were recovering last night. They are Lawrence A. Lee, 6515 Eighth street northwest; his son, Donald, 9; Madeline Jacobs, 6, and three Arlington County firemen.

They were burned when the Lee boat caught fire at the Airport Yacht Basin.

Army to Shift Fort Howard Troops to Washington Area

Twelfth Infantry to Be Stationed in Camp At Arlington; Development of Teamwork Is Reason for Concentration of Forces

Secretary of War Stimson yesterday revealed that plans have been approved for increasing the number of troops stationed in the vicinity of the Nation's Capital and that as a first step the garrison at Fort Howard, Md., will be moved to Arlington Cantonment, just across the Potomac from the Lincoln Memorial.

Fort Howard, headquarters of the Twelfth Infantry, of a battalion which is already here, will be abandoned by the Army and will become the site of a Veterans' Administration hospital. Stimson made the announcement in a letter to Representative Cole, of Maryland.

"The above action," he wrote," will not only unite all components of the Twelfth Infantry in one location but will permit the larger units to operate as a team. The War Department considers it essential that, wherever practicable, the larger tactical units of the various arms which must act as a team in combat should be so associated and trained in peace. The separation of tactical grouping in small isolated posts, such as Fort Howard, tends to adversely affect their readiness for instant service."

Temporary barracks of the type used in CCC camps are being constructed at Arlington for the additional men. The post is now located on a small area lent to the Army by the Agriculture Department, but legislation is pending in Congress under which the whole experimental farm area will be transferred to the Army and the National Park Service, to be split into a park and a larger military post.

At present there is a battalion of the Twelfth Infantry at Arlington. It was formerly stationed at Fort Washington, Md., and for years has been known as the "President's Own" or the "White House household guard" because of its extensive use at White House functions. Troops of the battalion surrounded the Executive Mansion at all times during the visit of the British King and Queen a year ago.

Commander of the Twelfth Infantry is Col. Oswald H. Saunders, a native of Colemans, Md., and a graduate of the University of Maryland and Georgetown Law School. He will move his headquarters and staff from Fort Howard to Arlington in the near future, it was said. The post will then have a garrison of about 600 officers and men, more than double its existing strength.

Roosevelt Inspects Navy Yard Monday

Norfolk, Va., July 26 (AP).—Both the Norfolk naval operating base and navy yard will be closed to the public while President Roosevelt and those in his party are inspecting them here Monday, it was announced at the office of Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, commandant of the Fifth Naval District.

Those in the party, besides the President, will be Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee; Representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and Brig. Gen. E. M. Watkins, the President's aide. The party will be met at the yard by Rear Admiral Ross E. T. McIntire, White House physician, and Capt. M. L. Dego, U. S. N., and Representative Colgate W. Darden, jr., of Norfolk.

Atrocities Blamed On Rumania

Moscow, July 26 (U.P.).—Russian newspapers today published a long dispatch reporting Rumanian "atrocities" against Bessarabians who returned to Bessarabia from Rumania. Robbery, confiscation of property and tortures were alleged.

There was no indication whether reprisals were to be considered.

Lawyers Guild Urges Madden Be Renamed

The National Lawyers Guild urged President Roosevelt yesterday to reappoint J. Warren Madden as chairman of the National Labor Relations Board for another term of five years.

Countess Reported Killed in Auto Crash

Geneva, Switzerland, July 26 (AP). French friends of former Premier Paul Reynaud reported today that his companion of several years, 40-year-old Countess Helene de Portes, was killed in the automobile accident at Montpelier, France, in which Reynaud was injured June 28.

Baby Weighs 20 Pounds at Birth

Poplar Bluff, Mo., July 26 (AP).—A baby which "undoubtedly weighed 20 pounds at birth," as the father claimed, was reported here tonight by County Health Officer J. W. McPheeters.

The baby, a girl, was born ten days ago to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hunter, colored, of nearby Morocco. McPheeters said the child weighed 16 pounds 2 ounces today and since a new-born baby normally loses some weight, it could easily have weighed what the father claimed at birth.

Peasants to Share In Lettish Estates

A reign of terror is marking the interval until Lithuania is formally annexed to the Soviet Union, diplomatic advices from the capital, Kaunas, disclosed yesterday. Annexation is expected August 1.

Advices said the Soviet secret police and Lithuanian workers' militia are arresting wealthy landowners and fallen political leaders, seizures occurring usually at night. Passport visas were described as extremely difficult to obtain.

All gold, silver and precious stones in Kaunas jewelry stores have been confiscated. Estates are expected to be seized soon for division among the peasants, advices said.

Tower Sit-Downer Fails to Dodge Prison

Atlanta, July 26 (AP).—Andrew Jackson Wynne, 20-year-old convict, got nothing more out of his 19-hour "sit-down strike" atop the Federal penitentiary water tower than what he hoped to escape—return to a Georgia prison.

Warden J. W. Sanford announced today a decision had been reached to turn Wynne over to Georgia authorities. The prisoner's escapade on the tower came on the eve of his release on a two-year theft sentence. Tonight Wynne was on his way to Tattnall Prison to finish serving a four-to-five year burglary sentence interrupted by escape in 1937.

Dress Regulations Relaxed by Army

Officers of the expanding Army have been told by the War Department that they may ignore regulations requiring wearing of blue or white dress uniforms on certain occasions.

It was explained that large numbers of officers are on duty now at temporary training camps and "dress uniforms are not considered appropriate."

Temperance Court Children Begin Summer Bible School

Idea Never Tried in Neighborhood Before, Residents Say; Classes Meet Tuesday and Friday Mornings

Grouped on egg-crate seats and benches under a tree in Temperance Court, youngsters yesterday were having Bible study and enjoying it.

They are gathering on Tuesdays and Friday mornings for a summer Bible school under the sponsorship of the Metropolitan (colored) Baptist Church, whose social worker, Mrs. Olive Montgomery, worked like a trooper to get the project started in a section—between T and U and Twelfth and Thirteenth streets northwest—where citizens said such an idea had never before been tried.

The regular program includes opening and closing sessions, recreation, games and songs and Bible study. However, because the children were "especially good" yesterday, Mrs. Montgomery gave them a party, with lemonade and cookies.

There Were Difficulties

Mrs. Montgomery, who believes that the "lady bountiful" idea should be abolished and people helped to help themselves, had plenty of praise for those who made the project possible.

When they launched the project, there were heaps of difficulties—especially in the several years' accummulation of rubbish on the Court, and in some residents of the transient type who were not eager to cooperate.

To clear the space around the tree, they borrowed picks, shovels and rakes from the WPA; rolled up their sleeves and went to work, with even the smallest children pitching in to help.

Police Cooperate

The Rev. Henry L. Dean, graduate of the Howard University School of Religion, has been assisting in teaching, and also Harriet Hennant, Mrs. Doris Hughes James, Mrs. Ella Craighead, Miss Vivian Hooper, Ruth Carter, Doris Jackson and others. Miss Evelyn Jackson, of Armstrong High School faculty, gave instruction in making and painting the seats.

Police, including one who is a deacon of the Metropolitan (colored) Baptist Church, also cooperated. Joseph Barber, a neighbor, thrilled the children with his "electrical city," which he brings over during the recreational hours. The Rev. Robert Sanders, of North Carolina, is conducting a neighborhood vesper service in the Court on Sundays at 5 p. m.

Congressmen To Study U. S. Migrant Labor

4 Will Leave Today On Tour of Camps; To Hold Hearings

Four Congressmen today will step into the roles of migratory workers to probe the Nation's migrant problem.

Their migration will begin, in style, aboard a train northbound from Union Station at 9 a. m. today. They'll ride to Wilmington, Del., and there meet New Jersey State welfare officials, equipped with automobiles.

The Congressmen and their New Jersey hosts will tour half a dozen centers of migratory labor in New Jersey—the cranberry bogs near Pemberton, the oyster packing plants at Bivalve, and several large farms.

They plan to move into New York early Monday morning for the first of a four-month series of hearings spaced across the country, on the problems of "nomad" industrial and agricultural workers.

Leading the party will be Representative Tolan (Democrat), of California, chairman of the special committee for investigating the migrant problem. With him will go Mrs. Tolan and three other committee members, Representatives Curtis (Republican), of Nebraska; Sparkman (Democrat), of Alabama, and Osmers (Republican), of New Jersey. A fifth member, Representative Parsons (Democrat), of Illinois, will join the committee later.

Far ahead of the migrant Congressmen, a scouting force of 40 investigators, many of them borrowed from Federal agencies concerned with the migratory-worker problem, will be operating in the field, to round up witnesses and arrange hearings.

"The migrants are hopeless, Stateless and voteless," Chairman Tolan said, adding that this situation "strikes directly at the morale of our people." He said the committee would complete its study within their $20,000 appropriation and would recommend legislation on the basis of findings.

Texas to Vote In Primary Today

Dallas, July 26 (AP).—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, the hill-billy flour merchant of two years ago, wound up his campaign tonight with the prediction he would be renominated tomorrow over five opponents.

Each of his opponents, Jerry Sadler, Ernest O. Thompson, Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson, Harry Hines and Arlon B. (Cyclone) Davis, assured the electorate they would be in next month's run-off election with O'Daniel, who upset precedent two years ago by defeating 11 opponents in the first primary.

Texans will nominate a Senator, 21 Representatives, and a railroad commissioner.

Polar bears, born into 50-below temperatures, frolicking contentedly in the sun's scorching rays while monkeys, natives of the tropics, lay dejectedly with tongues hanging out.

A cockatoo eating ice cream.

First stop on the asphalt cruise was the aquarium, where Orsinger was found trying to cheer up a school of gasping pickerel.

"Lost two of the fellows this morning," he said sorrowfully. "The pickerel seem to take the heat worst. But even some of the trout, whose water is kept at 58 to 60 degrees, are affected. Look at that one gasping."

Carp Says "Fooey"

Orsinger walked up to Pappy's tank.

"Poor Pappy," he said, gazing at a huge carp whose mouth formed the word "Foo-ey" as he swam sluggishly near the bottom of his tank. "Fooey" was the right word, all right, for it was plain that the 24-pound fish, eldest and biggest in the collection, was fed up with hot weather.

"The only ones that don't seem to mind the high temperatures are the goldfish," said Orsinger.

Davis was impressed by the case of the gannet, an arstwhile bachelor, who decided to "play house" with a muscovy duck deserted by her spouse after she had presented him with a clutch of eggs.

"Never saw anything quite like this before," the birdhouse keeper confessed. It's lucky for her the gannet came along, otherwise she would have had no relief when she wanted to get off the nest to feed. Now the gannet takes his turn on the eggs and when she's sitting he stands guard, keeping away intruders with his sharp bill."

What? No Strawberry?

The ice-cream-eating cockatoo, a red-crested specimen from the East Indies, nibbled nonchalantly from a wooden spoon held in Davis' hand, but he didn't eat much.

"Cocky prefers strawberry," Davis said.

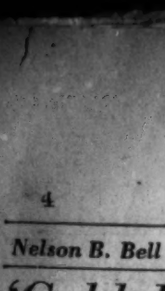
'Gold Rush Maisie,' at the Capitol, Is a Field Day for Ann Sothern

Star Carries Brunt Of Light Comedy's Bid for Approval; 'Crazy' Stage Revue

"GOLD RUSH MAISIE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Wilson Collison, adapted to the screen by Betty Reinhardt and Mary C. McCall, jr., starring Ann Sothern, with Lee Bowman, Slim Summerville, Virginia Weidler, Mary Nash, John F. Hamilton, Scotty Beckett, Irving Bacon, Louis Mason, Victor Kilian, jr., and Wallace Reid, jr. Directed by Edwin L. Marin. Reviewed Friday morning. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

The only "pay dirt" turned up by that self-sufficient, irrepressible and unconquerable show-girl, Maisie Ravier, is a rich vein of those golden rewards to conscience that come from the knowledge of kindly deeds well and boisterously done. As it turned out, there warn't no gold in them thar hills.



BELL

Despite the barren ore pockets, "Gold Rush Maisie," the current screen attraction at Loew's Capitol Theater, assays fairly high as a mine of sprightly and unpretentious entertainment. It is the third in the "Maisie" series and will do as much as any of them to establish its star, Ann Sothern, as a serio-comic actress worthy of more important assignments than have heretofore been allotted her.

The picture follows the "Grapes of Wrath" motif. Maisie, out of a job and hurrying to what she thinks will be a profitable honky-tonk engagement in the bleak open spaces of the Far West, is stymied by a consumptive flivver that gets her there three days too late. However, intermittently en route, she has bearded a crabbed young lion in his desert den and eventually falls back upon him as savior of a cavalcade of Okies engaged in the admirable enterprise of trying not to starve to death. The gold rush is on, in an old ghost town that petered out a quarter of a century ago. The promise of fabulous wealth from claims that do not contain enough gold to fill a tooth blows up in the face of the Dust Bowl refugees and affords Maisie her chance to be their guardian angel. Everything works out beautifully for everyone but Maisie.

Once again Miss Ravier takes it on the chin, with a hey-nonny-nonney-and-a-hotcha-cha, high-balling down the pike in the jaloppy presumably destined to carry her to further adventures. That is the gist of a film fable that is 99 and 44-100 per cent Ann Sothern.

Ann Sothern's full capabilities seem not yet to be realized by her screen producers. As Harriette Lake, she attained prominence on the stage as a singer and dancer, as well as competent actress, in "America's Sweetheart," with Jack Whiting; in "Everybody's Welcome" and in the Chicago company of "Of Thee I Sing," opposite Oscar Shaw—and whatever became of him? Miss Sothern has contrived to make the "Maisie" roles as completely her own as Master Rooney has made Andy Hardy his. An unerring sense of timing, comed, and the flip crack, combined with a sensitiveness to dramatic situations, has not yet brought her the recognition she deserves. She is the "whole show" in her present vehicle. This would not be to minimize the importance to the production of Lee Bowman, Virginia Weidler, Mary Nash, John F. Hamilton and the others in the cast. The authors of the screen play saw to that.

The "Crazy Show" stage revue at the Capitol this new week barely squeezes by under its title. It is not completely coo-coo by reason of the presence of Sara Ann McCabe, with her wide-range voice and a nice selection of songs in which to display it, the expert juggling of Val Setz—one of the best in his line—and the sedate contributions of the Rhythm Rockets. Jay C. Flippen, headliner and master of ceremonies, and Eddie Hanley, pantomimic comedian, are magnificently on the lunatic side. Mr. Flippen dusts off a few old gags and his old reliable "Small Fry" number and unveils a few new ones, too—including a series of quick blackout skits, principally novel for their brevity.

The Fox Movietone News, affording ample opportunity to cheer your favorite Presidential nominee—Mr. Willkie was a slight front-runner at yesterday's first performance—a Terrytoon comedy, "Runert, the Runt;" Sam Jack Kaufman's "Maryland" overture, with vocal embellishments, and Ari Brown, in his final week of organ-led songfests, round out a bill architectured to the temper and the temperatures of the season.

Bathtub Solo Gets Roland Song Job

A song sung in the bathtub won for Gilbert Roland the right to sing a trio of songs in "Rangers of Fortune," starring Fred MacMurray.

The vocalizing will mark Roland's debut as a professional singer. He will sing "Carmela," "El Capotin" and "Polly Wolly Doodle," songs popular 'way back in 70's. Sam Wood, director, heard Roland singing in the bathtub just before a golf match and decided his voice was good enough to find favor with film fans.

'Tom Brown's School Days' Draws Faithful Picture at Met.

By Richard L. Coe

"TOM BROWN'S SCHOOL DAYS." Gene Towne and Graham Baker picturization of the book by Thomas Hughes adapted to the screen by the producers, Walter Ferris and Frank Cavett, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Freddie Bartholomew, Jimmy Lydon, Josephine Hutchinson, Billy Halop, Polly Moran, Hughie Green, Ernest Cossart, Alex Craig, Gale Storm, Barlowe Borland, Forrester Harvey, Leonard Willey, Ian Fulton, Charles Smith, Dick Chandler, Paul Matthews, John Collum and Harry Duff. Directed by Robert Stevenson. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

It's a happy and enjoyable film Gene Towne and Graham Baker have made from Thomas Hughes' celebrated story of Rugby life, "Tom Brown's School Days." Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Freddie Bartholomew and Jimmy Lydon have the pivotal roles in this Metropolitan Theater first-run.

Played with a genial gusto, the picture emphasizes boyish humor and credible character building. The story concerns Dr. Thomas Arnold's early years at Rugby and his efforts to push forward his theories about self-government for the student body. The struggle he had was epitomized by Author Hughes through the experiences of one boy and how, through courage and honesty, he defeated the clique of the school bully.

Jimmy Lydon, certainly not a lad you'd pin a medal on at first sight, comes through neatly as Tom. Former "Dead End" kid, Billy Halop, is the bully Flashman and, equipped with a convincing smidget of Oxonian, is excellent as the rascal. Freddie Bartholomew, too, is fine as the "typical" young Britisher, East, whose honorable code of school morality sets the tone of the entire film.

Atmosphere Well Captured

Captured exceedingly well are those unbelievable days we all go through as schoolboys; those ingenious tricks which, to the boys, are ever new but are exactly what their fathers did before them; that brave-new-world spirit with which one leaves home for strange surroundings; the ecstasy of food not consumed in the school dining room. All these sensations, mingled with a sequence of lively pranks, give the film an unmistakeable atmosphere.

An unfortunate flashback narration is the independent Messrs. Towne's and Graham's only fault. One gathers, from a maudlin prologue and epilogue, and quite erroneously, that Dr. Arnold passed away shortly after Tom and East left Rugby. Actually he was at Rugby for 14 years and left to become professor of modern history at Oxford, a post from which death drew him a year later. While Thomas Hughes was not seeking to portray the Schoolmaster Lytton Strachey so eloquently captured in "Eminent Victorians," nor the satirical characterization of him drawn by Samuel Butler in "The Way of All Flesh," it is equally certain that so saccharine a fade-out is unnecessary.

Vigorous and Tuneful Score

Sir Cedric Hardwicke is fine as the headmaster, contriving with Director Stevenson to convey the thought that the schoolmaster was not the central figure of the story as was the case in the Hilton film, "Goodbye Mr. Chips." Polly Moran, that inexhaustable comedienne of yore, is back as the old gal who sells "Murphies" to the boys, while the balance of the cast is well chosen. An exceptionally interesting and vigorous score by Anthony Collins adds further lilt to a good picture.

The eternally-harassed Edgar Kennedy is the hero of the comedy short, a cataclysmic adventure of an irate citizen when it's "Boys' Day" in city government. It's rollicking fun. Paramount's "Unusual Occupations" latest release presents some interesting shots of frayed-money investigators in the local Treasury Department. A voluminous newsreel includes life with the faddists in Atlantic City, with a speed demon mayor, with the President at Hyde Park, with Mr. Willkie at a rodeo and some uncommunicative shots released by the British censors. All in all, the Metropolitan has a thoroughly enjoyable bill.

Steinbeck was told that nothing could be done about it at this time . . . Archibald MacLeish, the poet-librarian at the Library of Congress, also is recommending the establishment of a propaganda department, and now there is a possibility that such a measure will be taken.

MOVIES DEPT.: Alfred Hitchcock, the director, is in New York conferring with Norman Krasna, whose screen play, "Mr. & Mrs.," he will direct for RKO. Hitchcock, one of the world's top-ranking directors, explained the kind of movie story he likes to do: "It should be a story which can be told in a few paragraphs on one page of copy paper. From that is written the screen play, in which the characters are delineated, their history and action explained, and then all the resources of the studio resolve it into film and sound-track . . . Then, when a man sees it on the screen, it should be the kind of story which he relates to his wife later, in a few short paragraphs—which would be exactly like the original synopsis—and yet make her interested enough to want to see it."

SOCIAL NOTES: A visitor who hadn't seen Oscar Levant for a few years, renewed acquaintanceship Wednesday night . . . "You've changed for the better, Oscar, and marriage did it," he told Levant. "The last time I saw you, you seemed to dislike me. And now you've changed completely" . . . "I haven't changed at all," Oscar assured him, "I'm just more polite in the way I dislike you."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR: "I'm going to start writing a new play day after tomorrow, which is Monday, but it will be finished by midnight Saturday," writes William Saroyan. "I wish you were here today, so I could postpone the cockeyed play. By cockeyed, I mean a fellow says, See that dog? That dog worships me. And the other fellow says, I always tell my boy to wear his derby when he goes out, so his head won't catch cold, and he never does it. Now he's in the Canadian army. And a guy who thinks he's in love with a girl named Amy hides behind an open door and calls out, Amy, ooooh, Amy, and a man past 70 whacks him over the head with a rolled newspaper and says, Joe, there's a war in Europe . . . What's that mean?"

FOREIGN DISPATCH: Elie Bori, editor of the Petit Parisien, was the author of many of the most bitter anti-Nazi editorials which had appeared in that newspaper. Bori escaped to London, but before he left Paris he held a final conference with his publisher, Depuys, who is related to the Spreckles family here . . . The publisher decided to remain in Paris. At this conference, shortly before the Nazi troops entered the city, Bori delivered to Depuys an affidavit in which he declared that he had written those anti-Nazi editorials, that he assumed full responsibility for them—and that this responsibility should not be shared with Depuys, who had nothing to do with them.

Cooling System Shares Honors With Holdover Bill, at Earle

"All This" and Earle air-cooling—it's as near to heaven, too, as you'll ever get this Washington July. The pity of it all is that audiences have to leave this paradise of escapist drama and coolness and return to the boiling Gehenna of Thirteenth street.

By holding over "All This and Heaven Too" for a third week, the Earle management automatically qualifies for some sort of public service medal. The picture is of a caliber usually reserved for fancy fall openings, a tour de force of crime, passion and powerful acting. It is a marvelous treat for summer audiences who are so often fobbed off with those marshmallow sundae pictures especially gotten up for the hot weather period.

So much praise has been lavished on "A. T. A. H. T." that comment on it is superfluous. Audiences and critics are miraculously agreed that it is one of the big pictures of the year. Only criticisms we've heard is that it's a shade too long and that the prologue and epilogue strike a false and oversentimental note in an otherwise powerful tragedy. The murder that is the pivot of the story is elegantly gruesome will give you pleasant chills and shivers. Summing up, "All This and Heaven Too" is certainly the most important picture presented in Washington in the summertime.

Last week's bright stage show is also held over, with the Roxyettes tap dancing on stilts, Betty Bruce in Broadway whirls and tiny Jeanne Lanier as the current nightingale. The mixed double quartet harmonies of the New Yorkers are both amusing and soothing to the ear.

MARY HARRIS.

Opportunity

Several of the high-school student roles in "What a Life," comedy to be presented soon by the Cross Roads Theater, remain uncast. Tryouts will be held in the Bailey's Cross Roads, Va., barn Sunday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, July 27.

After trading hats with Elsie, the "Oomph" cow, for the newsreel at Ciro's the other day, I got to dreaming in my sleep, "Now, I've given that ungrateful glamour girl an awful lot of boosts. I told how she had put 'Oomph' in a bottle, which raised Borden's milky receipts $8,000,000 a year, how her discoverer was now a vice president at a salary of $100,000 a year," when during my troubled dream, it occurred to me that she hadn't even given me the scoop about her coming blessed event. And I made up my mind I'd just bide my time. And when that offspring made a debut, or perchance wanted to become a star in the cinema, like her mooing mama, I'd treat her with a dose of dignified silence, which always speaks louder than words!

Bette Davis says that hot rhumba lessons help her forget the retribution she meets in almost every picture. Murdered in "Fog Over Frisco," disappointed in love in "Dangerous," then that slow, miserable death in "Of Human Bondage." "Borderiown" sent her raving mad. In "Marked Woman" she took plenty of punishment, and she went blind in "Dark Victory." Then came "Elizabeth and Essex," in which she got even—she had her lover's head chopped off. In "All This and Heaven Too," she was the center of a scandal that rocked a nation. So in "The Letter," she gets almost a vacation—all she has to do is murder a man!

Bette told me the conversation on "The Letter" set proves that "no sabbee, no tickee, no laundlee" dialect is old-fashioned for the new generation of Chinese. "Willy Foo was talking to Molly Wong about a mutual friend, praising her to the skies. Molly stopped chewing two sticks of gum long enough to say, "That dame? All she thinks about is jitterbugging. She'd rather jive than wrap herself around a filly minyon.'"

Yesterday I visited set for the Colbert-Milland picture, "Arise, My Love" . . . It was in a little Spanish town, and the chickens and the townsfolk were having a whale of a time playing in the streets together, when suddenly, around a corner out of nowhere zipped Ray Milland and Claudette, making a quick getaway in an old Studebaker.

Just as they got out of sight, a military car with four officers came tearing after them, but took the wrong road and, believe it or not, the driver got so excited he lost control of the car and ripped through a tremendous black curtain in front of which he was supposed to stop. All this excitement, mind you, inside a Hollywood sound stage.

J. Edgar Hoover's salary as our head G-man is almost negligible, but when he sold his book "Persons in Hiding" to Paramount, the agreement was that he get an extra bonus for each story used. So far, they're made four—"Persons in Hiding"—"Under Cover Doctor"—"Federal Offense"—and "Queen of the Mob." Proving that fine service is rewarded sometimes. Well, let it go!

Maurice Chevalier is on his way back to make another fortune here, and mark my words, America will let him . . . We've had many new laws passed. I wonder if anyone would mind if we put through another for Americans in America, or would that be too radical?

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 26 (INS).—High time that M.-G.-M. woke up to the fact that they have a big league star, not just another good feature player, in Ann Sothern. The gal is simply swell in "Gold Rush Maisie," just as she has been in the whole series of "Maisies."

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

But for a long time I've wondered why they haven't done more with her. Ann sings very well. She began her career as a professional dancer, and she wears clothes like an oomph girl—yet, when the really glamorous parts come along, someone else gets them.

But evidently light has dawned, for today Ann was set for the top spot in "Feeling Like a Million," a musical by Jack MacGowan, that will cost plenty of shekels and will be one of the biggest musicals of the year.

Well, Loretta Young and Thomas H. Lewis have set their wedding day, and I know the fans are waiting to hear all the details. The ceremony will be performed in the presence of the immediate family at St. Paul's Church in Westwood, with Father Francis Quinan officiating at the nuptial mass. Following the ceremony a breakfast will be served at Loretta's house to the wedding party. Pretty little Georgiana Young, the youngest of the sisters, will be maid of honor, while Jack Young, the only boy in the family, will give his sister away. Dr. Charles Ranney Lewis is coming on from Troy, N. Y., to act as best man for his brother.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Dennis Morgan and his wife are consulting their attorneys. She is in the East, and an announcement, their friends say, will be made shortly; Elsie Anderson, Florentine Garden cutie, and Huntz Hall, "Dead End" kid, have set the date; Cy Bartlett, battler of Fifth Columnists, and Ruth Terry a Hollywood tropic twosome; Margaret Ettinger entertained at dinner last night in honor of Harry Batton, president of N. W. Ayer & Son. He is on his way to Honolulu; Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger, who were at the party, said they were leaving for New York and Saratoga to spend the month of August.

My San Francisco scout says there wasn't even standing room at the Palace Hotel when Renee and Tony de Marco opened there Tuesday; too bad it's a definite parting between the Melville Coopers. They've sold their home and have taken separate apartments. The Lucille Fairbanks-Owen Crump romance is still burning. They were at Ciro's; Nancy Kelly and Edmond O'Brien, taking up where they left off months ago, at Perino's Sky Room.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

'Britons in France' Declared Destitute

Woman Who Escaped To Lisbon Describes Plight Under Nazis As Simply Terrible

By Walter B. Kerr

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Lisbon, July 26.—The first British subject to escape from Paris since the German occupation arrived in Lisbon last night. She is Mrs. Mercia Symondson, whom I knew in Paris and who intends to leave in a few days for England.

Mrs. Symondson stole her way into unoccupied territory and reached Marsailles, where it is possible to obtain Spanish and Portuguese visas. In the early part of the war she was engaged in ambulance work in London. Later, in Paris, she worked in a modern club for soldiers on leave, under the direction of Lady Moore.

Mrs. Symondson was one of between 600 and 1,000 British civilians in Paris when Germany occupied

Several weeks ago she decided to try to get out, although the Germans were not allowing British subjects to leave and even few Americans could depart. One night she took a train for the South, reaching Moulins, a small village at the edge of the occupied territory. From there she got a train which took her to Marseilles.

Few Have Any Money

According to Mrs. Symondson the conditions at Marseilles for British subjects are "simply terrible"—much worse than in Paris.

"Few," she said, "have any money at all. Many are literally starving—all need money—money to pay for food and money to pay 131 francs for a Spanish visa and 10 francs for a Portuguese visa and money for train fare to London.

"People are living in the very cheapest places they can find. They are begging for money. I just couldn't believe it was really possible at first, but this really is true. I helped them as much as I could. These people, mind you, are people with money in England, most of them very charming people.

"They are going to be there forever unless they get money. The British consulate is closed and the consul, now that diplomatic relations are broken off, is refusing to see anyone. He cannot help. The American consul is doing what he can, lending a little money here and there, and helping to get visas, but there is not enough to relieve the suffering."

Mrs. Symondson said she met 23 British soldiers who escaped from German hands. They were in rags and in an awful way, but anxious to get back to England.

There was one officer, a Scotsman, with a broken leg. He barely got away before the Germans reached where he was, with two English soldiers trying to carry him. Two Americans came along and helped. The officer wants to get home to fight.

LUPE VELEZ,
peppery Mexican actress, yesterday signed an extradition complaint for the return from Evansville, Ind., of Mary Baker, 25, Gypsy fortune teller. Lupe charges she stole $2,500 from her. "When I see her, I kick her in the teeth —or some place," Lupe said. "Eet ees not so much the monee. All I want ees to get my hands on that woman"

Rumania Agrees To Yield Lands

route to see Mussolini. Some circles voiced the conjecture that Rumania might offer to make a deal with the Axis at Yugoslavia's expense in exchange for Axis support toward modifying the Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial demands upon Rumania.

Hungary's Attitude Uncertain

Hungary's attitude toward the reported Gigurtu memorandum given Ribbentrop was not crystallized tonight, and the question remained whether Hungary would accept or reject such a compromise.

Even as the Rumanian officials sped toward Rome to receive Il Duce's confirmation of the Fuehrer's wishes, Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Filoff and Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff were en route from Sofia to Berchtesgaden to see Hitler tomorrow.

The Bulgarians were expected to go through the same routine tomorrow as did the Rumanian diplomats today. They will confer with Von Ribbentrop, then meet with Hitler, following which they, too, are scheduled to go to Rome and Mussolini's palace.

The same program also is to be followed by Premier Joseph Tiso of the Slovakian German protectorate and his foreign minister, summoned to confer with Hitler Sunday.

Further indications of the sharp upswing of Axis influence in the Balkans was seen in reports that former Premier Milan Stoyandinovich of Yugoslavia was preparing to reenter the government. Only three months ago he was arrested and interned in an intensive fifth-column drive.

Stoyandovich, who was transferred several weeks after his arrest to a lonely and almost inaccessible mountain village, is now at a summer resort and will return to Belgrade within a few days to resume activities, it was stated.

Dispatches from Bucharest reported new raids on foreign oil interests in Rumania.

The manager of the French Columbia oil fields and seven French and four English engineers were expelled when police found explosives allegedly stored for sabotage.

Military circles heard reports of Turkish troop concentrations on the Bulgar-Greek frontier in Thrace. These dispatches said that three more Turkish classes had been called to the colors.

German Claims

Berlin, July 26 (AP).—Germany's position as "adviser" to Rumania has been strengthened by the conclusion of a far-reaching trade agreement with Turkey.

On the military front, the German high command reported, primarily, these successes:

The sinking today of three merchant ships totaling 22,000 tons by torpedo-carrying speedboats off the southern coast of England, destruction by German aircraft of 15 other merchantmen totaling 63,000 tons yesterday, destruction of 23 British planes over the British Isles and Germany yesterday and numerous bombings of British radio stations, airports and aircraft factories.

DNB, German agency, later said a fourth merchant ship of 10,000 tons had been sunk off Britain. This, with the 22,000 tons the high command accounted for plus a 2,000-ton vessel set afire by German bombers, raised to 34,000 tons the enemy shipping reported sunk or damaged today, DNB claimed.

Compromise Seen On Mandates

the following course of action:

1. A general declaration recognizing the danger to hemisphere defense in possible attempts at conquest or transfer of ownership or control of European colonies in the new world. This declaration is to be so phrased as to gain the adherence of all.

Needn't Be Unanimous

2. A resolution providing temporary machinery for emergency action by any one or more of the 21 American republics to counter any possible threat arising from these possessions, but not necessarily requiring participation of all the American nations.

3. A convention embodying the mandate, or trusteeship principle, for administration and control of any possessions which might be taken over as a security measure. This convention would be open to all the republics desiring to ratify it, but it would not require unanimous ratification for operation.

Argentina's chief objection to the hemisphere trusteeship proposal is that the inhabitants of European colonies here should have the right of free determination and control of their own destinies—regardless of whther they agree to transfer to another non-American power or declare independence.

The United States, Brazil, Cuba and others supporting the trusteeship proposal desire especially to insure against the transfer of the possessions to another foreign power.

Gives Argentina an "Out"

If this proves to be the compromise decided upon it will satisfy Secretary Hull, who is convinced the whole question of European possessions here is so vital and threatening that he is determined to get some solution at this conference which will permit rapid and decisive action.

The phraseology is expected to be such that Argentina, or any other country, can disclaim any direct offense toward Germany or other potential foreign customer for her exports. The fear of incurring the displeasure of European powers, her best pre-war customers, has accounted partly for Argentina's reluctance to enter into any strongly-worded continental solidarity scheme.

The neutrality commission—free of the dissension marking the peace committee's debate on European colonies—passed measures sponsored by both Argentina and the United States designed to check "Fifth Column activities.

On Alert for Trojan Horses

The United States project was approved with only a few minor changes. It provides that all governments shall be alert to subversive activities within their borders, and while taking proper national steps to control seditious activities, they shall warn and aid each other whenever the menace to democratic institutions threatens to spread.

The United States project also calls for continuous exchange of information among the governments so as to suppress "Trojan horse" activties on a continental basis.

The Argentine project seeks joint exchange of information concerning "deleterious activities" which might affect the "society and institutions" of the American countries "in favor of a foreign belligerent state."

Costa Rica placed before the conference a proposal that all American governments close their frontiers and deny the right of assembly to "inhabitants, nationals or foreigners" who seek to foment disorder in any American nation—when such acts have as their goal "the propagation of subversive ideologies in another nation."

Air Bombs Kill U. S. Citizen in Palestine

The State Department received word yesterday that Meyer Lax, an American citizen, had been killed in an air raid upon Haifa, Palestine.

A telegram sent from Jerusalem last night by George Wadsworth, consul general, said telephone inquiries made to the Afikim colony had established that Lax was one of 46 persons who, according to official announcements, were injured fatally in the bombing at Haifa the previous morning.

Officials said that F. H. Lax, of Chicago, was the father of the deceased.

League Section Will Be Moved To Princeton

Invitation to Transfer Two Others, as Well, Under Consideration

By the United Press

Princeton, N. J., July 26.—The League of Nations has accepted an invitation to transfer its economic and financial department to Princeton University for the duration of the war, the office of Dr. Harold W. Dodds, Princeton president, announced today.

Notice of the acceptance came in a cablegram from Geneva, addressed to Dodds and signed by Joseph Avenol, secretary-general of the League. In the absence of Dodds, who was vacationing in Nova Scotia, the announcement was made by his assistants.

Three Sections Invited

Avenol said that Alexander Loveday, English economist and director of the League's economic and financial department, would come here "as soon as formalities can be completed." With him will come 7 other officials of the department and 14 wives and children.

Princeton University, acting jointly with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and the Institute for Advanced Study, cabled the League on July 12 an invitation to transfer its three nonpolitical sections here.

The other two are the international health department and the opium-control department.

As to the latter two, Avenol said the question of their transfer raises "special problems to which I am giving careful consideration."

League President Resigns

Geneva, July 26 (AP).—Joseph Avenol, Frenchman who has been secretary-general of the League of Nations since July 1, 1933, announced his resignation today, stating the "realities" of the present times made his office no longer necessary.

Thus Avenol signed what may well be the formal death sentence of the League as a political body—a death it has been dying steadily since 1932, when Japan's armies were sent into Manchuria.

Avenol submitted his resignation in a telegram sent to the governments of the League's member states.

To Name Date Later

Stating that until September, 1936, when he visited Premier Mussolini at Rome, he had believed "certain inevitable reforms would enable the League . . . to recoup the forces which were moving away from it," Avenol's wire declared the duties of his office now no longer justify maintenance of political high direction, which no longer is consistent with the realities of the situation."

His telegram said further that "I am anxiously considering measures to assure the administration work of the League secretariat shall continue."

Avenol said he would announce the date when his resignation becomes effective after a meeting of the supervisory committee next month.

Senators Expect Session to Last Into September

Pending legislation will make it impossible for Congress to adjourn before mid-September, well-informed Senators declared yesterday.

The excess profits tax bill, the conscription bill and the military and naval expansion bill are expected to keep conscientious Senators and Representatives toiling through August and well into September.

Saturday, September 13, is considered to be the earliest possible date for adjournment; but some legislators said Congress might remain in session until only a week or two before the election.

The tax measure will probably be offered in the shape of a draft bill next week, and hearings are not expected to get underway until August.

Nazis Intern Col. Booth, Trapped in Belgium

London, July 26 (AP).—Col. Mary Booth, British Salvation Army worker and granddaughter of the founder of the organization, has been interned in a German concentration camp at Constanz, it was reported today.

Col. Booth, who headed Salvation Army work in Belgium, had been listed as missing for several weeks.

than that of the Hagues and the Kelly-Nashes."

Other messages of support came from Dean George H. Whipple, of the University of Rochester Medical School, and Dr. George R. Minot, of the Harvard Medical School, both Nobel Prize winners.

Dr. Ernest Martin Hopkins, president of Dartmouth College, telegraphed he would support Willkie.

Willkie, asked for comment on the messages of support from Democrats and independents, responded with a smile. "The leaves will be falling every day in large numbers."

Willkie talked during the day with State Senator Rolland Kannenberg, of Wisconsin, whom the nominee described as "a La Follette Progressive."

Kannenberg Statement

Senator Kannenberg issued a statement saying:

"I am for the Republican nominee for President and I am sure that many other La Follette Progressives feel as I do.

"I am very much pleased with Mr. Willkie's ability and personality. He measured up in every way to what I expected him to be. I am convinced that he is a real American, one in whom we can safely put the affairs of our Government. I am confident he will keep America at peace and has a definite plan of aiding agriculture."

Another visitor was the Rev. Noah W. Williams, presiding bishop of the fifth district, African Methodist Episcopal Church, which extends from the Mississippi River to the Pacific Coast. Bishop Williams made the following statement:

"I think that the salvation of the American people depends largely upon the election of Mr. Willkie. This question of dole is not the best for any people in America. What we want is self-respect and jobs."

The nominee arranged to spend the night preceding his acceptance address at Elwood, Ind., August 17, at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Phil Wilk, at Rushville, Ind. He said that the Culver Military Academy Black Horse Troop would be his official escort and that the Indiana University Band would precede him in a drive from the high school to Callaway Park.

Dr. William Lowe Bryan, president emeritus of Indiana University, was scheduled to deliver the invocation at the acceptance ceremonies.

Red Parachutists Lauded

Moscow, July 26 (AP).—The army newspaper Red Star praised Russia's parachute army as "the best in the world" today in an article commemorating the tenth anniversary of Soviet parachutism.

Aliens Fear More Incidents In Shanghai

Foreign Section Declared 'in Bounds' For Japanese Soldiers

By the Associated Press

Shanghai (Saturday), July 27.—Japanese military authorities declared today the foreign areas of Shanghai "in bounds" to Japanese soldiers on leave, aroused foreign fears of a multiplication of the incidents which have disturbed Japanese-American relations in recent weeks.

Simultaneously, it was reported from Tientsin that Japanese restrictions virtually have halted the activities of American traders in north China. This report coincides with United States action in licensing all its own oil and scrap iron exports.

(In Tokyo the Presidential licensing order was regarded as intended to curb Japan as well as being aimed at Germany and Italy, and the Japanese Ambassador in Washington was directed to investigate the new control.)

Incident Not Settled

The action of the Japanese in permitting their service men on liberty to have free range of the Shanghai foreign concessions was a radical one, although foreign quarters conceded that the Japanese had a right to do so. Heretofore the foreign areas, with the exception of Japanese-occupied Hongkew, have been out of bounds for the soldiers.

(There has been considerable difficulty over the action of the United States Marines in seizing 14 Japanese plainclothes gendarmes who entered the International Settlement illegally July 7. The Japanese, contending the gendarmes were treated brutally, demanded an apology. The incident has not been settled.)

American expressions of regret, however, settled two recent Japanese-American incidents at Tsingtao, one involving a cafe clash between United States sailors and Japanese policemen and the other an altercation on a beach between Japanese petty officers and another American sailor over a 16-year-old Japanese girl.

6 Newspapermen Expelled

The Central China Daily News, organ of Wang Ching-Wei, head of the puppet Chinese regime set up by the Japanese at Nanking, said Mayor Fu Siao-en had asked the American consulate there to deport "without delay" six American newspapermen recently ordered banished by Wang. Pro-Wang newspapers said the six were "wicked visitors to China who are conspiring with the rebels in an attempt to overthrow the Nanking government.

In addition to the freeze-out of American business in North China, the United States radio station in the British concession in Tientsin was ordered closed yesterday by the British, under Japanese pressure.

Russia Signs Treaty With China

Chungking, China (Saturday), July 27 (AP).—Conclusion of a new trade treaty with Russia—Nationalist China's only source of foreign war supplies since the closing of the trade route through British Burma—was announced today.

The treaty calls for Russian purchase of 13,000 tons of China's oat crop, but it hsa not yet been revealed what Russia promises to deliver in return.

Youth Recovers $1,310 Pay Roll, Captures Bandit

Baltimore, July 26 (AP).—Salvatore Virasole, 21, captured a robber charged with seizing a $1,310 pay roll from a messenger today after a chase through hot city streets.

Cirasole said he was struck on the head with a blackjack during the chase.

Edward Smith, 18, told police two men knocked him down and seized the pay roll of a hat shop when he was walking from the bank to the store.

Cirasole, pursuing the men, caught up to them in an alley. The man carrying the money, he told police, hit him with a blackjack, but then offered him "half the money if I'd let him go."

Cirasole said the men hailed a taxicab, but the driver refused to move. The bandits ran off again, and Cirasole caught the one carrying the stolen money. The man surrendered to Cirasole just before policemen arrived.

Gibraltar Bombed Twice By Italians

Communique Says Raids Were Carried Out 'Effectively'

By the Associated Press

Gibraltar, July 26.—Besieged Gibraltar today underwent two Italian aerial bombardments.

In the first, long-range Italian bombers subjected the towering rock to a 30-minute predawn attack but made off southwards after being picked out by searchlights and anti-aircraft batteries. The British said no casualties resulted.

(Reports from just across the border in Spain said four persons, one a woman, were killed and 37 injured by more than a score of bombs dropped by six Italian bombers. These advices said the fortress radio transmitter, docks near an arsenal, water tanks, and a hotel were damaged and a number of lesser buildings leveled. Several houses were damaged in La Linea by antiaircraft shell fragments.

Civilians Depart

(A laconic Italian communique merely said Gibraltar was "bombed effectively.")

In the second attack, beginning at 11:15 p. m., a score of bombs fell on Europa Point in a 16-minute raid.

There were no reports that any warships were hit, although the raid hastened departure of civilians from the British fortress town.

In Rome, Stefani, Italian news agency, declared the first Italian air raid on Gibraltar today caused "indescribable panic" among troops and the small civilian population remaining at that British fortress rock.

Explosions of the bombs and the fire from the guns of the land batteries and warships literally rocked houses in La Linea and in Algeciras, across a bay.

Some Ships Hit

Many soldiers were killed and many recently arrived troops, "deaf to all orders, threw themselves into the sea," the agency reported, quoting refugees which, it said, had reached Ceuta, Spanish Morocco.

Some ships were hit also, it said.

The Royal Navy, meanwhile, tightened its blockade around Fascist Spain and friendly Portugal following a burst of British diplomatic activity which emphasized Gibraltar's importance in the Mediterranean battle.

British diplomats explained the action was taken solely as a result of German occupation of the French-Spanish frontier. It was pointed out this occupation threatens not only the effectiveness of the blockade of Germany by allowing sea-borne sinews of war to go by rail from Spain to German-occupied France, but also menaces Gibraltar.

Rites Held Here For Mrs. Davis, Wife of Senator

Private funeral services for Mrs. Jean Rodenbaugh Davis, 51, wife of Senator James J. Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, were held yesterday at the home, 3012 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

The Rev. G. M. Diffenderfer, of Carlisle, Pa., friend of the family and former pastor of Luther Memorial Lutheran Church, conducted the service. The body was placed in a vault in Fort Lincoln Cemetery, and later may be taken to Pittsburgh, Mrs. Davis' original home, for final burial.

All the family was present, including the Davis' five children. The eldest daughter, Jane, flew from Hollywood, where she has been making screen tests.

Mrs. Davis died Wednesday in Atlantic City.

Funeral Today For W. L. Burgan, Church Publicist

Funeral services for Walter L. Burgan, publicity director of the general conference, Seventh Day Adventists, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Takoma Park, Md., Seventh Day Adventist Church, Carroll and Willow avenues.

Burial will be in Baltimore, where Mr. Burgan was born and where he was once a newspaper man.

Mr. Burgan had served the general conference for the last 28 years. All of that time he lived in Takoma Park. His residence was at 314 Garland avenue.

He died Wednesday night in the Washington Sanitarium after a brief illness.

G. F. Wisner Rites To Be Held Today

Funeral service for G. Franklin Wisner, 61, veteran newspaperman, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Pumphrey funeral home, 8420 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, Md. Burial will be in Druid Ridge Cemetery, Baltimore. Mr. Wisner died Thursday in Garfield Hospital.

A committee from the National Press Club attending the service includes Lynn Lamm, George O. Gillingham, Carter Field, Herbert Corey, Robert D. Heini, Warren B. Francis, C. Alphonso Smith and James E. Warner.

Man Who Claimed To Be 114 Dies in Pa.

Clearfield, Pa., July 26 (AP).—John Morris, whose relatives said he was born 114 years ago during the Administration of John Quincy Adams, sixth President, died today.

A former Pennsylvania mine inspector, he was known as "First Aid" Morris because of his interest in first-aid work.

Vertical Rising Plane Shown By Pitcairn

Based on Autogiro Principle, New Craft Needs No Runway

By the Associated Press

Willow Grove, Pa., July 26.—An airplane that needs no runway for its takeoff was demonstrated successfully today by the Pitcairn Autogiro Co., pioneer American rotor plane manufacturer.

The product of there years' experimentation, the new machine was hailed by Harold F. Pitcairn, president of the company, as a plane "completely independent of ground obstacles or size" for its takeoff and landing.

Pitcairn said the new giro needs space only one-eighth the size of a regulation airplane field for its landing and takeoff or half the space required for rotor planes now in use.

Called the "jump takeoff," the new feature of the plane enables it to rise vertically for approximately 20 feet, then take a normal climbing angle for the further ascent.

Company officials say its use for military scouting and contact work is possible. Pitcairn pointed out that much larger machines than the 175-horsepower, 2,000-pound experimental ship are feasible.

The "jump takeoff" is possible, he explained, because of speeding the rotor or overhead blades to about 300 rotations per minute—50 per cent more than normal speed—while the blades are held in a horizontal position. The pilot, by automatic hydraulic control, then releases the blades to a half vertical or "lifting" position and simultaneously shifts the full engine power to the propellor in a movement similar to shifting gears in an automobile.

This simultaneous overspeeding and assumption of the "lift" position by the rotor blades, Pitcairn said, causes the giro to shoot into the air.

French Accuse Mandel Of Plot Against State

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, July 26.—Charges of plotting against the security of the French state were filed today at Meknes, Morocco, against Georges Mandel, the former minister of the interior.

Mandel was one of numerous members of the French Parliament who left Bordeaux on the liner Massilia just after the aerial bombardment of the city by the Germans. It is understood that the charge against Mandel related to a proposal he is alleged to have made for the transfer of the French government away from the metropolitan area.

Dr. Guthrie, Former Pastor, Dies in N. Y.

Dr. Charles Ellsworth Guthrie, 73, former pastor of the Hamline Methodist Church, Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest, and former general secretary of the Epworth League, died last night at his home in East Aurora, N. Y., according to the Associated Press.

Burial services will be held here. Dr. Guthrie also filled a pastorate in Baltimore. Surviving are his wife, two sons, and a daughter.

Finland Yields Rail Facilities To Russians

Shipment of Materials To Soviet Naval Base At Hango Under Way

By Otto D. Tolischus

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, Sweden, July 26.—Emulating Germany's exaction of military transit facilities through Sweden, Soviet Russia demanded and obtained military transit facilities through Finland which already are being used for the shipment of materials to the Russian naval base at Hangoe via Finnish railways.

This new Finnish concession was released for publication today.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Berlin says the German wireless reported today from Moscow an agreement between Premier Molotoff and Finnish Minister Passikivi, under which Finland will keep her Aland Islands demilitarized and will not cede them to any third power.]

Hangoe is the tiny Finnish peninsula at the northwestern end of Finnish Bay "leased" to Russia as a result of the Russo-Finnish war, but under the terms of the peace treaty, Russia can approach it only by sea. Apparently Russia no longer considers this access sufficient.

Beyond that, however, the new concession is also a concession in principle which might assume increased importance in the future, especially when the railway from Kemijaervi to Kuolajaervi connecting with the Russian branch of the Murmansk railway to Kandalaksha is completed.

This railway, which under the terms of the treaty is to "provide a right of way between Soviet Russia and Sweden by the shortest route," was supposed to be built jointly and "possibly" in 1940, but though the Russian end already has been completed, the Finnish end, it appears, will not be completed until next year.

Transit facilities that were granted by Sweden to Germany have drawn British protests. So far as is known, the transit facilities granted by Finland to Russia have produced no German reaction, prsumably because Germany herself established the precedent and also because of Germany's insistence that everything between her and Russia is in order.

In the Baltics, the Estonian government today issued a decree forbidding "independent" nationalization of factories and business enterprises by their workers without the official permission of the government or the Communist Party.

Reports from Norway confirm, in face of King Haakon's refusal to abdicate, that the Germans have been forced to abandon their plan of putting up a Riksrador national council to take his place as an interim government. Reaction of the Norwegian people was so strong that the idea disintegrated.

One Killed, One Hurt as Chicago Gang War Opens

Chicago, July 26 (U.P.).—Two men were wounded, one fatally and the other critically, in a gangland-style shooting late today, and police believed it marked the outbreak of a war for control of "bootleg" horse racing information services.

Police Capt. John Ryan said he was working on a theory that the violence resulted from a fight between members of the syndicate once headed by Scarface Al Capone and former employes of Nation-wide News Service, disbanded last fall by Moses L. Annenberg, wealthy publisher now serving a prison sentence for income tax evasion.

One of the wounded men, John (Irish) McLeod, 40, died several hours after the shooting at Little Company of Mary Hospital. Part of his head had been torn away by shotgun slugs. The other, James Ryan, 41, was in critical condition at the same hospital from wounds in his shoulder and back.

Four gunmen surprised them as they stepped into an automobile in front of a South Side grocery. The gunmen poked the muzzles of three shotguns into the car and fired. The blast shattered four plate glass windows in the grocery. Peter Mannos, 39, a clerk, was cut by flying glass. The gunmen escaped.

'Enemy' Planes 'Raid' Canal's Vital Points

Balboa, Canal Zone, July 26 (AP).—Scores of "enemy" naval bombers swept over the isthmus tonight in surprise maneuvers simulating simultaneous air raids on the Atlantic and Pacific entrances to the Panama Canal.

The "attacking force" made up of U. S. naval planes, dropped flares to indicate bombs. Antiaircraft batteries strung along the canal sprang into action but there was no report on the results of the sudden meneuver. It was said, however, that the "raiders" swept repeatedly over the vital points of the canal.

Britain Takes Cue From Axis Foes

Love Letters Wad Cartridges, Tin Cans Become Tanks in Waste Material Round-up

By the Associated Press

London, July 26.—The government embarked on a program tonight to make everything useful—even old love letters for cartridge wads.

Making collection of waste paper and food, bones and metal compulsory, the government took a cue from Germany and Italy, which long have made a specialty of utilizing discarded material.

"We can turn old love letters into cartridge wads, meat bones into explosives, tin cans into tanks and garden tools into guns, and we will do it," declared Supply Minister Herbert Morrison.

The government rule requires local authorities to pick up waste from householders but the householders are not compelled to give it.

Nazi Blitzkreig Against Boredom

Berlin, July 26 (AP).—Some 420,000 German actors, opera-singers, music-hall entertainers have indicated willingness to forego their vacations this year in order to entertain German troops wherever they may be stationed.

Walter Hinkel, Reichs custodian of culture, said he was kept busy deploying orchestras and troupes of players on many fronts, shifting dancers, singers, cartoonists and other entertainers back and forth in a blitzkrieg against boredom.

Whole trains of entertainers were sent to Narvik, he said, including plenty of Tyrolese yodelers—for the troops there are chiefly mountaineers accustomed to Alpine amusements.

Since the beginning of the war, Hinkel said, about 30,000,000 spectators have attended the various performances offered in camps and garrisons.

Shoeless Farmer Captures Invader

London, July 26 (AP).—In his stocking feet, an English farmer, B. J. Parsons, 47, captured a German bomber in southwest England today.

Seeing the Nazi airman parachute to earth, Parsons grabbed up a double-barreled shotgun and raced across his farmyard to make the seizure.

Cardinal Prays For Italian Armies

Milan, Italy, July 26.—During a visit to the military barracks in the central station here last Wednesday Cardinal Schuster prayed that "God be with our dear soldiers; Divine grace aid them in the faithful accomplishment of their duty and Divine goodness bring them unharmed to their home," according to the Corriere Della Sera today.

The newspaper writes that in a brief address to the soldiers Cardinal Schuster said "he was glad to be among them and reminded the secretary of the Fascio that when that official left for the front he gave him a medal which brought luck to the Italian armies."

Blitz Kills Chickens, Red Cross Benefits

London, July 26.—During a battle between a Nazi bomber and a British fighter over a farm in southeast England, two chickens were killed by machine-gun bullets from the enemy plane. The butcher who owned the chickens decided that the casualties should benefit the Red Cross.

Accordingly, he sold one of the chickens for £10 and put up the other as a prize in a raffle. By today 4 pounds 5 shillings 6 pence had been realized. The books will close tomorrow.

'Swing' Leader Saves London Philharmonic

London, July 26.—The London Philharmonic Orchestra which, because of the war, was threatened with financial ruin and was about to close down, has been saved from extinction by Jack Hylton, well-known British dance band leader.

Hylton has concluded arrangements to "present" the orchestra on a tour in the largest theaters throughout the country. The philharmonic will stay in each town for a week, presenting two different programs daily. The four begins at Glasgow, August 12.

Geneva And Princeton

The form of Joseph Avenol's resignation from his post as Secretary General of the League of Nations is tantamount to an official admission that the permanent organization at Geneva is breaking up. As M. Avenol says, there is no longer any conformity between his ostensible duties and "the realities of the situation."

The executive head of the League secretariat makes plain, however, that only the political work which for 20 years has been centered at Geneva need be liquidated. The technical services, in common with everyone familiar with their value, M. Avenol is eager to see continued. This vital part of League activities, he says, "could be adapted to the needs of the hour while achieving substantial economies."

Two weeks ago Princeton University, acting in cooperation with the Princeton Institute for Advanced Study and the Princeton division of the Rockefeller Institute, formally offered the League's technical services housing at that educational institution for the duration of the war. It seems probable that M. Avenol's resignation will facilitate acceptance of that offer. And it is certainly to be hoped that a great American university may have the honor of preserving, for the tremendous task of postwar reconstruction, this well-organized and efficient mechanism of international collaboration.

The technical sections of the secretariat which have been invited to locate at Princeton are three in number. They are those dealing with Public Health; with Narcotics Control, and with Financial and Economic Problems. In all these international activities the United States Government has for years shown active interest, and has given continuous official participation. The research and statistical work of these technical sections is an invaluable supplement to studies carried on by various national governments. It furthers an exchange of information, and a coordination of effort in such work as the prevention of plagues, which is obviously desirable for all mankind.

As long as these services were established at Geneva under the supervision of the League's Secretary General, it was asking a good deal to have him favor their decentralization. But with M. Avenol's resignation, and his simultaneous plea for continuation of the technical work, the greatest obstacle to the proposed transfer to Princeton is removed.

It would be very helpful to this important unofficial undertaking if President Roosevelt could now see his way clear to issue a statement indorsing the Princeton invitation, and if Congress would pass a resolution welcoming the prospect that this small group of international scientists may find sanctuary for their work on American soil.

Floating Fire Hazards

One man lost his life and six persons were painfully burned in two local motorboat explosions Thursday night. A similar fatal accident occurred recently in Baltimore Harbor. They are all too frequent.

Proper construction and use of boat engines would prevent such accidents, and observance of safety measures would in many cases avert tragic results. Officials of the Marine Inspection and Navigation Bureau call attention to the fact that gasoline employed in a confined space—for instance, to prime a motor—may easily explode. Care with cigarettes and matches is not enough. The gas formed in the bilge may be ignited by a spark from defective wiring or even from a nail in the heel of a shoe.

The Department of Commerce has endeavored to improve safety regulations for motorboats. A new law requires, for larger craft, special carburetors to prevent flare-backs and bilge ventilation to keep gas from accumulating.

This rule, however, applies only to newly built boats of the 65-foot class and over. Beyond the carrying of life preservers and fire extinguishers, operators of small boats are on their own. These navigators, as a matter of elementary common sense, should inspect their engines regularly for gas leaks and bad wires, provide safe carburetors, avoid priming motors in closed spaces, and install some means of ventilating bilges.

Inspection officials also urge that motor boaters, when going on a cruise, place life preservers where they will be easily accessible. When an explosion occurs, there is often no time to delve into a locker.

Europe's Food Outlook

New Italian restrictions on the consumption of meat and bread, heavy slaughter of Danish livestock and serious crop shortages in France are announced simultaneously in dispatches from Europe. They are harbingers of the situation that awaits Europe during the coming winter, when millions are certain to feel the pinch of hunger.

Living standards will be dangerously lowered and unbalanced and insufficient diets will undoubtedly take heavy toll of human life, especially children and old people. But it is less certain that actual starvation will kill any very large proportion of the 400,000,000 people of the continent, outside Russia, even if continuation of the war is assumed.

Unofficial reports to the Department of Agriculture indicate that the European wheat harvest will probably be the smallest in a decade, due to bad weather and to military operations. But considerable stores of wheat are said to be on hand in Germany, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland. Moreover, a good part of Europe depends upon rye as a bread grain and, to some extent, on corn. Very little of these grains normally have to be imported.

It is generally agreed that the most serious shortages are in fats and oils. Without oil cake for livestock the slaughtering of animals becomes imperative, with the result that milk and meat supplies are reduced. However, Prof. John D. Black of Harvard, formerly chief economist for the Federal Farm Board, says in an article in the current Atlantic Monthly that under present conditions the slaughter of Danish livestock is "good food strategy." Diversion of grain to direct human use yields larger quantities of food than when used to feed animals.

On the basis of reports made to the Department of Agriculture, Prof. Black concludes that Europe might be able to feed itself until the 1941 crops are harvested. "Assuming," he says, "that the reserves now on hand are no larger than estimated in this country, it may possibly be able to endure by slaughtering livestock freely, reserving all wheat and rye for bread uses, and diverting a million bushels of barley, oats and corn to direct human use." Nevertheless, the deficiency of fats and oils threatens to prove a grave menace to the health of the people.

Quite as important as the actual supplies of foodstuffs, so far as the populace is concerned, are the policies followed in distributing them. Germany is in a position to control distribution of supplies in occupied areas. And if she chooses to feed her own people adequately at the expense of others, actual starvation will no doubt be widespread. If, on the other hand, the Germans plan to deal generously with the conquered, food can be made to stretch much farther, especially if rationing is instituted for all.

A war-torn world in which millions of people living in one continent are faced by near famine, while the nations of the Western Hemisphere debate how to dispose of agricultural surpluses, is not much of a tribute to the alleged intelligence of the human animal.

Step By Step

When men are drafted into the service of their country, it is only just that they should be protected against the loss of jobs. Consequently, the Senate Military Affairs Committee has added an amendment to the military service bill providing for the prosecution of employers who refuse to reinstate men after they have completed their training.

If men are drafted, Senator Lee concludes quite logically, capital must also be, subject to conscription. So he has introduced a bill authorizing the President to establish a plan for "drafting the use of money according to each individual's ability to lend."

Taken in conjunction with the proposal to draft men in peacetimes and later force possibly unwilling employers to restore their jobs, Senator Lee's bill is, or ought to be, thought-provoking. It indicates how easily, indeed how inevitably, one form of Government coercion leads to demands for more Government interference in private affairs.

The United States is ostensibly arming for the defense of our system of free enterprise. That means freedom to work or to quit work; freedom to employ men or not to hire them; freedom to spend money or to hoard it. These privileges are already hedged about by many legislative restrictions upon liberty of action. But it has been our fond belief that in times of peace the individual's existing rights should not be further curtailed unless the necessity has been fully demonstrated.

We should, therefore, be very sure that a peacetime draft of our man power is absolutely essential for adequate national defense before abandoning reliance upon voluntary enlistments. For we shall not stop with the selective draft. Once we begin to conscript men, we shall soon find effective reasons for proceeding further along the lines of that hated totalitarianism which we are already beginning to imitate.

It would be well for the rich to realize in advance that once we go socialistic with the lives of men we shall not long remain individualistic toward the rights of wealth.

Mercy Ships

The growing demand that American ships, under all possible precautions, should be made available for bringing children from European war zones is evidenced by the approval which the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday extended to such action. The bill, approved unanimously by the committee, provides that any "mercy ship" employed for this purpose must have a safe conduct extended by all the belligerent nations.

This procedure will of itself take so long that the Administration might reasonably, without further delay, move to obtain agreement in principle for this policy from Germany, Great Britain and Italy. President Roosevelt said yesterday that such action might well be taken a little later. But it is difficult to see the reasons for delay.

There will, of course, be a certain amount of risk in the undertaking. Undoubtedly there are floating mines off the coast of Europe no longer amenable to the control of any government. But there will be plenty of American shipowners and sailors willing to take the risks for themselves, with or without the insurance which should of course be extended. And it goes without saying that the parents of any refugee children will know the dangers which the crossing would involve. They will, in each individual case, weigh those risks against those of keeping their little ones at home. It is most unlikely that any decisions on the subject would be made with any illusions.

All that can be expected from our own Government is that it should act in response to public demand to facilitate a humanitarian service which many in this country would like to extend, and which many in Europe would like to accept. The President is right in saying that great responsibility is involved. But that is equally true if we failed to take action while the toll of bombing raids mounts rapidly higher.

Closed Down By Heat

In less than an hour after they had reported for work in their wretchedly ventilated offices yesterday, 14 employes of the General Accounting Office collapsed from the heat. By half-past-ten the place had become so intolerable to all concerned that it was necessary to close up shop.

And again yesterday several other Government bureaus were obliged to close at noon. No doubt the employes were too weary and too grateful for these respites to speculate upon the riddle of why virtually all Government buildings must be situated in the lowest, muggiest hollows of a city famous for the man-killing ferocity of its midsummers. It is even less likely that they tried to guess by what logic Government architects persuade themselves that buildings suitable to the genial summers of Potsdam and Versailles are also suitable for the quasi-tropical climate of Washington.

Anyhow, it is too late to do anything about those matters. But the recent decision not to proceed with the air conditioning of the various Government buildings seems to deserve a careful reconsideration. The reason given for the decision was economy. It is a fair bet objective statisticians can prove the saving to be much less than the cumulative cost of squandering, day after day, and summer after summer, so many of the working hours of so many thousands of employes.

Emily Post At The Wheel

From the Detroit News

Emily Post, whom we commonly associate with such questions as which is the right tool for tackling artichokes, and whether the free throw is legal when eating salted nuts, has issued a set of six rules for motorists, appearing in This Week. At first blush, Em might be thought to be out of her orbit, and yet, on second thought, it seems entirely proper that she concern herself with driving manners.

"Courtesy Makes Safety," says the sign seen everywhere on buses; and it is so. Manners have everything to do with safety on the streets. Miss Post's list of Don'ts include hogging the road; parking so that cars before and behind cannot maneuver easily; presuming on the chivalry of men, if one is a woman driver; leaving bright lights on to blind the oncoming driver; paging the girl friend with a horn from the curb, and drinking before driving. Nothing new—but having the new authority of the Post imprimatur.

Many an evil—like drink—is better controlled by the force of accepted custom than of statutes. If Em can get it across that wild driving and the like are social errors as well as violations of the law, she will have rendered a great public service. It is strange that she and her recognized power for good have not been enlisted in the field before now.

U. S. Intelligence

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The strictures of The Post regarding the renomination of President Roosevelt are fully justified by the facts. His whole attitude is that of one who underrates the intelligence of the American people. He does this first by the assumption that in the entire country no one else is capable of heading the Government; in the second place by waving aside the idea so deeply ingrained in the minds of America's best citizens against a third-term occupancy of the highest public office.

Men and women throughout the land are in open revolt against the implied insult to their intelligence. It isn't necessary for a man to have studied at Groton and Harvard to see through the specious nature of the New Dealers' appeal to the voters for a continuance in power; they have abused the power too flagrantly to be trusted with it longer; one man domination smacks overmuch of the methods of the archenemies of humanity in Europe. Under Salazar

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dorothy Thompson recently wrote that there is internal dissension in Portugal. She failed to tell the reading public, however, that there is less internal dissension under Salazar than was the case during the chaotic period between 1910 and 1926, when there were 18 revolutions and 40 different governments! Instead of insinuating that things are not so hot in Portugal today, Dorothy Thompson should have praised the splendid record of Salazar, who has made Portugal 100 times more orderly and more prosperous and more self-sufficient than it was when today's "malcontents" had the control of things. Three Candidates

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Would you be so kind as to publish the following ruminations of an old-time Virginia Democrat?

Never thought I would live to see the day when the old Democratic Party would cease to exist. Doesn't seem as if it's democratic any more.

After many years of voting it's hard to make a change, but I guess it's better to vote for a democratic Republican than for a left-wing Democrat.

Folks would have liked it better if Roosevelt hadn't beaten around the bush and had honestly said he believed he was the only man in the country that was big enough to run the job.

First Democratic convention that didn't have plenty of free and open battles; wouldn't be democratic if they didn't. Never heard of a Democratic convention when the delegates had their choice of voting yes or else; seems more like what we heard about Germany.

Guess I will have to split my ticket for the first time in my life, and vote with a prayer for my country and for forgiveness of my ancestors who died with Lee. They will understand my choice between the continuation of our free and open government and the first definite step toward a dictatorship.

Hope there are enough other Southern Democrats who will put their country before their party. We won't be far wrong, because this man Willkie was born and brought up on the democratic principles of Thomas Jefferson, and he hasn't been with the Republicans long enough to be contaminated.

JOHN C. BOYCE.

Washington, July 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems that the people are raising a hullabaloo about the third term, and a great many of the old guard and Roosevelt haters are taking a walk. I suspect, however, it is not as much the third term, which is used as a smoke screen, as it is the fact that Roosevelt has been renominated and they realize it is impossible to beat him.

In regard to the third term, I find nothing in the Constitution against it, nor do I see that the so-called tradition is so sacrosanct. There are three coordinate branches of the Government: the legislative, the administrative and the judicial. The Congressional has no limitations as to second, third or fourth terms, nor have I heard any Congressional voice raised against their perpetuation in office. In fact, some of them have been continually in office until the senility of old age has rendered them unfit for service. Nor do I hear any objection to the continuity of services of the members of the judiciary, who are appointed for life, without any restrictions as to service or provision for retirement. Then why should the administrative be the only branch of the Government where the inhibition should apply? If you have a good President in office, who has done a good job, whose heart beats in harmony with the common man and who has thorough knowledge of foreign policies of the Government, and at this particular time, why should we displace him for an untried neophyte, who, however competent he may have been as a businessman, does not necessarily possess the qualities to steer the ship of state through the perilous waters that lie ahead?

George Washington did not raise any objections to a third term if circumstances justified it, nor Hamilton, who is the guardian angel of the Republican Party. And I suspect if Jefferson were alive today and realized the critical situation that confronts us, he, too, would be in favor of the third term and work for Roosevelt's election in November. WELLINGTON SMITH.

Washington, July 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Liberals may hope that the New Deal would continue on its path. Progressives may hope that Willkie would return to the radicalism of his youth. Liberals and progressives may pray for these things but they had better vote for Norman Thomas.

We urge American citizens to take the aggressive stand of the Socialist Party in this campaign. Joining with the Republicans means attacking labor, attacking democracy, preparing this country for a brand of American fascism which will be no more able to withstand the attacks of foreign fascism than was that of France. Joining the Democrats means joining a polyglot party, whose reactionary membership cannot be distinguished in any essential from the Republicans, and whose progressive membership is in full retreat.

The Socialists would place power in the hands of the great American people, in full confidence that the patriotism of that people, their wisdom and idealism, would enable them to use that power for the benefit of the whole Nation, rather than for the benefit of a privileged few. PAUL SIMMONS.

Secretary, Young People's Socialist League, Washington Circle.

No Champion

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me there is a great deal of unearned military glory ascribed to a Mr. Hitler by newspapermen in general.

It is not so much his superiority as others' inferiority that has won his so-called victories so far.

Allegorically speaking, Hitler is the world's heavyweight champion pugilist by reason of the fact he has never lost a fight.

Let's examine his record by the same rules we do other champions. Whom has he beaten and what qualifications as fighters had his opponents?

For the sake of comparison we will say Hitler the champion weighs 200 pounds, has been in training seven years and is in perfect condition.

His first victory was over a Mr. Austria, a fair comparison in weight would be 20 pounds. He had no training at all and not even a notice of a fight. Mr. Austria was sick in bed and Mr. Hitler choked him to death right there.

His next was over Mr. Czechecko (for short), who was a 22-pounder. There was no fight at all and the umpire, being in Mr. Hitler's employ, just counted the other out.

The next two were Messrs. Denmark and Holland. Great-Man Hitler sneaked in their back doors and murdered them in bed. They were about the same comparative weight as his previous victims.

His next personally selected opponent was a Mr. Belgium. He being a little bigger than his previous victims, the champion wanting to be sure of not tarnishing his reputation as a victor, sent some mutual friends to visit Mr. Belgium in his home with instructions to open the backdoor at night and let him in to beat him before he waked up.

His next and only challenged opponent was Mr. France, who was about half Mr. Hitler's size, but who was entirely unfit to fight even an opponent of his own size on account of a creeping, internal, incurable malady known as political anemia, complicated with dementia.

Mr. France, for a sick man, did very well, as he lasted three rounds and did some severe damage to the champion's whole anatomy.

The champion's next engagement is with a Mr. England and when he gets in the ring with him he will not only know he is in a fight but he is going to know he is licked when he is carried out.

The American people have gone hysterical over Mr. Hitler as they did over stocks in 1929, when they ran U. S. Steel up to $250 a share and said "There ain't goin' to be no more depressions." C. E. BLUE.

New Deal 'Cudgels'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Everywhere fearful New Dealers have the cudgels out and along the dark alleys of politics lie in wait for Wendell Willkie.

Labels that would fit without alteration if applied to themselves, are used to discredit the opposition, with politics' usual fine consistency.

Charges calculated with a fine disdain of truth or fitness, are flung broadcast in the hope that they'll lodge in the brains of enough subsidized followers, enough benefactors of New Deal grandiosity, to insure the third victory in a row.

Already yells are being heard from those disappointed because a set-up was not chosen to make it easy for Mr. Roosevelt, that the convention at Philadelphia was a job of acting.

Combating flame with flame is a tried method of the Forestry Service. Has it become a crime to pit showmanship against showmanship? Or is the process unethical unless all the showmanship is monopolized by one side—the New Deal side?

New London Acts, Then Lives Play

In Washington this week an audience of prominent persons viewed the world premiere of "The Ramparts We Watch;" in New London, Conn., the film's characters are playing in real life the same parts they enacted on the screen. They are again watching the ramparts.

New London is the "typical American town" chosen by the March of Time as the locale for its historic feature. Picturesquely located on the southern shore of Connecticut just where the Thames River meets Long Island Sound, it is an enterprising town of 30,000 people. It is the home of the submarine base, the United States Coast Guard Academy, and other naval activities. A beautiful harbor, white sand beaches, quaint lighthouses, old colonial homes and marines' trinkets at every turn qualify the town for its place as one of New England's most attractive seacoast spots.

As its English namesake, New London in New England, on the banks of another Thames, now finds itself suddenly awakened to forces in the world other than the quiet enjoyment of life. It is a strange quirk of fate that early last fall as the townspeople were beginning to notice that their stately old elms were once again emblazoning the countryside in a riot of colors, the movie people should have moved in to have these carefree New Englanders play-act the parts the coming year was to have them perform in actual life.

These "decent, kindly, everyday folk," as the advertisements of the film describe them, turned at once to the movie as a source of fun and revenue, but the film had little significance to any of the townspeople beyond this. Twenty-five dollars for the privilege of uttering one line or $5 just to stand for a short while with a group of one's friends and nod were not to be spurned. Excitment had come to quiet, conservative, peaceful New London.

It was amazing to see these ordinarily indifferent New Englanders having the time of their lives "acting in the movies." Students in the high schools, businessmen on State street, "society" women, laborers, the kid next door bored with small-town life and about to leave for the big city, ministers, even the serious-minded heads of some of the schools in town—all joined in the fun, all became movie actors!

The films had taken over the town. Traffic was halted a whole day on the main business thoroughfare while the peace-parade scenes were shot. The once quiet railroad station by the water became a bedlam of movie directors shouting orders, cameras clicking and townspeople dressed in 1914 styles waving goodbye to "soldier boys" while brass bands played.

That was last year. This year the town has been taken over again—but not by the March of Time. Life had not stopped while movie producers filmed one period in history. Events following that period had been rapidly sending the world tottering. Hitler invaded Poland; England and France declared war on Germany; Russia invaded Finland, and New London was having fun filming World War No. 1.

This year as the crocuses pushed through the moist earth, a threat loomed over the heads of the townspeople, once again disturbing their calm. The "decent, kindly, everyday folk" who had had so much fun being themselves in the movies began to realize that the scenes they had played were the same scenes they would now have to live.

The Coast Guard Academy on the hill was announcing that the number of cadets it would enroll for the coming year would be tripled. Visitors were banned at the Electric Boat Co., where submarines were being manufactured for the United States—"Government orders" the newspaper said. More submarines daily glided up the river to the submarine base on the river's east bank. Huge, grim-looking battleships came and went in the harbor. There was talk about building a munitions plant. The Dies Committee was hunting someone at the submarine manufacturing company.

New London, chosen a year before as the scene of a story to show the effect of the first World War upon typical American small-town life, is now showing the effects of a world at war for the second time. The city editor of the town newspaper will soon leave the job he has held since the last war to answer to the mobilization call of the National Guard.

Many of those husky looking machine workers in the film, who rode out a period of unemployment by acting in the movies last fall, today are busy in the machine shops of the Electric Boat Co. working night and day to turn out a new Government order of 18 submarines. Some of the film's townspeople are now members of a committee chosen to draw up plans for housing to accommodate the families of the service people who are being stationed in increasing numbers in the town.

Talk of housing plans for service men brings to mind the pretty white wooden cottages with their green shutters and little parks that dot the hill on the northwest end of town. Occupied by civilians today, they were built during the last war to house the large number of Army and Navy men stationed in New London.

The story about New London's vulnerable position on the Atlantic Seaboard has been revived and fathers tell wide-eyed youngsters of the German submarine that entered the harbor in the last war.

And so the once carefree, everyday people of an ordinary American town watch the ramparts, now understanding the message of the story they were asked to enact.

Sample Of Effrontery

THE EFFRONTERY of some professional unioneers who hold positions of power in the American Federation of Labor is demonstrated by a recent incident in Cincinnati, where the Central Labor Council attempted to suppress disclosures of corruption in A. F. of L. unions in the columns of the Cincinnati Post. The council formerly included among its trustees Mr. John Dempsey, now risen to the fiduciary post of treasurer of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers. Mr. Dempsey is a faithless and disgraced ex-cop of the Cincinnati police force, who still owes the Federal Government a fine of $1,000 imposed on his plea of guilty of conspiracy to violate the Prohibition Act.

It is common practice among the boss unioneers to publish union papers, usually at the expense of the workers, in which they praise themselves and boast of their achievements on behalf of the rank and file and furiously denounce as labor-baiting any attempt to expose crookedness and oppression among the leaders. The Labor Council of Cincinnati publishes a weekly of this description called the Chronicle, which, in its issue of May 24, reported that a committee had been sent to warn the editor of the Post that "rabid and sensational inferences and generalizations attacking organized labor could not be interpreted in any other way except as a move hostile to the interest of wage earners."

INDICATIVE of the council's contempt for rank-and-file sentiment was the fact that this committee was composed almost exclusively of representatives of unions which are notorious for the crookedness and brutality of certain of their leaders. There were two representatives from the racket known as the Stagehands' and Movie Employes' Union, and one from the Union of Building Service Employes, whose gangster president, George Scalese, was dropped only after his vicious character and associations were disclosed in these dispatches.

There was one member from the Bartenders Union which, in the Miamis and Chicago, is a racket of the Capone-Nitti mob of underworld terrorists and one from the notorious Glaziers' Union, whose members have been preyed upon by some of the most rapacious criminals that ever stole the food off a toiler's table. In addition to these representatives of unions, which are fouled with criminality, the committee included the president and secretary of the council.

In the words of The Chronicle, the committee informed the editor of the Post of "the vehement exception taken to the present policy of carrying what the union insists are rabid and baseless inferences against unionism."

IN THE ISSUE of June 7 the Chronicle carried a story which said the policy of the Scripps-Howard papers, in exposing criminality in the leadership of A. F. of L. unions, "consistently dealt in mud carried under the signature of Westbrook Pegler." This story said that "further steps against this policy, branded as cheap labor-baiting, were voted into the hands of the executive board."

The "rabid and baseless inferences against unionism" and the "cheap labor-baiting" have consisted of flat, unqualified proof that specific individuals in A. F. of L. unions had preyed on prostitutes, had acquired their positions of power without any vote by the rank and file, and had been guilty of oppressing rank-and-file workers and of selling them out to employers.

As in the case of the renegade policeman, Mr. Dempsey, still a power in the Cincinnati Labor Council, whose record was revealed after the threat to the Cincinnati Post, the proof of moral unworthiness to represent decent American citizens was factual and uncompromising, not inferential and rabid. The Labor Council knew that recently, in Louisville, only a short drive from Cincinnati, William Green, president of the A. F. of L., and George Browne, a confirmed associate of low criminals and president of the so-called Stagehands' Union, had indorsed the union leadership of an old pander of the Capone mob and a dangerous Capone stick-up man, notwithstanding factual proof of their character and of the fact that neither of these criminals ever was elected to union office by the rank and file.

Under these circumstances the Cincinnati Central Labor Council has had the cynical effrontery to attempt to silence the Cincinnati Post as an enemy of labor.

Strength, Weakness Of Havana Plan

ON MARCH 19, 1920, the Senate finally refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles, primarily because such action would have made the United States a member of the League of Nations. Now, 20 years later, this Government has proposed a long step toward the creation of another league, more limited in scope, but also with more of those superstate characteristics which were once so strongly condemned in the Geneva organization.

In his momentous speech at Havana on Monday Secretary Hull did not state categorically that the time has come to establish an American League of Nations. But he strongly intimated as much when he said that the objective of the current Pan-American Conference "is to safeguard the independence, the peace and the well-being of the American republics." And he confirmed that impression by his statement that "the Government of the United States indorses" the principle of "a collective trusteeship" for European colonies in the New World.

Let us consider some of the implications, not all immediately apparent, of that very remarkable and far-reaching declaration of policy, to implement which a draft convention is now being considered at Havana.

II

THE IDEA of a "collective trusteeship" for territory separated from its former ownership is one which traces directly to the mandate system established by the Covenant of the League of Nations. The principle involved is proclaimed in the first paragraph of Article 22 of that famous international charter. This paragraph says:

To those colonies and territories which as a consequence of the late war have ceased to be under the sovereignty of the states which formally governed them and which are inhabited by peoples not yet able to stand by themselves under the strenuous conditions of the modern world, there should be applied the principle that the well-being and development of such peoples form a sacred trust of civilization and that securities for the performance of this trust should be embodied in this Covenant.

In the Geneva scheme each "sacred trust of civilization," perhaps more honored in the breach than the observance, was placed in the hands of a single mandatory power. And the only definite check on the exercise of the mandate by that power consisted in an annual report to the League received, and often sharply criticized, by the Permanent Mandates Commission.

The scheme proposed by Secretary Hull at Havana is more advanced. There is no idealistic claim that the trusteeship envisaged would be "sacred" but there is the very realistic safeguard of collective supervision. Each mandate, said Mr. Hull on Monday, would "be exercised in the name of all of the American republics."

The draft convention submitted by the United States delegation the following day (July 23) seeks to confirm this plan to joint trusteeship. Sovereignty over the mandated area would be exercised by a committee composed of one representative from each of as many of the 21 American republics as ratify the convention. The actual functions of local government would be supervised by international officials responsible to this committee.

This, of course, represents an enormous development in the field of Pan-American cooperation. The mandates proposal advanced by the United States delegation at the current Havana conference is of an altogether different character from the cooperative technical agencies, such as the Inter-American Bank, so far suggested. Even though supported by the treasuries of the various New World nations this Inter-American Bank would have no direct political powers.

But the Inter-American Mandates Committee, proposed by the United States this week, would have clear-cut governing powers exercised through international officials responsible to it alone. This mandate committee would possess absolute sovereignty over territory and its inhabitants.

Sovereignty implies government. And government necessitates governmental organization. If the plan which we are sponsoring at Havana is approved a permanent political mechanism, similar to but more authoritative than that established by the League of Nations at Geneva, will have to be set up. Periodic Pan-American conferences will no longer serve the purpose.

A permanent secretariat and a career service of international officials will have to be created for this American League of Nations. Whether at Havana or elsewhere extraterritorial offices, emblematic of the new system of inter-American government, will have to be established for those whom the new function of territorial control is assigned.

III

MORE THAN THIS, however, is implied in the proposal sponsored by Secretary Hull at Havana. A trusteeship must have authority to make its operations effective. And a collective trusteeship must have collective authority behind it.

Under the mandate system of the Geneva League the individual mandatory provided this authority and the power to give it substance. Since the Palestine mandate was entrusted to Great Britain, British troops have had the responsibility of enforcing order in Palestine. Similarly the French government has had the authority, and has used it very vigorously, to police Syria.

But Mr. Hull's proposal at Havana is specifically opposed to this system of a single-nation trustee. "The establishment of a collective trusteeship for any region," he says, "must not carry with it any thought of the creation of a special interest by any American republic. The purpose of a collective trusteeship must be to further the interests and security of all of the American nations, as well as the interest of the region in question."

It follows that an inter-American trusteeship for European colonies in the New World must have not only a mechanism of international government to operate it but also an international police to insure effectiveness for that operation. And the need for such inter-American military and naval protection is clearly envisaged by the mandates resolution now pending before the Havana conference.

The United States, in other words, is proposing an American League of Nations with more actual governing power than was ever obtained by the Geneva League. And we further propose to create for this new league an international military and naval support of a type never seriously contemplated at Geneva. Fundamentally, that is why Argentina opposes the program—with much the same reasoning as was used in this country to oppose the Geneva League of 20 years ago.

IV

THE ARGENTINE attitude emphasizes the fact that the mandates proposal raised by Secretary Hull at Havana is subject to two important discounts.

In the first place, it is hypothetical, insofar as it envisages a disposition of Danish, Dutch, French and even British possessions in this hemisphere before their present ownership has even been called in question. In the second place, there is no reason why any American country with close European ties should be disposed to accept a scheme with such drastic implications as that which our Government has suggested.

In his speech on Monday Secretary Hull made plain that his "collective trusteeship" proposal is contingent on developments. The United States, he said, "is prepared to cooperate, should occasion arise, in its execution." And there is no doubt that one thought behind the mandates idea is that promoting it will of itself make the contingency envisaged less probable.

On the other hand, the fact remains that our Government is working hard to have the scheme approved in such a way that it might at any time be placed in actual operation. This is not bluff. The Department of State is ready and willing to turn this collective mandate proposal, with all that it implies, into reality. Therefore, whether this particular move to establish an American League of Nations goes through or not, the objective must be regarded as the considered policy of the Roosevelt Administration.

The reaction of the other American republics to the idea is vital to its practical success. Argentina, whose delegates have already referred caustically to "hasty improvizations" and "measures based on hypothesis," is openly opposed. For one reason, if there is to be any change in the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands the government at Buenos Aires wants it to be in favor of Argentina alone.

Newfoundland may similarly be expected to have its own ideas about any attempt to internationalize French islands adjacent to the coast of that self-governing British colony. And Canadians may very properly inquire whether we intend to suggest that a mixed commission of Haitians, Paraguayans and Ecuadoreans might be called in to supervise the government of that great dominion, in the event of a German victory.

Merely to raise these points is sufficient to show that Secretary Hull's far-reaching proposal is still far from fruition. But that does not minimize the significance of the proposal. And emphasizing that significance, in view of the strong tradition which demands unanimity in international undertakings, is the suggestion of the United States delegation that the mandates proposal be declared ready for operation as soon as ratified by an as yet unspecified number of American republics.

Our Government is certainly in a position to realize how easily one recalcitrant nation can block constructive international agreement. But it is ironic to realize that at Havana we are sponsoring a league of nations from which the action of our own Senate may again exclude us.

In that case it would be theoretically possible, under the convention we have proposed, that commissioners from Brazil, Cuba and Venezuela might come to govern the Bahama Islands, regardless of the feelings of the Duchess of Windsor.

White House Press Conference Notes

IT WAS PRESIDENT Roosevelt's first press conference in Washington following his third nomination. (There had been one at Hyde Park.) Washington was hot; it was Washington's worst. In the outer lobby of the executive office, where the newspapermen wait for the conference, there was a faint penumbra of coolness from the air-conditioning plant. But in the President's office, the presence of some 200 persons, each a human heat generator, operating at 98.2 degrees Fahrenheit, overcame the valiance of the cooling mechanism. It was too hot for anything to happen, and nothing did.

Mr. Roosevelt, initiating the conference, said he had no news except to announce he was going down the Potomac for the week-end and on Monday would inspect naval defense activities in eastern Virginia.

From the newspapermen, the first question was about the action of our Government with reference to exports of petroleum and scrap metal. The newsman used the word "embargo." This Mr. Roosevelt reproved. He said that word had appeared in many newspaper stories, and especially in headlines—Mr. Roosevelt is a frequent corrector of headline writers. It was not an embargo, he said; it was merely that these commodities have been put under a license system. One reason, he said, was that we wish to conserve for ourselves the special kind of gasoline used for aviation.

There was a question about Secretary Wallace, whether and when he would resign. This Mr. Roosevelt answered with an anecdote out of his own experience. He was himself nominated for Vice President in 1920, while occupying the office of Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Wilson's Administration. Mr. Roosevelt went to Wilson to discuss whether he should resign. Wilson said he had had occasion in the past to consider whether a Government servant nominated for a high elective office ought to resign and had concluded that resignation is the proper course. As to the proper time for resignation, Wilson asked how soon Mr. Roosevelt was going to begin campaigning. Mr. Roosevelt said that on a certain date he would start on a speech-making trip to the West. Wilson thought the proper date for resignation would be the day before beginning the campaign trip. Applying all this to Mr. Wallace and the present, Mr. Roosevelt seemed to think the proper date for resignation would be when Mr. Wallace starts on his first campaign trip.

There was a question about Mr. Roosevelt's conference the day before with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. That was about the excess profits tax. There was a question about who would be the new national chairman of the Democratic Party. Mr. Roosevelt had no answer. Would Mr. Roosevelt go to the Havana conference in person? The answer was no. Was the rumor true that Mr. Roosevelt had been asked to try to bring about peace in Europe? Mr. Roosevelt had not heard of it. Had Mr. Roosevelt anything to say about the story from England that America is going to produce, some time, 3,000 planes a month for that country? Mr. Roosevelt had not the faintest idea about it.

THERE WAS a question about the proposal that British refugee children be brought to America in American ships, since England lacks the necessary ships and the naval convoy to accompany them. Mr. Roosevelt said that some thought is being given to it. The heart of the matter, he said, is the safety of the children. One gathered that Mr. Roosevelt was reluctant to take a chance of several hundred children on an American ship being sunk by the Germans.

Did Mr. Roosevelt have any further program of legislation for Congress, such as would keep it in session? Mr. Roosevelt could think of nothing important except the compulsory military service bill. There might be further requests for appropriations, not large and not possible to anticipate. But Mr. Roosevelt wanted it understood he was not suggesting that Congress go home—that was for Congress to decide. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt receded from what he felt some weeks ago, that Congress might as well go home in late June.

MOST OF THE QUESTIONS were listless, the answers limp; the correspondents without animation, the President without verve. Only once did Mr. Roosevelt stir himself. One of the correspondents, a woman, asked, rather abruptly, "Who thought up that idea of Mrs. Roosevelt going to the Chicago convention?" At once Mr. Roosevelt was defensively alert. He made an answer that was frankly a parry, designed to avoid revealment. When asked if that was the only answer he had, he replied that that was the only answer. One gathers that some details of that "draft Roosevelt" movement, of the third nomination and the way it was brought about, are matters which Mr. Roosevelt would prefer not to discuss. Yet, considering the momentousness of the departure from the third-term tradition, this is something about which many questions will be asked during this campaign and by future historians.

Knudsen's Report

Here is the text of the statement by William S. Knudsen, of the National Defense Commission, on the progress of the defense program to date:

SINCE THE DEFENSE Commission was appointed by the President eight weeks ago, this department has sought to lay a solid foundation upon which the resources of industry would be coordinated. At the same time, every effort has been made to expedite current contracts for defense materiel.

Progress in connection with the first objective has been substantial and, with the continuing cooperation of industry and the interested Government agencies, we can be confident of a production machine capable of attaining the definite goal specifically stated in the request now before the Congress for funds to equip completely a modern army of 2,000,000 men. This can be accomplished just as fast as the best production facilities and techniques in the world can gain momentum through favorable Congressional action upon this augmented program.

Navy (from June 6 through July 25)	1,412,807,677.87
Totals	$1,728,195,829.95

THERE ARE PROBLEMS and responsiblities in mechanical production which, naturally, are not thoroughly comprehended by the general public.

What may seem to some as unnecessary delay is almost always, in reality, a period of basic preparation necessary to sound achievement. For example, much has been said in the press and on the air about tanks and tank construction. I am sure, however, that few people realize that before actual production can start, months of effort must be expended upon design alone. Our tank designs are well advanced. Contracts have already been placed for the lighter type. The heavier tanks are being redesigned to take advantage of vital information gleaned from experience in the European war.

To give some idea of the engineering preparation involved in tank construction, for instance, it should be noted that approximately 2,400 individual drawings are required in the complete design of the light tanks. The 155 mm. gun carriage requires approximately 1,000 separate drawings and an additional 500 for the recoil mechanism. Even the tank guns of 75 mm. require 300 drawings and their panoramic sight, 160. This is merely to suggest the energy and time necessary before these instruments can begin to roll off a production line.

THE PROBLEM OF MACHINE tools, which is fundamental to the entire defense program, is another point where basic design must be carried on and to those unacquainted with requirements in this respect it may seem that little or nothing is being done. Tools for turning out ordnance supplies must be specially designed. The kind of work involved does not, of course, attract headlines. Very definite progress is being made, however, and no actual delay exists.

There is scarcely a defense instrument which does not depend for its production upon the machine tool industry. This industry was the first and most important potential bottleneck which this department confronted. It was considered immediately and steps taken to work out a prompt solution. Through the unlimited cooperation of the industry, which set up its own defense committee, I am able to report that the huge planers and millers needed to work armor plate particularly for the expanded naval program will be available on time, according to reports to me from the industry this week. This should prevent what might have been a serious delay in naval construction.

It can also be said that the machine tool builders are making their facilities available to the defense program on a voluntary basis as completely and effectively as though wartime priorities were in effect.

AIRPLANES AND ENGINES: Estimates have been completed on required capacities for airplanes and engines, but this information must remain confidential for the present. There is every indication that the industry will be able to meet the heavy requirements placed upon it under the program calling for an annual production of 25,000 complete aircraft (engines and armor) by July 1, 1942. An analysis has been made of current and expanded rates of delivery for British account, and in this connection it should be said that the British proposals for expanded procurement of aircraft in this country do not threaten interference with maximum production of our own needs inasmuch as they would be handled independent of capacity required for the maximum American program.

Light ordnance and explosives: Contracts have been formally signed with the du Pont Co. providing for erection and operation of a Government-owned powder plant at Charlestown, Ind., with a production capacity of 200,000 pounds per day. This plant will be completed and in operation within ten months. In 1917 the contract for construction of the first powder plant was not signed until seven months after we had entered the war.

Negotiations for a shell-loading plant are well-advanced and a contract is expected to be signed shortly.

IT HAS BEEN FOUND that no serious problem exists in connection with the production of small arms and ammunition. Assurances have been received that at least 500 of the new Garand rifles will be produced daily in one arsenal by October 1 and that production at this arsenal will be doubled by early spring.

Shipbuilding: We have been working closely with the Navy Department on construction capacity in connection with the expanded program calling for a 70 per cent increase in fighting ships. Detailed studies are being made rapidly in connection with the problem of expanding shipbuilding facilities.

Construction: An overall survey has been undertaken to determine War and Navy Department requirements in the immediate future. This survey will show definitely the amount of construction contemplated by these two departments in connection with the defense program.

Food products: A preliminary survey of Army and Navy food requirements indicates that no bottlenecks exist in this field even under maximum requirements.

Trucks: No bottlenecks have been found to exist in truck production and present schedules call for delivery of 25,000 trucks to the armed services by December 31 of this year.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Why Is Conscription Needed?

IN ORDER to set up and administer wisely a system of compulsory military service it is necessary to understand clearly the special circumstances which have made necessary so unprecedented a measure. For until now the American people have always relied upon the principle that by maintaining an adequate Navy they could do without a large Army; in the event of war the Navy would provide a first line of defense behind which an Army could be recruited, trained and equipped.

This is the traditional system of American defense, and the proposal to adopt conscription now is based on a widespread recognition that in the world today the old principles of American defense must be reversed: Instead of relying upon the Navy to hold the line while an Army is being raised, it is now necessary to raise an Army while the Navy is being expanded. We are driven to peacetime conscription because the Navy is not strong enough, and cannot quickly enough be made strong enough, to defend this country if the worst happens in Europe and in Asia.

WITHOUT, I THINK, a dissenting voice the Senate has authorized the construction of another Navy. If this additional Navy existed, or if it could be obtained in the course of the next year, it would not be necessary to raise a large Army or adopt conscription. This great Navy could guarantee the defense of the hemisphere, not only against invasion from Europe but against the subjugation of any part of the hemisphere by means of revolutionary conspiracies. But the Senators who voted to authorize this additional Navy must know that no such Navy can be built and launched and manned for many years to come.

The Congress is on record as believing that another Navy, which does not now exist, is necessary to the defense of the Nation. If the other Navy existed, it would be used to prevent the new imperialist powers from establishing a base of operations within striking distance of this hemisphere. Since the other Navy does not exist, and since we must face the possibility that Britain may be defeated and her navy sunk or captured, our elementary security requires that at the very least no base of operations shall be established directly or indirectly within reach of the Panama Canal to the south of us and within reach of Canada to the north of us. This is the very minimum of security which we must have; it does not include the security of our interests in the Far East, or even in South America beyond the shores of the Caribbean. Yet even in this region of minimum security, the Navy at its present strength cannot guarantee our defense. For even in this limited area it cannot control the two oceans against a combination of totalitarian states.

Therefore, we have to be ready to occupy by land and air forces any threatened strategic point in this area. That is why an army is necessary. It is necessary in order to defend the inner maritime frontiers of the United States during the long period needed to expand the Navy. The Navy cannot be used to guard islands, to suppress revolutions in small unstable countries, to occupy bases or to protect harbors and shipbuilding plants against raids. The Navy must be kept together as a striking force against any major movement in our direction. An Army must exist, therefore, to make secure our capacity to enlarge the Navy. By means of land and air forces alone can we hope, should Britain fall, to insure ourselves the time needed to expand the Navy and recover control of our ocean frontiers.

If we see clearly that the enlarged Army is needed in order to gain the time needed to expand the Navy, then we shall also see more clearly the real reason for resorting to conscription.

WERE IT ONLY a question of recruiting enough men to enlarge the Army to the size which it is now feasable to train and equip, it is not improbable that there would be enough volunteers. It may be that a million young men would come forward if they were called to the colors by a great recruiting campaign with speeches, brass bands, and what not. But men like Senator Vandenberg misconceive the problem when they fix their attention solely upon the men who would put on uniforms.

Under modern conditions as they apply to this country, the number of men needed behind the lines is about 25 to 1 as compared with the number who can or should actually be used in the fighting services. The construction of the new Navy and of the new air force and of the equipment for an Army of a million men is a stupendous industrial operation, and conscription would be worse than useless if it were not organized with the clear purpose of carrying out this industrial operation.

The great value of conscription is that, if properly administered, it will serve this purpose. The volunteer system will not. For it is as important that technically equipped and skilled men should remain in the factories as that other men should receive military training. Under the volunteer system the individual man has to decide whether he will work or fight. This is not a decision which the individual man should have to make. It is too hard a decision for the private conscience. If he decides to fight when he ought to work, the volunteer system has no means of conserving his skill, however indispensable. If he decides to work rather than fight, his conscience will trouble him and his neighbors will question him. For his own peace of mind and for the efficiency of the national effort, the choice of working or fighting must be made for him by an impersonal tribunal.

THE FOUNDATION of the system is the regimentation of all adult males and their classification according to their training. All registered males are then legally liable to national service; they may be selected to work or to fight, depending upon their abilities and the national need. Under such a system it is not only possible to recruit in an orderly way the relatively small number who can usefully be trained and equipped; it is possible to call all the others as they are needed to jobs when they are needed, or to be trained for technical tasks which will be multiplied greatly if we really mean to build the new Navy, the new air force and the new Army.

If, therefore, the conscription bill is to serve its real purpose, it must not be regarded as a mere device for putting one man out of 25 into uniform. It must be regarded as a method of mobilizing the men of the country for the much larger and more complicated task of industrial preparedness. For only by a rapid increase in the rate of production in the munitions industries can the equipment be produced to deal with the emergency which may confront us at once if, by a disaster without precedent in our history, British sea power is destroyed and the security of our two ocean frontiers is lost.

War Means Separation For Esmond Romillys

'Senior Member' of Popular English 'Partnership' Joins Royal Air Force As Wife Returns to Capital Seeking Job

By Dudley Harmon

The war has temporarily dissolved the bartending and bookkeeping partnership of Mr. and Mrs. Esmond Romilly, adventurous young British couple who visited Washington for several weeks last winter en route to work for the Cafe Roma in Miami. In town again from the South, Mrs. Romilly said yesterday that her husband has gone to Canada, where he has been accepted as a recruit in the Royal Air force. He is a nephew of Winston Churchill and his pretty wife is a daughter of Lord Redesdale.

Mrs. Romilly, who served as cashier and kept the books while her husband shook up cocktails for the tourist trade, plans to make her home either here or in New York this winter. At present she is staying with friends in Washington.

Butlers Discourage Selling Career

The Cafe Roma job was the climax of a series of expeditions for work which occupied the young Romillys from the day they stepped off a transatlantic liner in New York last summer. Mrs. Romilly had a try selling tweeds for a British outfit at the World's Fair and later accompanied her husband on his rounds as a super-salesman of ladies' stockings. After several days of forcing their way past frigid butlers to see "the lady of the house," the couple decided they did not want to make this their life work.

So Mr. Churchill's nephew took a $35 course in mixing drinks, passed with honors, and found work at the Cafe Roma. "Decca" Romilly kept the books according to what she called the "Decca method," which she invented herself, never having studied tis pursuit before.

Bar Job Her Most Interesting So Far

Asked if the books balanced at the end of the season, she replied that she was satisfied but wasn't sure how the proprietors of the restaurant, of which the bar is a subsidiary, felt about the matter. However, she believes that her business acumen met with approval.

"Working in a bar is the most interesting job I've tackled so far," says she. "Especially in Miami, where people come from all over the country."

Mrs. Romilly is again in quest of work, but this time for several reasons inclines toward a position in a dress shop.

Liner's Maiden Voyage to Be Stag Party

America to Sail With Notables From Newport News

This will be a town of "week-end widows" beginning today and lasting through until Monday. All because of the first trip of the new liner America which is taking almost a hundred members of Congress, as well as leading representatives of business and the press, on its first cruise.

A special train will leave Washington and New York today for Newport News, Va., where the America will get under way for New York late this afternoon. The party is all stag, and includes residents of Manhattan as well as citizens of the Capital.

The largest merchant ship ever built in this country, the America was destined for transatlantic service, but until the war is over will make cruises in the safer waters of this hemisphere. The latest word in marine construction, it has, among other new features, upholstery and curtains of fireproof material. All the furniture is metal.

New York decorators have made the staterooms unusually attractive, with concentration on handsome new fabrics instead of the trite watercolors which one usually finds on liners. Also, the traditional enormous plushy public rooms with hundreds of stiff chairs in which nobody sits have been eliminated on the America.

Meanwhile, the "America widows" left here over the week-end are planning "widow parties" and hoping that the officials of the United States Line will make the next try-out cruise a ladies' cruise.

Harry Watsons On Bridal Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Watson, jr., who were married June 15, will be at home at Jericho Manor, Jenkintown, Pa., after a trip through New England and the Adirondacks.

The bride is the former Miss Ira Mae Nethery, of San Antonio, Tex., daughter of Mrs. Leon Nethery and the late Dr. Nethery. A former first harpist with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, she was married at the home of her teacher, Mrs. Samuel R. Rosenbaum, of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed in the garden by the Rev. Linn Bowman, and the wedding music played by Mrs. Rosenbaum, who is a member of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Rosenbaum, wore a gown of pale blue chiffon and a broad-brimmed pink hat and carried pink and blue flowers. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. James L. Fulton, jr., of Harrisburg, was matron of honor, and Charles Olin Walls, jr., best man. A reception and buffet supper followed the ceremony.

Mr. Watson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Watson, of Washington. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania as a chemical engineer and is a member of Theta Chi and Alpha Chi Sigma.

Mrs. Brooks Flies Here

Among the five student pilots who will come through Washington en route to Miami, Fla., with new planes today at noon, is Mrs. Peters Brooks.

Mrs. Brooks has just won her private pilot's license and this is her first cross-country flight. All flying schools are so busy that the Embry-Riddle Flying School of Miami had to send students instead of instructors to the factory at Lock Haven, Pa., to get the planes. The factory is so far behind with orders that it cannot spare people to deliver planes, and freight is too slow.

Mrs. Brooks is "finance officer" of the flight. Her husband is one of the best known of sportsmen pilots. He is a nephew of Lady Astor and his mother is of the Virginia Langhornes. His interest in flying is so great that he is serving as advance instructor at the Embry-Riddle school. That means starting the flying at 6 a. m. and includes several hours of exacting acrobatics each day.

Wesley Sturgeses Hosts at Dinner; Arnolds Guests

Dr. and Mrs. Wesley A. Sturges, of Washington and New Haven, Conn., entertained at a dinner last night at the Shoreham Terrace.

Their guests were the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, James Dillan, Mrs. Harry Baxter, Andrew Barr, Prof. and Mrs. George Desson, of New Haven; Judge William C. Ransom, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Mr. and Mrs. John Donald Halstead, Maj. C. E. Fisk and Luke Stapleton.

Mrs. Kennedy Gives Supper

Mrs. Harold Kennedy, of Falls Church, Va., entertained at a supper party earlier in the week at her residence.

Her guests were Mrs. Earle E. Hamm, Mrs. Charles Brooks, Miss Lillian Reid, Mrs. Charles Pendleton, Mrs. Albert Lester, Mrs. Dale Dillon, Mrs. Herbert Coward, Mrs. Albert Miller, Mrs. R. C. Staebner, Mrs. Guy Shreve, Mrs. Thomas Harrington and Mrs. Felix Moore.

Countess Potocka Sails for Peru Aug. 2

Countess Potocka, wife of the Polish Ambassador, will sail August 2 to spend several months in Peru, which is her homeland.

The Hassans In Hot Springs

The Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan have arrived at The Homestead in Hot Springs, Va., and will vacation there for about ten days.

Senator Robert A. Taft, who has been at The Homestead, joined Col. and Mrs. William McKee Dunn, of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. David S. Ingalls, of Cleveland, for dinner there on Thursday evening. The Dunn daughters, the Misses Mildred and Hildreth Dunn, were the guests at the same time of Miss Frances Schmidlapp, whose mother, Mrs. Carl J. Schmidlapp, of New York, also had several guests.

Recent arrivals from Washington at the Virginia resort include Mrs. J. W. Meehan and Richard D. Meehan

Prince, Princess Of Hohenlohe In New York

After visits with friends and relatives in New York State and New England, Prince and Princess Aleksander Hohenlohe have arrived in New York for an indefinite stay. They are stopping at the St. Regis.

The Hohenlohes had originally planned to motor to the West Coast this summer, but owing to the international situation decided to remain in the East.

Miss Jennie Weed Becomes the Bride Of Mr. Bohannan

The marriage of Miss Jennie Elizabeth Weed, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude E. R. Weed and the late George Weed, of Seabrook, Md., to Joseph Burns Bohannan took place last evening at 8 o'clock at the Holy Comforter Church. The Rev. Edwin Luckett officiated.

Mrs. Rona Heiss served as matron of honor, and Capt. Paul Sullivan, of San Antonio, Tex., was best man. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Del Ray Coleman, of East Orange, N. J., and her daughters, Audrey and Anita, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Krider, of Lanham, Md., and their daughter, Rose.

The couple will make their home in Washington. Mr. Bohannan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bohannan, of San Antonio.

Peacocks Motor To Montana

Mr. and Mrs. James Craig Peacock are motoring to the Parkhill, Mont., ranch near Billings. Their son, Jack Peacock, has been there for several weeks. His parents will visit Jasper Park and Banff before returning home.

In their absence, Mrs. Peacock's sister, Mrs. Grover C. Kinley, and Mr. Kinley are occupying the Peacock home.

Miss Hartney, Lieut. Yeager To Wed Today

Couple Will Move To Fort Benning, Then To Philippines

Of interest to service circles is the wedding today in Delhi, N. Y., of Miss June Hartney, daughter of Lieut. Col. Harold Evans Hartney, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Hartney, of Douglaston, Long Island, and Lieut. Frederick J. Yeager, U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Yeager, of New York.

The ceremony will be performed this afternoon, following which the couple will return for a reception to be given by the bride's parents at their home at Douglaston.

Couple Will Go To Fort Benning

Miss Hartney is a graduate of the Traphagen School of Fashion and the McDowell School.

Lieut. Yeager was graduated in the class of 1940 from the United States Military Academy, at West Point, where he played left end on the football team.

Following a short honeymoon the couple will go to Fort Benning, Ga., where Lieut. Yeager will be on duty for one month, after which they will sail from Charleston on September 16 for the Philippine Islands where Lieut. Yeager will be on duty with the United States Army.

Bride's Father An Ace in Last War

The bride's father, Lieut. Col. Hartney, after eight months at the front with the Royal Flying Corps during the first World War, was ordered to the United States to command and train the Twenty-seventh Aero Squadron which he took to France in February, 1918, establishing an enviable record in combat.

A few months later he was made commander of the entire First Pursuit Group, of six squadrons, of which the Twenty-seventh was a part, and which contained many of the greatest American war fliers including "Eddie" Rickenbacker, Frank Luke, Joseph Wehner, Quentin Roosevelt, James Moissner and others.

He was officially credited with six victories in combat, received seven foreign and American decorations for gallantry in action, including the Distinguished Service Cross, and recently published a book, "Up and At 'Em," covering his military career and the history of the First Pursuit Group. He is now technical expert with the Civil Aeronautics Authority in Washington.

Ruth Hurley Plans Picnic Tonight At Leesburg Home

Several picnic and river parties are being planned by stay-at-homes for today and tomorrow. About 20 members of the Washington younger set will motor to Leesburg tonight for Miss Ruth Hurley's al fresco supper. Her friends from the Virginia hunt country have also been invited.

Among the Washington guests will be the hostess' older sister, Mrs. Henry Beall Gwynn and Dr. Gwynn. Miss Hurley and her parents, former Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick Hurley, have been at their country home, Belmont, for most of the summer and plan to stay on there.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MRS. ARTHUR C. MARSHALL entertained members of the Fauquier and Loudoun Garden Club at tea early in the week at her home, Crednal. There was a flower exhibit, with Mrs. Walter McK. Jones winning first prize, Mrs. George Slater receiving second, and Mrs. Moncure N. Lyon third. Honorable mention went to Mrs. N. H. Morison.

The latter presided over the short business meeting in the absence of Mrs. William Rust, club president. The delightful short stories from "Some Recollections" by Mrs. H. Rozier Dulany were read aloud by Mrs. Hunter de Butts. These recollections are of Mrs. Dulany's childhood and what she heard about the Civil War from her parents and other relatives.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT were Mrs. Henry Fairfax, Mrs. Moncure Lyon, Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, Mrs. Charles Baird, Mrs. Houston Gaddis, Mrs. Samuel Marshall, Mrs. Southgate Morison, Mrs. Warner Snider, Mrs. Fred Sharp, Mrs. George Slater, Mrs. Walter McK. Jones, Mrs. William Clifford, Mrs. Walter West, and Miss Betsy Gucker, of Georgetown Del., who is visiting Mrs. Southgate Morison and Mrs. H. Gordon Moore, of Lynchburg. Mrs. Robert Malmo, of Richmond, was among those who assisted in serving.

THE LENY MANOR Horse Show on the John R. Buchanan estate today will draw a large crowd, beginning at 9 o'clock this morning.

Miss Betsy Charrington will give a dinner tonight in honor of the judges and different committee members of the show. J. North Fletcher will also be host to a number of the exhibitors and out-of-town guests. Everyone will go afterward to the dance at the North Wales Club. All proceeds from show, luncheon and dance will go to the American Red Cross.

Henry Wallach, president of the Leny Manor Horse and Pony Show, and his brother, Bobby, will entertain this afternoon for the judges and some of their friends at a cocktail party at Hopefield, the home of their parents, Col. and Mrs. Robert Wallach, near Warrenton.

JUDGES WILL BE Miss Susan Fuller, of Durham, N. C., and Dickie Kelly, of Richmond. Among those exhibiting and riding in today's event will be Miss Elizabeth Hulbert, of Middleburg, one of the most accomplished riders of the younger set; Miss Elizabeth Marsh, of Catlett, a consistent winner, Miss Margaret, Hill, of Bethesda; Miss Eve Prime, of Warrenton; Miss Katherine Walker, of Sewickley, Pa.; Mrs. Robinson McIlvaine, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh, Mrs. D. N. Lee, Miss Christie Thompson, Col. Pleas Rogers, Alex Calvert, North Fletcher, Herman Piggott and Edward and Martin Macy.

THE FIRST INVITATION to a debutante party of the fall season was received here yesterday from Mr. and Mrs. William Bell Watkins and Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, jr., to a dance in honor of their daughter and Mr. Watkins, jr.'s sister, Miss Virginia Stuart Watkins, at the North Wales Club on Saturday, September 7.

Mrs. John Fairfax, of Baltimore, is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Fairfax, at her home, Oakham, Middleburg.

Mrs. Southgate Morison entertained at luncheon a few days ago in honor of her aunt, Mrs. Morison Henry, of Baltimore. The guests included Mrs. Robert Carter, Mrs. Nathaniel Morison, Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, Mrs. John Fairfax, Mrs. K. F. Bowman, Miss L. M. Bouligny and Miss Lilias Janney.

FRANK D. GASKINS, of Warrenton, was presented with a large silver tray a few days ago by the Warrenton Horse Show Association in appreciation of his services as an official of the organization for 40 years. J. North Fletcher of the association, and Mrs. James Hamilton, secretary, made the presentation in behalf of the association. The tray is inscribed "To Frank D. Gaskins in grateful appreciation of his loyalty and zeal for over 40 years in behalf of the Warrenton Horse Show Association." From the time when the Warrenton Horse Show was started, in 1899, Mr. Gaskins served as secretary and ring manager until 1917, when he was made manager. Early this year he resigned by reason of pressure of his duties as justice of the peace.

His resignation was accepted with great regret by the organization, for r. Gaskins is possibly the best-posted man on horse shows in the State.

Tea That Refreshes Washingtonians Pays for Chinese Orphans' Relief

WASHINGTONIANS are taking special relish in their iced tea this summer for many of them are conscious, as they drink it, that they have also done their bit to aid Chinese orphans.

The Washington Committee for Sale of Tea, headed by Mrs. Donald C. Blaisdell, and affiliated with the China Aid Council, has sold $257 worth of tea since April. The project was lunched then with a tea party at the home of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot. Packages have been sold since by the committee, which has taken orders for $108 worth; by a local shop where orders were taken for $125 worth, and 923 worth was purchased directly from New York headquarters.

Mrs. Blaisdell, 2934 Newark street, is still taking orders. About a third of every dollar spent for the tea goes to aid the orphans. The rest pays for the packing and shipping and is also helpful economically to the Chinese.

The sponsors of the project, headed by Mrs. Roosevelt, are: Mrs. Truxton Beale, Mrs. John Beaumont, Dr. Ether Caulkin Brunauer, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mrs. William Darby, Mme. Hendrik de Kauffmann, Mrs. Charles Enders, Mrs. Waldron Faulkner, Mrs. Mortimer Graves, Mme. Ing, Mme. Kien-Wen Yu, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Howell Moorhead, Representative Caroline O'Day, Mrs. George Pettingill, Mrs. Pinchot, Dr. Louise Stanley, Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mrs. Michael Straight, Mrs. Leonard Sweet, Mrs. Charles B. Walcott and Miss Marie Wimer.

MORE RELIEF—While we're on the subject of war relief—and there's not much else to think about nowadays—members of the District Federation of Women's Clubs have reported $300 as the proceeds of their first large benefit last week at the Women's City Club. It was sponsored by the co-ordinating committee, with Mrs. John T. Lucker as chairman and Mrs. LeVerne Beales, co-chairman.

Another party is planned in August, the date of which has not yet been set.

LUNCHEON TUESDAY — Announcement has been made by the Washington Branch of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies that Hedley Donovan, feature writer for The Post, will address its weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday at Wesley Hall, at 12:30 p. m.

He will outline "The Present Political and Congressional Attitude on Aid-the-Allies Legislation."

SUMMER WORK—The Wesley Heights-Spring Valley production unit of the District Chapter of the Red Cross is working throughout the summer. Mrs. Harold C. Anderson is unit chairman and all women of the neighborhood interested in helping make garments for the war refugees have been invited to join.

Comfortable production rooms have been established in the Metropolitan Methodist Church, Nebraska and New Mexico avenues. The unit meets all day Tuesday and Wednesday of each week. Since its organization just month ago, more than 100 garments have been turned over to the District chapter for shipment abroad.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED—The Arlington Hall Alumnae Association, of which Mrs. Walter Morris is president, has announced the award of a scholarship for the coming year to Jean Ames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Ames, who will be a senior in the music department. Miss Ames who is studying piano under Senora Planca de Renard, is among the outstanding students at the school. She is at Brown Ledge Camp, Vt., as assistant director this summer.

The Arlington Hall Association held its July meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. George Jordan with Miss Beatrice Hegg as assistant hostess.

CAMP PARTY—Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Salsbury will entertain the members of Alpha Chapter of the Phi Delta Gamma Sorority and their husbands at their summer camp, Camp Lightfoot Va., this afternoon.

NEW OFFICERS—The members of Keystone Chapter of the D. A. R. recently elected at regent Mrs. Pearce Rayner; vice regent Mrs. Roy C. Black; chaplain, Miss Emma Keithline; recording secretary, Mrs. George McK. Johnson; corresponding secretary, Miss May Levers; treasurer, Miss Medora Ward; registrar, Mrs. Claughton West; historian, Mrs. H. H. Kincaid.

Charles A. Beards Parents of a Son

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abbot Beard, jr., of Rockville, Md., announce the birth of a son, Charles A. Beard 3d, on July 22, at Columbia Hospital.

Mrs. Beard is the former Miss Eleanor Cecilia Dent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Addison Dent.

Society Well Represented At Watergate Concerts

Dr. Ganz Guest Conductor Tomorrow; Kirsten Flagstad to Sing on Wednesday's All-Wagner Program, McArthur Conducting

Because many of Washington's notables have been forced for one reason or another to remain in town this summer, society has been unusually well represented at this season's "Sunset Symphonies" by the National Symphony Orchestra at the Potomac Water Gate. Tomorrow night's Water Gate concert, which the popular Rudolph Ganz will conduct, and Wednesday's, when Kirsten Flagstad will make her first Water Gate appearance with her protege, Edwin McArthur, acting as guest conductor—will again find many people of prominence in attendance.

Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, who, in spite of her invalidism, has already attended three concerts this summer, expects to be present at both tomorrow's and Wednesday's Sunset Symphonies. Mrs. Strong hears the concerts from her car, parked in the lower roadway.

Her son, L. Corrin Strong, president of the National Symphony board of directors, is taking part in the annual Poplar Island Race—a 40-mile cruising race—tomorrow and consequently will miss the concert, but, with his wife, will hear Mme. Flagstad sing on Wednesday.

Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss has not missed a concert this season, and will watch her friend, Dr. Ganz, conduct the concert, as well as attending the Flagstad-McArthur concert Wednesday evening.

Harold A. Brooks, chairman of the summer concerts committee, and Mrs. Brooks are two others who will be present at both of this week's Water Gate concerts, as will Mrs. Eugene Byrnes and Mrs. Barton K. Yount.

Among those who will be out of town over the week-end but who will attend Wednesday's Sunset Symphony are Mr. and Mrs. Milton W. King and Gen. Edwin M. Watson and Mrs. Watson. Another who will be present at Wednesday's concert is Carleton Smith, music critic of Esquire and Coronet magazines.

Tonight's concert, which will mark the fourth series of Sunset Symphonies in which Dr. Ganz has appeared as guest conductor, will be comprised of "Marche Heroique," by Saint-Saens; overture to Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave," Haydn's symphony in G, Respighi's "Fountains of Rome," Hadley's "The Ocean," Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker Suite," two Swiss airs arranged by Binet, and Berlioz's 'Hungarian March."

For her appearance on Wednesday night, Mme. Flagstad has elected to sing "Elsa's Dream," from "Lohengrin;" "Dich theure Halle," from "Tannhauser;" "Vorspiel and Liebestod," from "Tristan and Isolde," and Brunnhilde's immolation scene from "Gotterdammerung." Completing the all-Wagner program, the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. McArthur, will play the overture to "Tannhauser," "Good Friday Spell," from "Parsifal," prelude to "Die Meistersinger," and "Ride of the Valkyries," from "Die Walkure."

Clothes to Heighten Morale Made in WPA Projects

Exhibit Shows Skill, Originality Go Into Planning Of Garments

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

MARSHALL ADAMS

"CLOTHES do not make the man, or the family, but they help a man and his family to face adversity with courage, health and hope." This is the inscription identifying one of the exhibits of the current WPA welfare project exhibition at the National Museum.

As one spectator remarked, "This exhibit makes you glad to be an American." Indeed it did, for, lining the walls were evidence of the strides recently made in Government projects, particularly in the sewing rooms of the WPA. In these, 172,000 women in the last year alone made over 460,000 garments for welfare distribution. The sewing rooms these women work in are efficient, orderly, systematically operated, and in them is a feeling of progress and contentment not likely to be found in sweatshops.

No Regimentation

The attitude of the women demonstrating the master pattern cutter at this exhibit or describing the dresses they have made is the keynote to the clothes they turn out from day to day. These women are alert, cheerful and energetic, just as the clothes they make show initiative and quite a little imagination. No two garments are exactly alike, because as the basic garment is cut and assembled by skilled workers, the finishers work handmade buttonholes on one dress, give a collar variation to another or put on a different buckle and clip trimming on another.

The reason for this self-expression is to raise the courage of the recipient. Nothing so depresses a girl scouting office buildings for a job as the realization that her clothes are out of date or homemade looking or ill fitting. None of these excuses can be laid at the feet of these WPA costumes, for the styles are wisely simple enough to be "classic." The fit can be controlled to a large extent by the use of the United States Home Economics Department's calibrated sizing (their system of basing size on body, not age measurement). And the idea of those little hand-sewn details gives a sense of encouragement to the wearer that few can appreciate unless at some time they have had to wear inferior, stereotyped ready-mades.

Design Fabrics

Along this same morale-building tangent, the exhibit displays original fabric sketches created by WPA artists for floral geometric patterns, "not just like everybody else's." These textile designs are enlarged on zinc plates and run off on roller presses which print up the cotton ordered by the Government from the lowest bidding reliable textile mill. Thus when many of America's unemployed receive a new fall dress this year they will have the satisfaction of knowing that a great deal of thought and artistry went into the creation. True, it may not be after Molyneaux or Schiaparelli, but it has its own degree of American originality, a fresh new print design, carefully done hand-finishing, reliable fit and, most important, the feeling that some woman back there in a sewing project room put a little personal interest into the garment.

OUTFITS made at WPA sewing rooms follow modern style trends as closely as follows. Below are three party dresses cut from the same pattern yet individualized by little touches which take away any regimented look. At left, these youngsters from a WPA nursery school proudly display their new clothes. The garments, made by the unemployed and distributed to needy women and children, heighten morale as well as cover the bodies of the recipients

Paint Pictures On Glass

LOVELY as a French print is "Sunflowers and Zinnias." A thrill to realize you can paint it yourself in lovely flower colors on glass—in its actual size 9 by 12 inches.

You simply lay a piece of glass over a printed pattern and paint over its shaded parts, which are plainly visible through the glass. And by this same method you can paint other subjects, too.

In the flower picture the zinnias are bright red and red-purple, the sunflowers are a brilliant yellow with brown centers. For the leaves use shades of green and, for the bowl, delft blue.

Using only three inexpensive tubes of oil paint—red, blue and yellow—you can mix any color. To make red-purple, for instance, you add a little blue to red. For lighter tones, you add white household enamel, for darker tones, black household enamel.

To give a lovely background to your painting, slip a piece of metallic paper behind the glass when the paint is dry. Then frame your picture, painted side in, and hang in a place of honor in your home!

Other just as lovely designs—romantic scenes of Old World and New, landscapes and seascapes—are given in our set, SIX PICTURES TO PAINT ON GLASS. These designs, each 9 by 12 inches, include "Treasure Ships at Sea," "Skyscrapers," "Poplars by the River," "Fishing Village," "Sunflowers and Zinnias," and "Old Windmill." Simple directions show how to mix and apply colors, give colors for each design.

Send 15 cents in coins for our set of SIX PICTURES TO PAINT ON GLASS to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of picture set.

Buying 'Fluff' In Midseason Is Dangerous

New York (AP).—Between-season novelty purchases shouldn't make too big a hole in your clothes budget. Neither should you let August sales lead you astray. You know that "bargains" aren't always bargains. You may talk yourself into buying a sale-priced summer suit by arguing "it's a good investment. I'll wear it next summer, too." But will you?

Ordinarily sensible shoppers go haywire sometimes on furs. Blue fox is so flattering. But, unless you have another good cloth or fur coat for daily wear, you'd be unwise to go overboard for blue fox. It's chocolate cake again. Select a tougher fur for bread and butter wear—raccoon, or beaver, or wolf.

It's hard to dress smartly. It takes time and thought good taste and good judgment. But failure is more often due to lack of self-control than to lack of knowledge.

Your Figure, Madame!

Letting Down on Diet Cost Model Looks and Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

IT SEEMS that I am always telling you about some young woman who is a paragon—who keeps her figure, gets lovlier as the years go by, and who sets a shining example for you to follow.

All right, this is a change. A few years ago I wrote about a model with one of the rosiest futures Manhattan could offer. She was almost like a superlative fiction heroine. She had a beautiful figure, a real posture and talent. She could put a song over like nobody's business! So it didn't surprise me to hear that she had made the grade and was singing professionally, and I dropped around to get the second installment of her steps to success story.

But it isn't that kind of story. That exquisite creature had gained 30 pounds, has a wretched posture and has completely lost that air of distinction. Frankly, she looks like someone who has quit caring particularly how she looks—and she is still a young woman! But the most appalling thing is that she didn't seem to realize how much she has changed.

Late Hours, Too Much Food

In this case, the root of the trouble is a combination of continual late hours and too much food. It seems that a night club entertainer is often invited to dine and wine with the patrons—and she has accepted. Right there is the explanation of the increase in weight.

On such occasions, nobody stops to add up the protective foods in the menu and she appears to have developed an avitaminosis—and that is a drain on one's looks and energy. It is not at all surprising to learn that she is tired most of the time and has given up those grand exercises which made her figure the envy of the other models. She never exercises any more.

I have always suspected that I might have a streak of the reformer in me. (How else could I write this column!) Here was a situation that called for diplomatic evasion. Perhaps I should have chatted pleasantly, made a vagues pretense of getting the interview, and escaped. But I know that she can be lovely again—and that her career depends upon it.

Still Can Regain Figure

I had to outline a slimming diet, high in the essential vitamins and minerals, and to demonstrate a set of exercises—a program that would help her to regain what she had lost. If she wakes up to what has really happened and does something about it, she still has a chance to succeed.

Maps on Wall Can Be Made Decorative

Should Be Properly Mounted on Board, Then Shellacked

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

THE HOBBY of map collecting has been graduated suddenly from an amusing diversion of armchair travelers to a real and poignant concern to all of us interested in the world we live in. And so these days, with world maps tacked up to upset decorative schemes, the lady of the house might as well think of ways to fit them into the picture, bowing to the fact that geography will be the focal point in most homes during the coming months.

So why not invest in a really good big map, one worthy of being properly mounted on wallboard, then shellacked and hung on an important wall. This can be your basic status-quo map. Then buy two or three or more picture frames with glass, for the temporary, changing maps you'll be cutting out of the paper from day to day. Slip them into these frames for the duration of their interest, then replace them with newer maps.

You may be surprised at how decorative maps can be when they're used with dignity or given importance. In one rather informal living room, furnished with pale maple, maps made a colorful pattern in contrast to grey walls and grey carpet. The windows were hung with full but simply-made white organdy curtains; the upholstered furniture was slip-covered in greys and in yellows. Terra cotta pottery lamp bases with crisp white shades and odds and ends of gleaming brass were used for accessories. Into this tranquil setting a collection of bright maps for the walls, along with many bookshelves bulging with the quiet brilliance of book bindings, brought warmth and vibrant interest.

Most rooms with plain walls are pleasant with maps for wall decorations. Beware of maps on flowered walls, though, or with too much flowered chintz about. And don't just thumb-tack your maps up and expect them to look like much. Either mount them (on composition board or plyboard) and shellac them; or else frame them with a molding and glass.

Nylon Corset Is Developed

The slim-hipped silhouette is one of several new ideas for the 1940 corset season. Another innovation is the nylon corset. Nylon appears in elasticized sections and it's supposed to give greater tension at hip and waistline, along with lighter weight. Nylon corsets have the same slippery feeling you may have noticed in nylon hosiery, they dry faster and it's almost impossible to stick a fingernail through them.

They'll retail, usually, at $7.50 and up, somewhat above prices for regulation corsets, and there won't be many of them until stores find out whether or not women like them.

It is hoped that women who are used to paying high prices for imported corsets will accept nylon elastic in place of the French hand-loomed elastics which no longer are available.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Her Fiance Reveres Her and She Would Make Him A Good Wife; Yet If He Knew Her Past, He Would Despise and Reject Her; What Is Her Obligation?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Should a girl tell a man of her past, if he asks her to marry him? I am very much in love with a very fine man. Yet I know if I tell him of a mistake I made when I was very young, he wouldn't have anything more to do with me. Have I the right to marry him without telling him?

I am truly repentant. I know the extent of what I have done. And I am trying so hard to atone. But I am wondering if it would be a sin for me to marry a man who thinks I am a fine, nice girl. My conscience bothers me a great deal, and there are times when I just sit and brood for hours.

I know I would make him a good wife and I can hardly bear to lose him. What shall I do? I am at my wits' end and I would appreciate it so much if you can help me straighten out my problem. Please answer at your earliest convenience.

Reasons for Believing That Silence Is Golden

DEAR C. E. F.: There is no hard-and-fast Rule of Behavior (written or unwritten), that purports to cover this particular ethical conundrum—which has been submitted to my department for solution, time and again. Therefore, the wisest course the individual can pursue—when wrestling with the question, "To tell or not to tell?"—is to follow the dictates of his (or her) own kindly common sense.

Some persons have a notion that marriage, to succeed, must include as one plank in its platform the mutual knowledge and acceptance of The Absolute Truth concerning the past histories of the contracting parties. But this is a sentiment that needs intelligent qualification. For one thing, The Whole Truth about anybody's life, or even about any one chapter or episode in it, is almost impossible to convey to another. Try as one will, in all honesty, one cannot paint for another the picture of one's experiences, as one knows them to be.

For another thing, certain painful experiences of youth must be rightfully regarded as stepping stones to growth, and not as deliberate liaisons with Evil—since the lessons they teach, sometimes, are such as to prompt the gradual and complete revision for the better of one's philosophy and conduct, thereafter. And in that event, the Individual-Who-Is, having completely outgrown the Ignoramus-Who-Was, actually would be presenting himself in a false, rather than a true light, in establishing any identification between the old self and the new.

And for a third thing—one should consider whether it is just and fair to burden another with one's secret griefs, simply as a means of sharing the load, or as a concession to unworthy fear. I imagine, for instance, that your powerful compulsion to tell your fiance of your earlier "mistake"—long since bitterly repented and atoned for—rises more from a sense of guilt than from any abstract concept of social justice. You probably feel that if he were to know and fully forgive "the worst" (as you no doubt regard it), then you would be forever absolved of the sin. Yet, fearing that he could neither understand nor forgive, your terror mounts, and with rising terror comes fiercer compulsion to tell.

To the extent that you allow guilt and terror to dominate your thinking today—to that extent are you living in the past (instead of IN THE PRESENT and FOR THE FUTURE); and to that extent you are expending your emotional energies in the destructive business of (shall we say?) "reincarnating" a mistake that has no existence any more, nor any significance, except in the wax works of your imagination.

I cannot see that you have any obligation in conscience to disabuse your fiance of his present justifiable concept of you as a "fine, nice girl." If that is what he holds you to be, unquestionably that is the kind of person you have proved yourself to be, in association with him. Hence, that is what you ARE. That is the kind of person he enables you to be.

Since you can say, with such surety, that "you know you would make him a good wife," yet that he "wouldn't have anything more to do with you" if he were required to go over your past with a spyglass—doesn't it add up to the conclusion that you would be working a double injury in disinterring the lifeless secret? Doesn't it mean that silence is golden, is beneficient, is kindliest and most constructive? I think so.

Buffet Bar Appeases Ravenous Appetites of Swimmers

THE SWISHING of water in the swimming pools of the city has been constant the last few days. The exercise that comes with swimming develops ravenous appetites. When I went to the Shoreham Hotel pool a few mornings ago for a cool dip I found that many others had also sought this haven.

Some guests had luncheon served on the terrace, but many of the bathers treked into the air conditioned buffet luncheon bar. Among the appealing dishes were chicken salad, stuffed tomatoes, jumbo and tomato jellies, fresh shrimp and crab meat salads. I passed up all these reluctantly for jellied chicken.

Jellied chicken as made by Chef Jacques Haeringer is a blue ribbon hot weather dish, especially when served with a peppy cole slaw, crunchy rolls, an iced drink and a chilled fruit dessert. Here is the recipe:

Jellied Chicken

Prepare a 4-to-5 pound chicken. Place in kettle. Bring to boiling point, 6 cups water, 3 ribs of celery with leaves, 1 carrot, 1 small onion, 4 or 5 sprigs of parsley, 1 bay leaf, ½ teaspoon salt and 6 pepper corns. Drop chicken into boiling water, reduce heat and permit to simmer, covered, until tender. Remove chicken from pot. Boil stock until there are 3 cupfuls. Clarify stock by adding, 1 slightly beaten egg white. Bring to boiling point. Remove to warm place. After 10 minutes skim and strain. Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Dissolve in little boiling stock. Add seasoning to stock if needed. Chill until it is nearly set. Cut chicken from the bones. Cut into pieces, 1 cup canned mushrooms, slice 2 hard-cooked eggs and 12 stuffed olives. Rinse mold in cold water. Fill it to the depth of ½ inch with chicken jelly. Place sliced eggs and olives in jelly in attractive arrangement. Combine remaining jelly, the chicken, and mushrooms and fill mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve with mayonnaise. Makes 8 servings.

Gene Porter, 21, Is Only Oregonian On Duty at Willkie-McNary Office Here

OF THE 200-ODD women volunteers who beseiged the local Willkie-McNary Campaign Club the week it opened offices, 21-year-old Gene Porter is the youngest, and the only Oregonian among hordes of Hoosiers. She attributes the latter fact not to lack of Oregonians in the District.

Gene Porter

A student at the National Art School here, she planned to earn some money during the summer recess. While job-hunting, just after the Philadelphia convention, she dropped in to talk to Mrs. Louise Hunter Snow, of the local Republican organization, about joining the Young Republican Club. She went to work for Mrs. Snow the next day as fulltime receptionist at the Willkie Club Headquarters. She has her job, but she isn't earning any money.

Gene is studying fashion illustrating here but went in heavily for journalism at the University of Oregon. She can't decide which line to follow as a career. Meanwhile, she says, she's "just a sucker" for volunteer work. She's canvassed for the Community Chest and done settlement work at Neighborhood House.

AL FRESCO—Lunchtime at the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, housed in the Steuart Building at Fifth and K streets northwest, finds most of the employes on the roof of the building, which, they claim, is the coolest spot in town. There are tables for diners, a sandwich and soft drink bar, deck chairs and a continuous handball game.

A Washington family vacationing in Mexico had picked up a pair of lovebirds. They were disconsolate to learn, when they reached the border, that public health restrictions prevented them from bringing their new pets into this country.

They thought for a minute, made a few preparations and later in the day sailed through the customs, lovebirds and all, with no difficulty. The birds, their bills wired together and gilded, were sitting unobtrusively on the wife's hat.

HOBBIES HERE AND THERE—Among Washington women who are well known as painters are Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and Mrs. Dean Acheson . . . Mrs. Harold Ickes is fond of photography but hasn't had much time for it since the baby came . . . Senhora Martins, wife of the Brazilian Minister, executes statues of heroic proportions in her studio at the legation . . . Favorite pastime of Senora de Cardenas, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, is the creation of exquisite flower arrangements in the Japanese tradition.

Scene: Columbia Hospital.

A dishevelled young man rushes into the room where, the nurse has told him, he will find his wife and new-born son. He looks with pride at the crimson infant, then with horror at the mother. "My God! What have you done to my wife?" he shrieks to the nurse. A front tooth is gone, her face seems swollen—in short, she appears to be an entirely different woman.

She was. The nurse had summoned the wrong man. Our hero was presented a daughter three hours later.

Sponging With Alcohol Sometimes Helps That Prickly Heat

What is prickly heat and what is the treatment of it?

The medical name for prickly heat is miliaria. It is generally agreed that it is due to the stopping up of the sweat ducts. The mouths of the sweat ducts swell up because the cells are unprotected by sufficient oil. There is a congestion of the capillaries and the formation of blisters or swellings in the upper layers of the skin.

Excessive sweating tends to remove the oil on the skin, and all cases of prickly heat are associated with excessive sweating.

Diagnosis is not always simple. Many eruptions are called prickly heat that are really insect bites, especially flea bites. A good point to notice is whether the rash affects the covered or exposed parts of the body. If the latter, insect bites or plant dermatitis may be suspected rather than prickly heat. Ringworm is another confusing possibility.

Treatment should consist of soothing preparations—lotions and powders. Starch, almond meal or bran water may be applied and the area then dried and dusted with 10 per cent boric acid powder with zinc oxide and starch. Calomine lotion with or without phenol is used in severe cases. Sponging with alcohol may be all that is needed. "Mexican heat powder" contains camphor, zinc oxide, boric acid and starch.

Is there any scientific evidence that middle-aged people with a history of heart attacks should remain at sea level?

The question concerns a man of 50 who had a moderate attack of angina eighteen months ago and wants to take his vacation in the mountains. I quote the Journal of the American Medical Association that altitudes up to 5,000 to 7,500 feet are safe for those who have had coronary disease, provided there are no symptoms at the time and even if there are symptoms on condition that these persons avoid climbing steep grades, such as are common at high altitudes. Many feel better in the clear air of the hills at 1,000 to 2,000 feet than they do in the moist air at sea level. In fact, the general experience is that heart symptoms are often benefited by such a change.

Spring Wheat Loaf

Try this new fruit topper for your spring ham loaf. Make the loaf the usual way, when half finished cooking, spread the top generously with equal portions of cooked dried apricots and crushed pineapple. Sprinkle with a little vinegar and a dash of cinnamon. Continue baking until the loaf is done. The crusty top adds excellent flavor. The loaf goes well hot or cold.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT

Simplified Beauty Aids

JUST WHEN you are about to succumb to a midsummer letdown in your beauty regime, out crops a whole new batch of simplified accessories to help you solve hot weather grooming problems. Now you have little or no excuse for becoming bedraggled and unkempt in appearance.

First on the list is a combination perfume and lipstick in a tasseled cylinder that is only slightly larger than a lipstick. The bottom part is a French blue crystal flacon of perfume, which is topped with a plastic lipstick of the same color. Both screw into a center white plastic band. You can have your lipstick in five fashion-right colors and your perfume in one fragrance. Both lipstick case and perfume flacon are refillable.

A "Pedikit," complete with a long-wearing polish (you can select your favorite shade), polish remover, emery board, orange sticks, a tube of mentholated foot cream, pumice stone, bottle of callous remover, cotton pads for callouses, adhesive strips and cotton tampons for separating toes has been created to simplify your pedicure. This little kit comes in a slide-fastened case of waterproofed spun rayon, in either pink or blue. Also included is an illustrated booklet giving the creator's pet pedicure methods. For toe-tip style, you'll find bright shades of polish give the best effect.

"I Should Be Thrilled"

My husband has been ordered to Chicago at a big increase in salary. I'd be happy if it weren't for our house. We must find a buyer in a hurry. What can we do?

Taking Care of the Monument

By George Thorpe

EXPLOSIVE reports reverberated down the Washington Monument. It was the Fourth of July and celebrants, it appeared, were shooting off firecrackers half-way up the 555-foot shaft. The echoes contributed to the uproar of a rapidly firing battery of French 75's.

Custodian Charles Herman, 52, of 222 East Custis avenue, Arlington, Va., hastily dispatched guards up the shaft to track down the miscreants. Then he returned outside where lines of perspiring men, women and children patiently awaited admittance.

"Most of them don't seem to realize that this is a memorial, not just a sight-seeing point or a place to see the city," he observed.

MORE amazing to Herman is the fact that many persons actually do not know what the shaft represents nor "what that building at the other end" of the Mall is.

To cope with this situation, Randle B. Thuett, chief of the memorial section of National Capital Parks, said he plans to set up signs marked "The Washington Monument."

Custodian Herman, seven guards and two elevator operators are the staff which daily guides 3,000 to 4,000 visitors up and down the $1,300,000 memorial to the Father of His Country.

Custodian Herman

AT intervals of five minutes they load a maximum of 32 persons into the elevator and start the 1½-minute trip to the top. They are careful, however, to judge the weights of prospective riders and, if an unusual number of heavyweights is on hand, allow correspondingly fewer aboard.

Overloading has been known to short-circuit fuses in the mechanism, causing the elevator to stall en route to the peak.

This happens very rarely, Herman says. Nevertheless, the custodian finds a surprisingly number prefer to toil up the stairs rather than ride. Of 3,859 visitors July 4, 806 took the stair route.

ONE rumor Herman is quick to explode is that, like the Eiffel Tower, the Monument sways perceptibly with the wind. The solid masonry structure sways only a matter of a thousandth of an inch in a 30-mile breeze, he says.

An important duty of the guards is to dissuade gravity-conscious persons from dropping a rock or other missile from the top, "just to watch it fall." From 555 feet the rock would strike a person at the base with the force of a bullet, they say.

For future visitors Herman has good news: Steam heat next fall will replace the present electric heating devices. The idea is to cut down moisture that condenses and comes down "almost like rain" in wet months, according to Herman.

District to Give Child Refugees Free Tuition

Free tuition will be provided refugee children in the public schools, the Commissioners announced yesterday.

The only provision attached to the free tuition is that the children have come to Washington for the purpose of acquiring a home. A request of advice on this subject had been sent to the corporation counsel by the school authorities.

Vernon E. West, acting corporation counsel, said the Comptroller General of the United States has ruled that a minor child may be a resident of a school district for the purpose of free tuition even though its parents or legal guardian does not reside here.

This same question was discussed at a recent meeting of the Washington branch of the United States Committee for the Care of European Children.

Hikers, Beware—Chigger Time Is Here Again

This is chigger time, the United States Public Health Service warned yesterday, a warning that will not be passed off lightly by anyone who has ever experienced the itching tortures inflicted by the pesky mite.

Before going into fields of tall grass, weeds or any other undergrowth, one should apply flowers of sulphur to his or her stockings and underclothing, the health service advises. This affords partial protection.

"As soon as possible after being exposed to chigger bites," the warning said, "it is advantageous to apply a thick lather of soap all over the body surface and to allow the lather to remain on for 10 minutes or longer before washing it off. Lather the body well a second time, then rinse thoroughly with clean water."

Policeman Sued In Shooting of Boy

Sergt. Vernon E. Deus, of the Capitol Police, who accidentally shot a 10-year-old colored boy caught wading in the plaza fountain on June 24, was sued for $25,000 by the boy and his father, in the District Court yesterday.

The boy, Fred Walker, jr., 912 Fifth street northwest, the complaint said, was shot through the neck. The complaint said he was in hospitals from June 24 to July 7, at a cost of $80.50.

Sergt. Murphy Is Promoted

D. O. FLETCHER W. T. MURPHY J. E. DAWN

Sergt. William T. Murphy of the Ninth Police Precinct, who helped organize the department's crime-prevention bureau, yesterday was made a lieutenant by the Commissioners.

He succeeds Lieut. Robert C. Pearce, who was assigned last month to the United States Capitol.

At the same time the Commissioners promoted Privates Daniel O. Fletcher and James E. Dawn to the rank of sergeant. Fletcher aided in the capture Thursday night of an escaped inmate of St. Elizabeths Hospital who confessed to 13 holdups.

Murphy, 39, was appointed to the force December 16, 1923, and made a sergeant October 3, 1935. He lives at 126 Raleigh street southeast, with his wife and two boys.

Fletcher, 33, was appointed to the force October 4, 1929, and holds a certificate of proficiency from Camp Perry. He lives at 4960 Eskridge terrace northwest, and has two daughters.

Dawn is 42 and was appointed August 3, 1929. He lives at 530 Madison street northwest and has five children.

Discussing Local Government for the District

SEEK ACTION ON VOTE—Sefton Darr (left), past president of the District Bar Association; Melvin D. Finch, association president, at last night's meeting

Suffrage Unit to Spur Congress On

Forty District Suffrage Association, civic and business leaders moved last night to "grasp the opportunity" and impress upon a suffrage-conscious Congress the need for self-government in the Capital.

They voted unanimously to support legislative proposals favoring municipal self-rule rather than those stressing national representation in a meeting at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

Sentiment of the meeting was expressed by Sefton Darr, former president of the District Bar Association: "We want local suffrage and we want national representation, but we want local self-government first. When we get that we will have the political power to get the other."

Kennedy Bill Favored

Harry Wender, first vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, stressed the need for national representation equally with local suffrage and urged the meeting to stand "four-square behind the bill of Representative Hatton Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, advocating national representation.

A majority of speakers, however, voiced support of legislation along the lines of the Kennedy bill which favors the local features of the suffrage question.

Wilbur Finch, president of the Suffrage Association, appointed a committee of seven to meet this morning to draft a resolution emphasizing local suffrage ahead of the national vote.

Members of the committee are Darr, Finch, Wender, William A. Roberts, former People's Counsel; Sidney Katz, secretary of the local C. I. O. organization; James McNamara, international vice president of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers of the A. F. of L., and Mrs. Sarah V. Montgomery, secretary of the suffrage organization.

Two Main Points

The resolution to be presented to Representative Jennings Randolph, chairman of the House District Committee, at a special conference Monday will embody the two main points of a memorandum prepared by the suffrage association:

"Partial suffrage could be exercised by the people of the District immediately without waiting several years for a constitutional amendement to be adopted, as the bill suggested could be enacted within the present power of Congress over the District."

"By providing immediately the partial suffrage permitted by the bill, the Democratic Party would prove to the Nation that it is really sincere in its admitted intention of enfranchising District residents." (A District suffrage plank was enacted in the platform at the Chicago convention.)

Melvin Hildreth, District delegate and member of the platform committee at the convention, scored the plight of a voteless Capital in "the one remaining democracy."

"If we're going to show Hitler democracy works we better start in by expanding it right here," the delegate asserted.

Ganz Will Return As Watergate Guest Conductor

Rudolph Ganz, who has been a guest conductor at the Watergate every summer since the National Symphony started playing there in 1935, will stand by his record tomorrow. He will lead the "Sunset Symphony" scheduled for 8 p. m.

Ganz, who is president of the Chicago Musical College, has spent much of his time in New York since his last visit to the Capital. Last winter he succeeded the late Ernest Schelling as conductor of the Children's Concerts of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony.

A Swiss by birth, he will include folk airs from his native land in tomorrow night's program. Other numbers will include "Marche Heroique," by St. Saens; Overture to Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave," Hadyn's Symphony in G, No. 13, Respighi's "Fountains of Rome," Hadley's "The Ocean," Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker Suite," and Berlioz' "Hungarian March."

1,200 Music-Lovers Forget Heat to Enjoy Civic Opera Group's Concert Offering

PUNCTUATED PROGRAM—Periodic flashes of lightning gave silver linings to clouds (lower) over the Watergate last night as the Washington Civic Grand Opera Association presented its program. Upper—Charles Magnan, pianist, and Joseph Bentonelli, soloist, cool off at the water fountain while Lolita Valdez (right), soprano, fans herself

Familiar music caused a crowd of nearly 1,200 to forget the heat last night as Metropolitan Opera Tenor Joseph Bentonelli, Soprano Lolita Veldez and Pianist-Composer Charles Magnan were featured at the Watergate in a program of the Washington Civic Grand Opera Association.

Perhaps it was familiar music, or perhaps the heat that caused an unidentified couple to overturn in a canoe beside the barge while Bentonelli sang as an encore, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." They were quickly picked up by adjoining canoeists and their canoe rigrnted without the knowledge of park police or any but a few persons in the front row of the audience.

At 8 p. m. a scant 500 were scattered over the tiers of seats, yet by 8:30 music lovers had partially filled the chairs and benches. Three seventeenth century tunes, "Gia il Sole dal Gange," "Au Clair de la Lune" and "When Dull Care," sung by Bentonelli, opened the program as lightning forked through dark clouds in the west.

The coincidence of a tiny steam tug panting down river in perfect time to "Au Claire de la Lune" set the stage for the audience's concentration on refreshing music, instead of hot weather. Planes with cut motors that hovered momentarily over the river added to the atmosphere of hushed respect for music in the dogged humidity of night.

Charles Magnan played publicly for the first time his "Fantasie Symphonique," a work in three, short uninterrupted movements. Composed by Magnan during a recent South American concert tour, it showed the influence of the countries of the south with recurrent notes of folk songs from his native Canada.

In the brilliant costume of a Mexican senorita, Lolita Valdez sang four songs of her country which were as popularly received as were her other selections.

The program:

Songs of an Olden Time—
"Gia il Sole dal Gange" Scarlatti (1649-1725)
"Au Clair de la Lune" Lully (1633-1687)
"When Dull Care" Traditional (17th Century)
Joseph Bentonelli.
"Si Mes Vers Avaient des Ailes" R. Hahn
"Les Filles des Cadix" L. Delibes
"When I Have Sung My Songs" E. Charles
"Un Bel Di Vedremo" G. Puccini
Lolita Valdez.
Invocation to Nature from "Werther" Massenet
Donna Non Vidi Mai from "Manon Lescaut" Puccini
Flower Song from "Carmen" Bizet
Joseph Bentonelli.

Songs by Living Composers—
"Trade Winds" (John Masefield) Frederick Keel
"Bread and Music" (Conrad Aiken) James Spencer
"Alehura" (Mexican Love Song) M. M. Ponce
"Do Not Go, My Love" (Tagore) Richard Hageman

Capital News in Brief

Police Finally Catch Up With Stolen Coupe

A stolen convertible coupe that thrice proved too speedy for police to catch was finally recovered yesterday for its owner, Wiley T. Buchanan, jr., 3133 Connecticut avenue. Police found it in Laurel, Md., standing still and stripped.

At the same time police reported they had confessions from the boys who stole the car, along with 14 others, in the last few months. The youths were also being held at No. 6 Precinct station for investigation in connection with a half dozen purse snatchings and at least two housebreakings.

The boys were riding in a stole car when they were picked up yesterday in the 5500 block of Kansas avenue northwest, police reported. Detectives George W. Cook and Charles E. Cannon and Sergt. Robert V. Murray made the investigations leading to the arrests.

Sheltering Society To Go on Cruise

The Hebrew Travelers Sheltering Society and Ladies' Auxiliary will cruise down the Potomac on its annual boat ride for an outing at Marshall Hall Park tomorrow on the Wilson Line boat Mount Vernon, leaving Seventh street wharf at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Members of the reception committee who will be on the wharf to assist members to secure tickets is headed by Mrs. A. Shulman, Mrs. A. Waldman, Mrs. M. Reikes and M. Wishnovsky.

Purse Snatchers Get Long Terms

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough declared from the bench of the District Court yesterday that purse snatchers could look for no mercy from him. He sent two men who robbed women in this manner to prison for long terms.

For grabbing a purse containing $3 and a $5 locket on Sixty-first street northeast on July 5, Maurice H. Ross, 21, colored, must serve three to nine years. Richard Dulin, 20, who snatched $13.86 and a $15 compact at Thirty-first and Q streets July 7, must serve two to six years.

Boy Hurt on Bicycle

Even Bacteria Can't Stand D. C. Heat

Bacteria were very scarce this week on the District's tableware.

Dr. Reid Ashworth, director of the Bureau of Food Inspection, said he called but three restaurant owners on the carpet for using unclean silverware and glasses. The usual number is 20. He also revealed that lipstick on glassware is one of the chief offenders in increasing the bacterial count of restaurants.

Two 300-Pound Radiators Stolen

Maybe George H. Simon, of 3424 Fourteenth street northwest, might be listed among yesterday's heat victims. He told police that two gas type radiators, weighing 300 pounds apiece and valued at $100 each, were stolen from his premises.

2 Fishburne Graduates To Get Commissions

Two District youths who were graduated from Fishburne Military School, Waynesboro, Va., in June have received eligibility certificates entitling them to a second lieutenant's commission in the Reserve Officers Training Corps, it was announced yesterday.

William Hume, of 2420 Fourteenth street northwest, and Raymond Harris, of 629 Longfellow street northwest, received the certificates. Both boys will receive the R. O. T. C. commissions as soon as they are 21 years of age.

George Washington U. Faculty To Frolic

Annual summer party for the George Washington University faculty and the administrative staff will be held today at 2 p. m. at Palisades Park.

'Charges' Small Fee For Repair Work

It cost John J. Shaney $61 to accept a little help on his stalled automobile yesterday. While Shaney, who lives at Halethorpe, Md., was leaning over his dead motor at Third and D streets southwest, a passerby offered assistance.

A few minutes later, when the helper had gone, Shaney missed a wallet containing $61 missing from a side pocket.

Health Law Violators Face Arrest

Strict Enforcement Order Goes to Police, Refuse and Health Departments

The Commissioners yesterday ordered the police, refuse and health departments to take action against violators of the District's cleanliness regulations.

Following a meeting with representatives of the Outdoor Cleanliness Association yesterday, the Commissioners sent memoranda to Police Chief Ernest W. Brown, William Xanten, director of city refuse, and Health Officer George C. Ruhland to carry out the new orders.

A permanent joint committee of three District representatives and three from the citizens' group was formed to study existing health regulations and suggesting needed regulations or legislation to make Washington the Nation's cleanest city. Members will include one each from the police, health and city refuse departments.

Protests Truck Overloading

Jesse C. Suter, vice president of the association, suggested that the work of the three departments should be more closely coordinated to eliminate "buck-passing."

Harry S. Wender, president of the Southwest Citizens Association and a member of the cleanliness steering committee, asked the Commissioners to forbid builders to overload trucks which "pour one or two inches of dirt" in their wake.

Maj. Brown was asked to instruct his men to: Pay stricter attention to violations of the police regulations concerning the disposal of trash and refuse, especially to violations by pedestrians throwing waste paper on the sidewalk or in gutters, and to motorists throwing trash from their car windows; to overloading of trucks resulting in littering streets, and to householders piling trash in the alleys in the rear of their homes.

Business Places, Too

This applies to occupants of dwelling houses, proprietors of boarding houses, commission warehouses, hotels, restaurants and other places.

A similar message was sent to Xanten, with an additional notice that his men of the garbage collection unit be cautioned against unnecessary noises.

The health officer was directed to report any nuisance unabated at the expiration of notice, so that court action could be taken.

At the conclusion of the meeting the three Commissioners were made members of the citizens' group.

Union Official, Amnesia Victim, Returns to Family

Harry Benjamin James, 42, missing from his home at 9 Bailey avenue, Hyattsville, Md., since Wednesday, walked into his living room last night and collapsed after telling his family he "came to his senses" in a tourist camp near Luray, Va., where he read in The Post yesterday that he had disappeared from his home.

His wife, Mrs. Anna Mae James, appealed ot The Post Thursday to aid in finding her husband, who is president of the Washington local, Stationary Engineers Union.

James told his family the last thing he remembered was drinking coffee Wednesday morning in his home. He could not tell how he got to Luray, and collapsed before he could explain how here turned home. He had only $6 with him when he left home. Formerly he was ill with amnesia.

Droop's Widow To Get Nearly All Of $445,000 Estate

Carl A. Droop, president of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., who died July 9, left nearly all his $445,000 estate to his widow, Mrs. Elfieda B. Droop, 1840 Wyoming avenue northwest.

Mr. Droop died at his summer home at Bluemont, Va. A petition for probate of his will was filed in the District Court yesterday by his executors, Mrs. Droop and the National Metropolitan Bank.

The estate included the Wyoming avenue home valued at $17,620 and personal property woth $427,000, including 2,975 shares of the Droop company, valued at $370,000.

Cold Drink Proves To Be Hot Clew

Postal inspectors and Detective Sergt. E. E. Thompson, robbery squad, yesterday were searching for a fugitive wanted in Roanoke, Va., in connection with several forgery cases involving Government compensation checks.

The investigators, with information that their man was "hanging around" Ninth street northwest, canvassed the neighborhood, fruitlessly. They became warm from their walking and decided a cold drink would help.

Walking into a restaurant at Ninth and K streets northwest, they ordered two cold drinks and to their amazement their waiter also was their quarry.

He identified himself as Raymond Q. Harris, 20, of the 1200 block of N street northwest, and admitted he was the man named in a Virginia indictment.

Army Worms Lured By Bright Lights

A subversive army, as secretive as the Fifth Column, has made its way into the heart of the Capital.

The Department of Agriculture reported yesterday that for the first time in 26 years army worms in large numbers have made inroads in Washington lawns. The invasion has centered around Logan Circle and nearby L and I streets, it was said.

The department communication states, "The army worm can get a good start in life before it is discovered. Hatching as a tiny caterpillar, it feeds first near the ground where it cannot easily be seen." The worms came into the District "from outlying farm fields, attracted probably by the bright lights of the city," the report added.

Cincinnati Takes 7th Straight; Homer By McCormick Helps Late Inning Rally

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 26.—After giving up only two hits in six innings Kirby Higbe blew up in the seventh inning tonight and the first place Cincinnati Reds bunched four hits for four runs to beat the Phillies, 9 to 5.

It was the Reds' seventh straight victory.

Going into the seventh inning the Phils were ahead, 3 to 2, thanks to two homers by Bob Bragan and Joe Marty off the Reds' starting pitcher, Paul Derringer.

After Willard Hershberger popped out, Morrie Arnovich and Mike McCormick singled. Pinch-hitter Dean walked to fill the bases. Bragan then fumbled a grounder by Pinch-hitter Ernie Lombardi to tie the score. Bill Werber and Ival Goodman followed with a single and double to drive in three more tallies and send Higbe to the showers.

A homer by Frank McCormick off Relief Pitcher Syl Johnson with two on in the ninth gave the Reds three extra runs.

Hershberger's single following three bases on balls gave Cincinnati two runs in the first. Joe Marty's double and Bragan's homer tied the score in the second. Marty's four-base clout put the Phils ahead in the fourth.

Joe Beggs, who replaced Derringer in the seventh, walked two men. Mel Mazzera then singled to score Herman Schulte while Johnny Rizzo came in on Goodman's error. Beggs did not allow a hit in the last two innings.

48,104 Watch Yankees Blast White Sox, 10-2

Chicago, July 26.—The faltering New York Yankees, threatened with a drop into second division, rose in all their onetime batting power tonight to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 10 to 2, before a roaring crowd of 48,104.

Spud Chandler, the winning pitcher, hit two home runs, one of them with the bases loaded in the ninth inning.

The Sox had won seven straight games and a hilarious South Side crowd swarmed into Comiskey Park hoping to see their heroes move into fourth place ahead of the Yanks. Instead they witnessed a superlative five-hit pitching job by Chandler, who blanked the home nine except for Joe Kuhel's two-run homer in the fourth inning. It was Kuhel's nineteenth of the year.

The game was halted for one hour and 11 minutes in the second inning by rain.

Southpaw Ed Smith, seeking his seventh straight mound victory and fourth of the season over the Yanks, was invincible in the pinches through the first six innings, allowing only one run and leaving ten Yankees stranded on the bases.

But in the seventh the Yanks tied the score on two singles, a sacrifice and an infield out. Joe Gordon followed with a two-run homer into the leftfield stands to give the visitors a 4-2 margin.

Chandler smashed his first homer in the eighth. In the ninth, a single, three walks and his second round-tripper with the bases loaded produced five runs and turned the game into a rout.

Chapman Taunts Nats as He Runs Wild on Bases

Jinx Holds, Macks Beat Tigers, 7 to 4

George Caster Gives Detroit Eight Hits; Bridges Is Shelled

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 26.—The league-leading Detroit Tigers bowed today to their "jinx" opponents, the Philadelphia Athletics, by a 7-4 count, as George Caster held them to eight hits, all singles. The loss cut the Tigers' margin over Cleveland to a half game.

The Athletics shelled Tommy Bridges from the mound in the fifth, and the final two runs were scored off Paul Trout, his successor. Caster, after yielding a run in the second, kept the Tigers scoreless until the eighth, when he lost his control and Detroit pushed across three runs.

Bosox Batter Browns, 14-7

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 26.—Scoring six runs on six hits in a big fifth-inning outburst, the Boston Red Sox outlasted the St. Louis Browns, 14 to 7, in a heavy-hitting contest tonight brightened only by four home runs.

Ted Williams hit two homers and Joe Cronin and Jim Tabor one each for the Red Sox, while Johnny Berardino contributed a round-tripper to the cause. Cronin's homer came in the ninth off Bill Cox wil Dominic Di Maggio, who had walked, on board. Williams, following Cronin, then connected for his second.

Timid Nats Scalped By Those Mean Indians

Belligerent Tribe Attacks Two Griff Pitchers For 20 Hits and Wins, 13-2; Bob Feller Hangs Up His 16th Victory

(Editor's Note—Mr. Povich says he has been accused of being too harsh with the Nats in recent dispatches. Today he takes a different tack.)

By Shirley Povich.
Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, July 26.—The Nats lost another tough one today. They were deadlocked with the Cleveland Indians, 0 to 0, right up to the last half of the first inning when the Indians, the lucky stiffs, launched a 20-hit attack and nosed out Washington, 13 to 2.

Bob Feller, the old meanie, held the Nats to eight hits. He was no less than a cad today, not content with pitching his sixteenth victory of the season. Today for the first time in his five seasons in the big leagues Feller pitched a complete game without issuing a base on balls.

Rene Monteagudo had a world of stuff on the ball, but the Indians were probably stealing his signs. Anyway, they blasted him for six doubles and three triples, and all but killed Rightfielder Buddy Lewis, who bravely ducked everything that came back at him off the rightfield wall.

All Is Haywire

The Nats went down fighting, fighting the ball. They made three errors, but they were all pardonable. Jake Early threw a ball into centerfield with admirable speed despite a lack of direction. Buddy Myer muffed a ground ball that took a tricky hop, especially after it hit his glove, and Sammy West dropped a throw at first base probably out of sheer surprise at the fact that Joe Kraukauskas didn't throw it away.

The Griff athletes were obviously rattled by the hostile shrieks of 12,000 ladies' day fans. The ladies were positively carniverous toward the Nats and reserved all of their cheers for the Indians. It was all very unfair to the Nats.

The upshot of it all was that the Indians vaulted to within a half game of the league-leading Tigers, who were getting slapped down by the A's in Detroit, and the Nats descended into seventh place, at least for the early editions and pending the outcome of the Browns' night game with Boston.

Manager Bucky Harris today showed the stuff of which lovable managers are made. Despite his

Conn, Pastor Winner Gets Louis Fight

By International News Service

New York, July 26.—In a lightning shift of tactics, Promoter Mike Jacobs today lost interest in a Joe Louis-Max Baer September mix and announced that the heavyweight championship shot would go to the winner of the bout between Light-Heavyweight Ruler Billy Conn and Bob Pastor August 13 in the Polo Grounds.

Canceling a contemplated trip to Chicago, Detroit and California to arrange a site for Baer and Louis, Uncle Mike said that New York, Detroit and Chicago all are under consideration in his new scheme which is contingent upon a decisive outcome between the statuesque Pittsburgher and Pastor, who has twice failed against Louis.

Conn, anxious to abdicate his 175-pound throne so that he can swat with Louis in the event he wallops Pastor, has been trying to increase his poundage during the past several months but without much success.

It is understood that the mill with Baer, who was flattened by Louis in four rounds in 1935, was abandoned because Maxie's camp was none too keen on a return thumping.

That Conn will reap "a lot of hell" from Pastor and that "it is ridiculous" to consider matching the frail Irishman with Louis were the punch opinions submitted by Gentleman Jimmy Bronson

Dietz, Clark Reach Finals Of Publinks

Roy Dolce, Ed Furgol Bow in Golf Play at Detroit

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 25.—Mike Dietz, 23-year-old Detroit automobile worker, today advanced to the finals of the nineteenth annual National Public Links Championship with a 3 and 2 conquest of Roy Dolce, of Denver.

Dietz is the first Detroiter ever to attain the public links final. Two up at the end of the morning round, he increased his margin by a hole this afternoon.

Dietz's opponent in the 36-hole final tomorrow will be Robert Clark, St. Paul, Minn., city champion, who conquered Edward Furgol, of Utica, N. Y., the favorite, in a 38-hole duel this afternoon.

Furgol never led at any time in the match and did not draw up even until the thirty-third hole.

On the first extra hole both players had bogey 5s when they trapped their approaches.

On the thirty-eighth hole Clark got a regulation 4, while Furgol just missed an 8-foot putt that would have given him a half and continued the battle.

Hare, Shostrom Battle to Finals

Minneapolis, July 26 (AP).—Charles Hare, of England, and John Shostrom, Chicago, had to battle two hours today to win a finals berth in the doubles in the Minneapolis aquatennial tennis championships.

They beat Eugene Smith, Berkeley, Calif., and Jack Tidball, Los Angeles, 6—4, 0—6, 6—4, 0—6, 10—8. In the other semifinals match, Frank Guernsey, Orlando, Fla., and Russell Bobbitt, Atlanta, won from Ted Olewine and Ronald Edwards, Santa Monica, Calif., 7—5, 6—2, 6—2. The finals will be Saturday afternoon.

There were no singles matches today. In the semifinals Saturday, Guernsey will meet Bob Carrothers, Coronado, Calif., and Olewine will clash with Tidball.

Grays Play Twin Bill

The Gibson Grays unlimited baseball team will play a double-header tomorrow, meeting the Maryland Aces at 2 p. m. at Falls Church, and Ballston at 8 p. m. at Ballston.

Kovacs, Misses Marble And Hardwick Also Advance to Crucial Play of 53d Meet

By the Associated Press

Sea Bright, N. J., July 26.—Bobby Riggs, the nation's No. 1 net man, and unranked Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Cal., bested torrid weather and semifinal opponents today to gain the championship round of the fifty-third annual Sea Bright Invitation Tennis Tournament.

National Champion Alice Marble smothered the bid of Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev., 6-0, 6-0, and Mary Hardwick, England's Wightman Cup performer, eliminated 20-year-old Pauline Betz, Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-2, in a protracted driving duel in the women's semifinal round.

Riggs coasted into the final round on the strength of the first major withdrawal in Sea Bright men's competition since 1928, when Wilmer Allison collapsed at 10-all in the fifth set of his championship match with Johnny Van Ryn. Gil Hunt, eccentric racqueter of Washington, D. C., was the precedent-setter.

After building up a 5-2 advantage in the first set, Hunt suddenly lost all interest in action, scarcely making any effort to get the ball back as he won only half a dozen points in the next five games. He lost the first set, 7—5, and dropped the second, 6—2. His next act was to inform Umpire Ben Dwight that he did not care to continue and walk unperturbed off the court.

Cooke Elwood, of Portland, Oreg., and Kovacs did their part to add zest to the listless program. But the rangy Californian, who yesterday upset defending champion Frankie Parker, ruled the court with acute drives and a winning overhead game and Cooke could not raise his game to meet the attack. Kovacs won out by 6—4, 10—8 and 6—3.

Kovacs will meet Riggs for the championship tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) The women's final is scheduled for Sunday.

Rangers Win

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

POVICH

Cleveland, July 26.—If the Cleveland Indians win the pennant—as they threaten to do—or even finish close, you can chuck that old theory of inspirational leadership out the window, as far as big league baseball is concerned. There is evidence, anyway, that it's the bunk.

If the Indians win the pennant, it won't be because they were galvanized into a winning club by the driving spirit of Manager Oscar Vitt. It will be because of the more compelling factor known in our set as the dough that's in it. It has probably ever been thus in big league baseball.

The Indians are the perfect antithesis of the Boy Scout's idea of a winning ball club. Harmony is non-existent on the club. They are as choice a lot of prima donnas as were ever assembled on one team. They still despise Manager Vitt in a sullen if not open sort of way and their cameraderie begins and ends at 3 o'clock.

But they are doing very well for themselves, nevertheless. In fact, after their open revolt against Vitt last month and freshly following their denouncement of him as a horrible manager, they won 11 of their next 12 games. The other day they had a new five-game winning streak. What does it add up to? Simple. Put enough good ball players on one ball club, and they will win the pennant if Shirley Temple is the manager.

When the dough is in sight, as it is for the Indians, ball players don't need any other inspiration. Years ago the Giants were credited with winning a pennant because Blondy Ryan, a publicity-wise sheristop and not much of a ball player, dispatched a flaming telegram from his hospital bed to his teammates in the West, telling 'em "they can't beat us!" The Giants promptly went on a winning streak and copped the pennant. Sentimental baseball writers made the most of it on their sports pages.

But we dare say those Giants of 1933 weren't especially fired up by Ryan's hep wire. What those babies were inspired by was their opportunity to cash in on the World's Series spoils. And they had enough good ball players to grab the dough. Ryan's telegram was a nice gesture but it was unnecessary and also superfluous.

Getting back to the Indians, Vitt now is only a figurehead with the club. He has lost the respect of his ball players. They are adults who were not carried away by childish quirks when they stomped into Owner Alva Bradley's office and declared that he was mismanaging the team. At least they thought they had sound complaints against him. Then they went out and put themselves back in the pennant race, proving that players, not managers, win ball games.

That was supposed to be the big job of the modern-day manager—keeping harmony on his ball team. The science of baseball is now so narrowed to fundamental and elemental strategy that there can be very little master minding on the part of a manager. No new form of attack or defense has crept into the game for decades. Since 1900 they have been scoring runs and preventing them in the same old way.

But Vitt has not even managed to provide harmony on the club, and yet it is a winning ball club, ready to move into the league lead by winning two more ball games in a row if the leading Detroit Tigers falter. It is all pretty powerful evidence that the manager's job is sort of unimportant. The factor that counts is the dough that's in it for the ball players.

Realistic college football coaches know that the players, not the coach, make the football teams. When the Rockne System of football was the fad, coaches recognized it as the smartest coaching development in the game and were eager to adopt Rockne football. But Rock himself never failed to give credit to the players who could carry out his assignments. He never would say that the Rockne System was better than the Warner System of football.

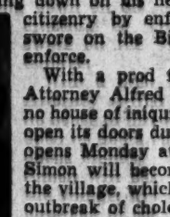
Talking of systems one day, Lau Little, then coaching at Georgetown, unloaded himself of some pertinent philosophy. "You can have all of the coaching systems," he said. "The Rockne System, the Warner System, they're both all right. But give me enough of the right kind of human systems—big, tough guys who are fast on their feet—and I'll give you the best football team. It's the human system that counts."

For years, when the Yankees were winning Pennants, much of the credit was attributed to Manager Joe McCarthy, who was known as the genius behind the Yankee skill. McCarthy from 1936 through 1939 had the best ball players in captivity. He still has most of those same ball players. But the Yanks aren't winning. Where is McCarthy's genius this year? Is he slipping, or are the Yanks? Or maybe a manager wasn't important to the Yankee scheme at all during those years when they had the best ball players. We like the latter theory.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 26.—We are about to undergo another chapter in one of the strangest stories of law and order. The district attorney of the area in which the city of Saratoga sizzles is about to bring down on his head the righteous ire of the citizenry by enforcing one of the laws he swore on the Bible and the constitution to enforce.



CONSIDINE

With a prod from Gov. Lehman, District Attorney Alfred L. Simon has promised that no house of iniquity, physical or financial, will open its doors during the racing season which opens Monday at the Spa. This means that Simon will become about as popular around the village, which hires him to do good, as an outbreak of cholera. There are solid citizens who will cry for his removal from office, on the grounds that he is doublecrossing the merchants, hotel men, cab drivers and Croupiers Local No. 69 by enforcing the law which will keep a lot of fresh cash out of the upstate village.

It probably will mean Simon's job, and if he's the kind of gentleman we think he is he'll be relieved when the day comes which sees him relieved of his office. It must be perplexing to a public-spirited district attorney to get elected on a fine reform platform and then find a considerable portion of his constituents turning on him with an angry snarl when he tries to do his job.

The word had gotten around—we don't know just how—that this would be an "open season" at Saratoga. An "open season" at Saratoga entitles you to shoot, as long as you shoot dice. In fact, there was a corps of workers in the gaming rooms today, dusting the green felt, oiling the roulette wheels and testing the decks and craps, for balance, when the good bald Governor said to Simon that he wasn't going to stand for any nonsense in the Sodom and Gomorrah of the Catskills.

The so-called "word" is a curious thing. Since Simon came into office there has been little gambling in Saratoga. The magnificent rooms lay dark and idle for nights. Then the "word" would come, and for a night or two the capricious wheels would hum and the bones of bliss and betrayal would rattle. Then, without any gendarmes breaking down the doors and loading the fashionable ladies and gentlemen into the town's lone Black Maria, another "word" would come. And the rooms would go dark again. And the sweating proprietors would have to swallow and pay off the expensive floor show and take the rap for the magnificent food which served mainly as a lure for the gambling rooms new dark.

Gambling, of course, is one of the more beguiling gifts of the Devil. But it's odd how it is condoned in Saratoga by daylight and hounded by night. It makes us wonder if the sweep of a clock's hand can absolve sin or pronounce evil—according to the hand's position on the face of an inanimate time-keeper.

It is all right with the State if you lose your rent money at the track in the afternoon, but a crime if, through circumstance or a hot tire, you miss the races and want to lose the money after dark on another gambling device. An honest dice game gives the bettor more of a chance to win than does horse racing, which is neither here nor there. It just so happens that the law looks with favor on the more uncertain and probably more dishonest type of gambling, and it is the duty of the D. A.'s office to rout the rascals who want to put on the fairer dodge.

It's a nutty situation. It's almost comical, too, to hear the complaints of the good burghers up that way. For 11 months a year they are a God-fearing, law-abiding, tax-paying group. But during August all bets are off. Or, rather, on. They want and get racing during that month—parimutuel racing this year—and for generations they were accustomed to having gambling at night, which attracted many more visitors with stuffed pockets. Many shopkeepers and other businessmen could make enough during August to pay off their debts and levies for the rest of the year. But they say they can make it only if they are permitted to bask in the reflected tinkle of day and night gambling. And get downright irate when an officer of the law performs his duty and stops the nocturnal flow of the pious little city's paradoxical life blood.

Worsham, Larkin Gain P. G. A. Golf Berths at Five Farms

Cruickshank, Ernie Ball Also Place

Host City's Linksmen Left Out as Players Fight Terrific Heat; Favorites Go Sky High

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
A Staff Correspondent

Baltimore, July 26.—National P. G. A. championship qualifiers were split two each from Washington and Virginia in the Middle Atlantic sectional qualifying rounds here today as the host Baltimoreans drew a blank over the famous Five Farms layout.

From the District, young Lewis Worsham, playing in this championship for the first time, won a place with a consistent pair of 71's for a 142 total and he was followed safely in the fold by his playing partner from the Woodmont club, Gene Larkin, who put on a finish that made him the hero of the day with 143.

Medalist in the 36-hole grind played through the hottest day of the year here was the tournament veteran from the Country Club of Virginia in Richmond, Bobby Cruickshank, who posted a 138 total. One shot back was the morning leader from Charlottesville, Errie Ball, with 139.

First for Locals

Worsham and Larkin will be making their P. G. A. debuts in the national championship at Hershey next month, but it will be old stuff to Ball and Cruickshank. The former qualified for the fourth time, while Cruickshank carries a fine record in the match-play tournament including two semifinal appearances. He defeated Ball in the third round at Pinehurst several years ago.

Ball set the morning pace by virtue of a great 32 on the back nine that totaled 69 for the round. But in the afternoon Cruickshank was the sensation with an out nine of 31, four under par, and he coupled it with a 36 coming back for 67 and 138. Ball came back in 70 for his 139.

While the Virginians were blasting par and Worsham and Larkin were sticking close, the other low scorers in the first round went sky high. Leo Walper, Ralph Beach and Charles Betschler, all in the running with first-round 72's were out of it by the twenty-seventh hole as was Cliff Spencer, Maryland Open champ, Jim Flattery, of the host club and the Baltimore favorite, Andy Gibson. They all took too many strokes going out. Al Houghton was never a serious contender while Rut Coffey's seven on the thirty-third hole eliminated him. Wiffy Cox, Congressional pro who was almost conceded a place in the preround dope, passed up the trials.

Bass Edged Out

Standing on the sidelines watching Larkin make his winning par on the final hole was Johnny Bass, Clifton park pro, who finished with 144 and John O'Donnell, Cruickshank's assistant at the Country Club of Virginia, who went over par on the thirty-fifth hole and tied Bass. A five by Larkin would have necessitated a three-way nine-hole play off for the final place. Ralph Beach was next with 146 and Spencer 147.

Worsham, who with Larkin qualified for the National Open championship in Cleveland, played consistent golf with 27 pars. Knowing he was easily in, he went over par on 35 and 36, playing the last hole safely after driving in the trees. The youngster was the slowest player in the field, but it paid dividends. His longest birdie putt of the day was a 40-footer on the third.

Larkin also exhibited consistency, posting 28 pars out of the 36. He was 72 in the morning and a birdie on 8 left him one under in the afternoon. However, he three-putted the ninth and was out in par 35, and it looked like he needed 36 on the back nine to qualify.

Trouble Near Fatal

He started with five pars, but on the fifteenth Gene ran into trouble that for the time looked fatal. His second shot caught a trap on the long par 4, he blasted over the green into a clump of trees, chipped past the cup and missed the putt, finishing with a 6. He then needed three pars to make the playoff.

He was down in par four on the sixteenth the regulation way and then on the 155-yard seventeenth hole lifted an iron shot within 18 inches of the pin for a spectacular birdie deuce. He parred the eighteenth to make the grade by a single shot.

Cruickshank dropped six birdie putts over the route, three over 25 feet, and he three-putted two greens. He was not altogether a stranger to the course, having won the Maryland Open here 12 years ago.

Kirby Breaks Course Mark; Shoots 69

Medalist in Asheville Play Reaches Final; Record 6-Under Par

By the Associated Press

Asheville, N. C., July 26.—Dorothy Kirby, pretty young medalist from Atlanta, set a sensational new course record of 69 on the Biltmore Forest Country Club links today in defeating Defending Champion Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., 7 and 6, in semifinals of the annual Women's Invitation tournament.

The new mark is six strokes better than women's par for the course and two shots better than men's par. When she tapped in the last putt on the eighteenth green it marked the first time a woman ever had broken 70 at Biltmore Forest.

It was sweet victory for the Georgia girl because she was defeated by Miss Cothran in last year's finals.

In the other penultimate round engagement, Jane Crum, of Orangeburg, S. C., nosed out Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., one up, after a torrid battle in which Jane was forced to can a 10-footer on the home hole to net a halve and victory.

Mrs. Herbert Top Seeded in Net Meet Today

Public Parks Champion Willie O'Steen Herbert tops the seeded list for the annual Women's Tennis League tournament starting at 2 o'clock this afternoon on the Reservoir courts with what officials say is the largest entry for any local women's tourney this season. There are 32 contenders.

Charlotte Decker, former playgrounds champion, is the only other ranked player.

Attractive first-round matches will pit Miss Décker and Jean Bransford at 4 o'clock, and Helen Fechtman and Mrs. Margaret Keever, the California newcomer, one hour later.

Three first-round matches will be held over until Sunday.

Oliver Licks Headache And Par to Lead Open

Ill New Yorker Scorches Keller Course With Brilliant 66 to Pace Field by Two Strokes in St. Paul Tourney; Four Are Second

By the Associated Press

St. Paul, Minn., July 26.—Ed (Porky) Oliver had a headache today—but it wasn't as bad as the one he handed par and the rest of the field in the opening round of the $7,500 St. Paul Open Golf Championship.

The roly-poly pro from Hornell, N. Y., who skyrocketed to national attention when he was disqualified in last month's national open, scorched the Keller course with a brilliant six-under 66 to grab pace-making honors in a day's play which saw 42 players equal or better regulation figures.

Oliver, whose 287 in the National Open would have given him a playoff berth for the title had he not been barred for starting his last round ahead of time, had such a severe headache he had to take a bromide during his out nine. It didn't stop the rotund 23-year-old star from making the turn in 33, however, and he duplicated that three under par performance on the trip home. His six birdies—he didn't have a bogie—were traceable to fine approach shots.

Four Tie at 68

Two shots off the blistering pace were four 68 shooters, Bill Kaiser, Louisville, Ky.; Johnny Revolta, the iron artist from Evanston, Ill.; Frank Moore, of Detroit, and Jimmy Hines, Lakeville, N. Y. Revolta and Moore had cards of 34-34, with Kaiser going out in 33 and coming back in 35 for his four-under-par total. Hines went out in 37 and came back in 31, the best nine-hole score of the day.

Dick Metz, of Oak Park, Ill., whose 270 set a tourney record and won him first money of $1,600 last year, had a 69, as did Jim Ferrier, holder of the Australian Open and amateur titles. Other 69 performers were Jim Foulis, Chicago; Ralph Stonehouse, Chicago; Tony Penna, Dayton, Ohio; John Bulla, Chicago, and Len Mattison, the home pro.

Hogan Has 70

The 70 bracket included Ben Hogan, the year's leading money winner, and Ralph Guldahl, whose finishing power made him a big threat as the field goes into the second 18 holes tomorrow preparatory to Sunday's 36-hole final. Harry Cooper, three-time winner of the tournament, had a 71, one shot under the score posted by Lawson Little who won the National Open crown on a play-off with Gene Sarazen.

One of the day's standout rounds was contributed by the old master, Walter Hagen; he had a par 72 despite a two-over-par seven at No. 7.

Hayes Takes Two Games

Haynes nine moved into first place in the Midget League at Sherwood Playground yesterday as it defeated Ludlow, 8-4, in the first half of a doubleheader and Diamond Club in the nightcap, 8-7.

Hot Springs, Va., July 26.—George Deyoe, Washington sharpshooter, captured the 410-gauge event today in the Clark Challenge Trophy skeet shoot with a 91.

Joe George, of Sudlersville, Md., was second, with 88; C. S. Hottel, Washington, third, 87, and Fay Ingalls, Hot Springs, fourth, 86.

Dr. Ira T. Hornbarger, of Hot Springs, won the 20-gauge event with a 98, followed by George with 97. Deyoe and Ed Baysden, of Newport News, each with 96. Deyoe won the third-place shoot-off.

The two-man event, a new event on the program, was won by John S. Hawkins, of Harmans, Md., and George, whose score was 189 x 200. Baysden and Hottel were second with 186.

George had the longest straight of the day—71—and Dr. Hornbarger next with 67.

The all-bore event for the Clark Trophy, team event and ladies and junior events will be held tomorrow.

French Leads Cubs to Easy 14-1 Victory

Giants Bow to Seven-Hit Effort; Bonura Gets Opening Homer

By the Associated Press

New York, July 26.—Laughing Larry French was positively hilarious at the expense of the Giants today.

The Chicago Cubs' lefty tossed a seven-hitter and drove in four runs with three singles, himself, as he and his mates took Sweet William Terry's outfit apart 14 to 1. The win moved the Cubs to within two games of the third place New Yorkers in the National League pennant chase.

The run total was a new season high for the Cubs as they gave Stringbean Cliff Melton and Daffy Dean a thorough going over, climaxing their attack with an eight run blast off the former in the seventh inning. Every one in the Cub lineup hit safely at least once, except for Billy Herman and Hank Leiber. Bananas Bonura hit his first home run as a Cub in the big seventh.

Meantime, French, after serving a home run ball to Jojo Moore in the first inning for the lone Giant tally, just breezed along without encountering any trouble from Terry's terrible terriers. It was Laughing Larry's tenth victory of the season.

The Cubs got their scoring under way with a three-run splurge in the second inning. Hank Leiber walked, Bonura dropped a Texas league single and Rabbit Warstler singled to center for the first run. French then came up with his first hit for the other two tallies.

Terry let Melton stay in and face the music throughout the seventh inning fireworks. Three walks, an error, singles by Warstler and French, a double by Augie Galan and Bonura's three-run fourmaster netted the eight tallies. In the ninth, the Cubs finished up with three more runs.

Heckled by Knot-Hole Fans, Players Halt Game for Chase

By the Associated Press

St. Joseph, Mo., July 26.—Keith Frazier, who manages St. Joe's Western Association baseball team and plays left field, doesn't mind if the paid customers insult his boys but he'll be hanged if the knot-holers do it.

Three non-paying spectators heaped ridicule from atop a fence last night as St. Joseph was taking another shellacking from Muskogee. Something was said about "$80 a month ball players."

Frazier invited the trio to come down and fight. St. Joseph players took up the chase. Muskogee players joined in it. A few nimble-footed fans did likewise but the rest of the 500 spectators stayed put during a 20-minute interval between the fourth and fifth innings while two of the hecklers escaped in a car and a third suffered a bit of shaking up.

"The exercise did my pitchers good," later commented Manager Jack Mealey of Muskogee.

"It's an interesting league," said Frank Mancuso, the St. Joseph catcher.

"We had a fight with the cops at Muskogee last week and now we're chasing guys all over Buchanan County."

Rain Stops Cards-Dodgers Game at 3-3

33 Men Used in Long Battle, Stopped in Last Half of 10th Inning

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, July 20.—The St. Louis Cardinals and the Dodgers used a grand total of 33 men today, fought it out for two hours and 40 minutes—and wound up in a 3-all tie as rain stopped their game in the last half of the tenth inning.

Terry Moore hit two homers for the Cards and Don Padgett drove in Enos Slaughter with a long fly in the top of the ninth to tie the score and send the game into overtime. Slaughter had tripled.

Lou Warneke, after pitching three-hit ball through six innings, gave up a run in the seventh on Jimmy Wasdell's triple and an error, then bowed out to a pinch hitter. In the eighth, Ira Hutchinson's wildness, an infield out and Joe Vosmik's single netted the Dodgers' other two runs.

Kilocycle Takes Suffolk Feature With Emery Up

Boston, July 26.—Cleverly ridden by Apprentice Willie Emery, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Kilocycle, a 4-5 favorite, scored by two lengths today in the 5-furlong dash for $2,500 juvenile platers which topped the card at Suffolk Downs.

Staying off the pace setters, Emery drove through on the rail to save several lengths and the homebred came away in the final eighth.

The winner ran the five-eighths in 1:00 1-5 and paid $3.80, $3.20 and $2. Ambo paid $9.80 and $6.20. Bolinvar paid $9.

Pirates Blank Bees Behind Heintzelman

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 26.—The Pittsburgh Pirates blanked the Boston Bees, 9-0, today behind the five-hit pitching performance of Ken Heintzelman, their young southpaw.

Despite the presence of Max West in their line-up for the first time since the All-Star game, the Bees were unable to advance a runner beyond second base. Only three of them were able to connect against Heintzelman, the veteran Johnny Cooney and Chet Ross, who got two hits each, and Albie Glossop. Heintzelman gave four bases on balls but also had as many strikeouts.

The Pirates clinched the game in the first inning when they scored twice on Paul Waner's double, Debs Garms' single and Eddie Miller's poor throw to first on Elbie Fletcher's grounder. While pounding three Boston pitchers for 13 safeties, the Pirates put on three-run rallies in the fourth and ninth innings and also scored in the seventh.

Challedon, Kayak II Renew Rivalry Today

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, July 26.—Headed by the mighty Challedon and Kayak II, 12 thoroughbreds parade postward tomorrow at Hollywood Park for the third running of the $50,000 gold cup, peak event of the summer turf season in the West.

Challedon, W. L. Brann's winner of the famed Preakness and the pride of all Maryland, and Charles S. Howard's Kayak II, victor in the 1939 gold cup, dominate the field and meet for the third time—but for the first time at equal weight.

The rest of the field named today to answer the bugle for the mile and one-quarter special included Myron Selznick's Can't Wait, the Valdina Farm's Viscounty, Kayak's stablemate, Advocator, A. A. Baroni's Specify and Vain Bo, and such so-called outside hopes as Hysterical, Wedding Call, Filisteo, Mount Vernon II and Joy Boy.

The Kayak-Advocator entry shaped up as the betting favorite, trailed closely by the newly arrived Challedon from the East. But many turfmen, remembering Big Flash's win in the $25,000 Hollywood Derby last week over top choices Mioland and Sweepida, refuse to go completely overboard on the two short-odd candidates.

In the past two years running, the Howard silks have monopolized the big purse. The great Seabiscuit won the 1938 cup, and Kayak came home in front of Cravat and Specify last year, but Kayak hasn't raced since his second to Seabiscuit in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap last March, and carries more weight than ever before—133 pounds.

The same is true of Challedon, while Can't Wait, which boasts victories over Eight Thirty and other crack Eastern horses, goes at a mere 115 pounds. Challedon defeated Kayak in the Pimlico Special, carrying 120 pounds to Kayak's 126, and again, with 118 pounds, won the Narragansett Special, with the Argentine packing 128. Challedon drew post position No. 9, Kayak No. 12 and Can't Wait No. 10.

Warm weather, a gala throng of 45,000 or more, and a fast track were promised for the race. Post time was set at 5:32 p. m. (8:32 p. m., E. S. T.).

Dazzling Golf By Turnesa Gains Finals

Willie Advances Over Holt in N. Y. State Meet; Billows Moves Up

By the United Press

Syracuse, N. Y., July 26.—Willie Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., gained the finals in the New York State Championship today with the hottest shooting the golf world has seen in many a day.

William B. Stark, of Syracuse, president of the State Golf Association, said the former State and National Amateur champion played "the best match I have ever seen and probably the best ever played in the world."

The former champ was two down to trail Bill Holt, of Syracuse, on the semifinal fourteenth when he opened the miracle bag. From the fourteenth to the eighteenth holes he shot five consecutive one-putts. He clipped five strokes from the Onondaga Country Club's par for a 67, one under Holt's 68.

Turnsea's precision drive down the home lap broke up a neat, but less sensational Holt comeback. Trailer Bill had risen to the two-stroke lead at the fatal fourteenth from a one-down lag at the end of the first nine.

Thus, Turnesa shot his way into the finals tomorrow with Ray Billows, of Poughkeepsie, who defeated Alex Banazek, of Syracuse, one up on the eighteenth in the semifinals.

Previously, Fred Allen, of Rochester, eliminated Larry Sovik, five times Syracuse city champion, two and one in the quarter-finals. Turnesa tucked Allen away three and two.

Banazek defeated Ed Rowe, of Syracuse, six and five, and Billows downed Arnold Zimmerman, of Hornell, one up on the nineteenth in the other quarter-final rounds.

Holders of Two Combinations Win in 'Deadheat' Doubles

Second Race Tie Produces Odd Pay-Off

Bel Air Customers See Purse Divided In Half; Goodwine Wins 5th at $12.80

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Bel Air, Md., July 26.—The daily double, which has been given much publicity on Maryland tracks because of box-car pay-offs, found a new way to keep in the spotlight today. Dead heat, racing's hole-in-one, figured in the twin wager and holders of two combinations were successful in beating this kind of betting.

S. H. Hall's Sun Scene won the first race and the first half of the double in the usual manner of leading her opposition to the wire. But in the second race and the concluding half of the double, the judges looked hard and long at a photograph of A. Gazzle's Scarlet Flame and B. A. Hall's Blenethel with their noses against the line and decided on a dead heat.

Half a loaf was better than none. Backers of the Sun Scene-Scarlet Flame combination collected $43.80 instead of $90.90, and those who took Sun Scene with Blenethel saw their pay-off reduced from $34.60 to $17.90. The same split of the winning money went on in the individual betting in the second event. Blenethel paid $4, while her long-shot rival returned $7.10.

Goodwine Wins

Backers of Jockey Sammy Palumbo and Mrs. Thomas Lewis' Goodwine had a chance to forget the heat when the 5-year-old daughter of Sun God II paid $12.80 in winning the fifth event, the day's feature, designated as the Bradshaw Purse. Goodwine won by three lengths in front of a photo finish between Pirate Ship and Lula Khayyam. Pirate Ship got the nod of the judges. Palumbo showed his best riding skill. He was forced to come between horses to get to the front and did so in fearless fashion.

The day's steeplechase event went to the favored Edwin Booth, a son of Theatrical. Ridden by Mr. P. D. Reed, gentleman jockey, Edwin Booth came from behind to win by a half length over Mrs. A. Dickinson's Garrynamona with Doctor's Gift, owned by J. F. Adams, jr., third. The winner paid $4.40.

SCARLET FLAME forced to front going to first turn, saved ground, was put to pressure when displaced by BLENETHEL and came again to fight it out willingly. BLENETHEL, keen forward factor from start, came around leader to get to front. BRAZEN HUSSY was steadied early and was held safe while driving and barely failed to last under strong handling. MARSHAL A. moved up menacingly approaching stretch and hung thereafter.

Daily Double, SUN SCENE and SCARLET FLAME, Paid $43.80

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EDWIN BOOTH, $4.40, $3.20, $3.10; GARRYNAMONA, $4.30, $3.70; DOCTOR'S GIFT, $2.20.

EDWIN BOOTH fenced well from start, went to outside while making move, took command entering stretch and held on gamely in final drive. GARRYNAMONA dropped back after a half, went between horses to again reach contention and closed with good courage. DOCTOR'S GIFT fought it out willingly, but could not reach top ones. JACKIE took command briefly, but weakened after making a bad landing. BAH'S VIEW managed to stand up, but fenced and ran very bad.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:42½. Off 3:44½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WALE SIGNAL, $12.40, $7.30, $4.80; CHIEF CHEROKEE, $12.20, $6.20; ANYA, $5.10.

WALE SIGNAL was unable to keep up early, came to inside to improve position, responded gamely to punishment and wore down CHIEF CHEROKEE to win going away. CHIEF CHEROKEE was under restraint early, responded willingly when placed to drive and took command between calls, but could not resist winner. ANYA moved up boldly to get to front on outside to reach serious contention and weakened thereafter. ACCIDENTAL dwelt at break and had no chance.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOODWINE, $12.80, $7.70, $4.60; PIRATE SHIP, $7.80, $5.60; LULA KHAYYAM, $5.30.

GOODWINE, bothered at first turn, was steadied to backstretch, moved up boldly when placed to hard drive, fought way through between leaders to take command and won under pressure. PIRATE SHIP circled leaders to take command at first turn, set good pace and held on gamely. LULA KHAYYAM was hard ridden while settling and fighting for and weakened right at close. SHALL WE DANCE went evenly and showed a good effort.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:51. Off 4:52. Winner, W. C. Barro's b. m. (7), by Mayne—Spinnaker. Trained by H. McHenry. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:28⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DRESSMAKER, $4.50, $3.10, $2.60; VERITAS, $6.30, $3.70; EXHORT, $3.60.

DRESSMAKER, within striking distance from start, came around VERITAS to take command and drew out to win easily. VERITAS raced JACK'S QUEEN into defeat to get to front, but could not resist winner while holding others safe. EXHORT saved ground and could not threaten seriously while under strong handling. PUMICE STONE closed a gap from a slow beginning.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:21. Off 5:22. Winner, A. C. Paul's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MILLIE O, $104.10, $48.00, $18.30; MOON HARVEST, $6.90, $5.10; VICTORY LIGHT, $7.60.

MILLIE O, sent to contention at once, gained gradually along backstretch, wore down MOON HARVEST to take command and drew out. MOON HARVEST went to front at once, withstood bids of KITTIWAKE and could not resist winner, but was best of others. VICTORY LIGHT, steadied when in close quarters early, was blocked entering stretch and weakened in final 70 yards. MORE GRAND was well placed throughout and showed good effort. TROSTAR was off alertly and would not extend himself.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:51½. Off 5:52. Winner, Mrs. C. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHANNING, $11.70, $6.10, $4.00; SUNNY ROSE, $5.10, $4.50; ROYAL ERROR, $6.70.

CHANNING, close up from start and raced for half, forged to front when asked, drew out and was not seriously threatened thereafter. SUNNY ROSE worked way to contention on outside and closed gamely. ROYAL ERROR was vigorously handled throughout. CLYMENE had no excuses. OFFICIATE was keen forward factor for half and weakened gradually thereafter.

Yale o' Nine Wins Feature at Arlington

Chicago, July 26 (AP).—Yale O'Nine, 4-year-old gelded son of Peter Hastings, racing for Tom Taggart's French Lick Springs Stable, won the feature race at Arlington Park today.

Jockey Al Craig held Yale O'Nine far off the early pace. At the head of the stretch he was on even terms with the pace setter, No Competition, and drew ahead to win by a length. Much Gusto was third.

Selections at Bel Air

Dear Al:

Edwin Booth, winner of yesterday's steeplechase, is a native of Bel Air. The son of Theatrical was foaled and raised here by R. H. Heighe. Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan turned out a good set for today's week-end program here. The line-up includes the Country Life Farm Handicap, named for the farm of Adolph Pons down the road from this track, and the Caves Farm Steeplechase Handicap. Flat races are from 5 furlongs to a mile and a quarter. Long reserve lists for all events assures limit fields. The B. & O. race special leaves Union Station in Washington at 11:55 a. m. Black Demon broke down in Thursday's final race. There were two claims for him and A. L. Leith was the unlucky winner of the limping steed. I have seen them draw for dead ones. Sammy Palumbo is ailing. He suffered an injured ankle when Maeside fell with him in the starting gate. However, he is trying to ride. Roman Boy and Rippling On, recent winners in New York, were shipped here by Owner P. H. Faulconer. C. H. FitzGerald will train them. Rippling On is a full sister of the stake winner, Crepe. John Manfuso has pictures of two of his yearlings; both are by Mowlee and out of the mares True Tune and En Passant. Both are good-lookers. Trainer Jim Arthur reports the arrival from New York of Black Pearl. Like the other half-mile tracks, Cumberland is swamped with applications for stalls. The massive tree in the infield furnishes shade for hundreds of fans and is a thing of beauty. However, it is a pain in the neck tao chart callers. However, I hope it lives another 100 years. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Ophelia II demonstrated her speed at Hagerstown and appears to have too much on the ball for this field. Misty Eye has turned back fair ones and looms as the one to beat. Ida Time closed with a bold rush to win at the other town and could be prominent in this company.

Second race—Serrano was beaten by a narrow margin at Hagerstown and may have needed that race. Fits nicely in this field, and I'm going to string along. Westing has speed and has worked well and should give a good account of himself. John Werring could be the third one.

Third race—Redlander appears the best in the day's steeplechase. This one has some class and should like the course. Axacan won with good speed last out and gets in with 152 pounds. May be too heavily weighted. Fire Light probably will better that last.

Fourth race—Furr Buckle has plenty of foot and could be the right one in a rather open affair. Best Policy is good now and is a threat. Ace of Trumps would be close if able to get off the reserve list.

Fifth race—Canterup may take the day's feature at good odds. May have needed that outing here earlier in the week. Blablah has plenty of speed and is dangerous. Double Back for the minor award.

Sixth race—Dulie needs only to squeeze into this field to be the winner. Has the class and the speed. The mile suits the front-running Dark Sun. Doctor's Nurse should get a place in the pay off.

Seventh race—Counter Pass has been rested and may make this effort a winning one. Favors this route and is fit. Last Scamp has been showing good form and is dangerous. Bay Arnold may have to be respected.

Eighth race—Worth Owning turned in a fine performance last out and belongs with this kind. Mayriel, if away alertly, will be a threat. Ann Mowlee and Stepping In are possibilities.

Best bet—Dulie

Washington Gun Shoot Set Today

Washington Gun Club's weekly shoot will be held this afternoon about 2 o'clock on the Bennings grounds. The usual three-trophy distribution of prizes will occur, with two prizes being awarded to high guns in each of two classes, A and B, in the first event of 50 targets.

In the second event of the day, at 25 targets, shooters will stand at yardage determined by scores in the first event. Following the regular program, practice rounds will be staged for those desiring.

M. P. M. Market Girls Defeat Sholl's Ten

M. P. M. Market's girls yesterday achieved a coveted victory, defeating Sholl's Cafe, 2939 District' girls' softball champions, 3-10, after overcoming a 9-0 first inning deficit.

Star of the game was M. P. M. pitcher, Isabelle Butler, who, after relieving Thelma Northrup with one out in that hectic first frame, allowed only two hits for the remainder of the six-inning game, which was shortened by darkness.

United Brethren Win, 9-3

United Brethren defeated Y. M. C. A., 9-3, yesterday in a second-half Junior Y. M. C. A. Baseball League game. Browbeer was the winning pitcher.

Grain Storage Sets Record in Kansas City

Kansas City, July 26 (AP).—Grain stored in greater Kansas City's 18 public elevators soared to a record high today as unloading operations of supplies of the new wheat crop accumulated on track brought the total in the bins to 42,168,000 bushels.

All but 1,297,000 bushels is wheat.

The previous record for all grain stored was 41,940,000 bushels on September 17, 1932.

The capacity of public elevators is rated at 45,500,00 bushels, but 43,000,000 bushels represents full capacity because of the necessity of retaining some empty space for working room.

Store Sales Gain 9% During Week

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board estimated yesterday that department store sales in the week ended July 20 averaged 9 pr cent more than in the corresponding week last year.

Sales in the week ended July 13 had been 7 per cent above last year, and the average gain for the four weeks ended July 20 also was 7 per cent.

By Federal Reserve districts, gains in the week ended July 20 over a year ago, included:

Boston, 4; New York, 8; Philadelphia, 10; Cleveland, 13; Richmond, 13; Atlanta, 4; Chicago, 10; St. Louis, 5; Kansas City, 7.

Commodities Move in Rut, Trend Lower

Wheat Closes Steady To Fractionally Down; Corn Holds Firm

By the Associated Press

Commodity prices were in a narrow compass yesterday, and where changes occurred they were mostly downward, reversing the course of Thursday.

In a few staples there were indications of liquidation by speculative holders unwilling to remain committed over the week-end.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staple prices advanced to 69.77 per cent of the 1926 average from 69.62 per cent Thursday.

Packard Loss Cut Sharply in First 6 Months

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 26.—Packard Motor Car Co. yesterday reported a net loss of $102,365.66 for the six months ended June 30, last. This compares with a net loss of $1,040,616 for the comparable period of 1939.

A statement accompanying the report says that the company operated profitably through the first five months of the year, but sustained a deficit in June sufficiently large to result in a net loss for the first half of the year. Charged against June operations was a large inventory of finished cars designed to carry dealers through the current change-over period.

The company had a June 30 factory inventory of 6,300 finished cars as compared with 300 a year ago.

Exchange Markets

New York, July 26 (AP).—The open market rate of the British pound sterling rose 2 cents in terms of the American dollar today while the "free" Canadian dollar quotation rallied .12½ of a cent.

Dealings in both currencies were small, representing transactions between Americans as result of the recent extension of war-time exchange controls restricting open-market operations in the pound.

Swiss francs were a shade higher. Transactions to the continent continued to flow through that currency in the absence of trading in the French franc and other exchanges ruled out since Germany extended her sway in Europe.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Canada—Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 0.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 12½ per cent discount, or 87.50 U. S. cents.

Pennsy's Net Up $7,138,373 In Six Months

Operating Income Rise Continues in June; B. & O. Also Gains

The Pennsylvania railroad yesterday reported net railway operating income of $33,949,374 in the first six months this year, an increase of $7,138,373 over the same period last year. In the first half of 1938 net operating income totaled $19,678,844.

Net operating income for June was $6,773,523, an increase of $1,122,297 over the same month last year.

Freight revenues in June gained $5,897,338, but passenger revenues were $282,221 under last year.

B. & O Railroad

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad reported yesterday its net railway operating income for the first six months of 1940 was $12,376,162—an increase of $4,667,941 over the comparable period of 1939.

Net railway operating income for June was $2,840,614—an increase of $976,731 over June ,1939.

Illinois Central

The Illinois Central System reported a net railway operating income for June of $605,268 as compared with $676,199 for the same month a year ago. For the six months ended June 30 the net railway operating income was $5,910,209, as compared with $5,828,871 for the same period a year ago.

New Haven

A deficit of $445,017 after fixed charges was reported for June by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. as compared with a $619,770 deficit for the same month last year.

The deficit for the first six months of 1940 totaled $2,162,454 as against a $2,775,776 deficit for the same period in 1939.

Other Railroads

	1940.	1939.
Chicago, Burlington & Quincy	$2,202,886	$2,303,582
Chicago & Eastern Illinois	34,096	*19,269

Business Highlights

Prepared for The Post By Standard Statistics

Capital Goods

Orders for capital goods increased substantially in June. They were up 23 per cent as compared with June, 1939. The backlog of unfilled business in the heavy industries is sufficient to insure a high rate of operations in these lines through the remainder of the summer. The next major move in the capital goods industries is expected to be upward. The gain should take place with the start of autumn, when the armament program will begin to move at a more active pace.

Steel and Defense

The steel trade is able to cite a good many convincing examples in support of the contention that the steel manfacturers are going to get a tremendous volume of business from our defense program. One has to do with an $11,000,000 airport, one of ten to be built here and there throughout the country. It is estimated that steel sashes for this one project will cost around $1,700,00. Then steel sheets and beams will be required for the airport buildings, steel reinforcing rods rods for the concerte runway and foundation work and a substantial volume of miscellaneous steel items such as rivets, nuts and bolts, fences, towers and so on. All told it is estimated that upward of 75 per cent of the outlay for materials for this project will be for steel of one sort or another.

Week's Offerings Show Abrupt Drop

New York, July 26 (AP).—Public sale of new security issues fell off during the week ended yesterday to $22,081,000, Poor's Publishing Co. reported today. The decline followed two successive weeks of unusual activity in which new offerings represented municipal financing, no corporate issues of any size reaching the market.

Edison, Running for Governor, Sounds Real Democracy Note

By Merryle S. Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

Charles Edison, executive head of Thomas A. Edison Industries, has made a substantial contribution to sound employer-employe relations.

As a businessman, he not only declines directly or indirectly to dictate to his 7,000 employes as to how they should vote, but he goes further and explains that, though he himself happens to be Democratic candidate for Governor in New Jersey, it is perfectly all right for any employe to vote aginst him and, if they choose, campaign for his opponent.

Thus, Mr. Edison in eliminating any self-serving moves goes even a step further than the code which this column proposed recently in discussing a program for management in an election year.

"Chief executives," it was pointed out in the earlier column, "have no right to impinge on the freedom of their employes to vote as they choose.

"When the former fail to make clear that they recognize their employes' liberty of action, as they did in the eleventh hour pay-envelope messages of 1936, they defeat their own purposes.

"In their dealings with employes, stockholders and customers, executives should confine themselves to the use of objective facts and figures. They should leave to their audience the next step of translating the data into conclusions as to which candidate best exemplifies sound doctrines."

Evidently Mr. Edison thinks that there is a time and place for everything.

While on the stump he will talk politics, but electioneering will cease on company property.

As a businessman and a citizen, Mr. Edison, son of the illustrious inventor, deserves commendation for setting standards in this field.

Mr. Edison, in giving the reasons for his instructions to his coworkers, explained: "The America we have known and loved—the democracy we intend to preserve—needs two strong parties. I believe in two strong parties.

"Moreover, I do not want the fact that I am a candidate in any way to cause you to hesitate about working actively and openly for any other candidate for any office.

"I am sure you all know me well enough to believe I mean just what I say."

That is the American way—to confine the discipline which management imposes on employes to purely economic matters germane to to production and distribution of goods and services. Such authority over the workers goes no further. he is his own master in the field of religion, morals and politics. Contrast this magnificent system of economic discipline amidst civil and religious freedom over here with to totalitarian concept which reduces citizens to the undignified position of slaves of the all powerful state.

Every responsible American should be punctilious to preserve the substance and the spirit of our glorious institutions of human freedom.

Incidentally, in honoring his employes with adult treatment, Mr. Edison as a biproduct promotes good will between management and men. The new trend in management is to stop talking down to employes, but instead to treat them as intelligent colleagues in a joint operation.

Bethlehem and Chrysler Lead Mild Upturn As Stock Turnover Accelerates Moderately

New York, July 26.—Trading picke up slightly in Wall Street today and prices also did some better but in neither direction was the improvement sufficient to call for a celebration. The Herald Tribune's stock index showed a gain of 0.08 point, with the best buying in the war issues, and the turnover on the big board amounted to 272,810 shares.

Bethlehem Steel and Chrysler were leaders from the beginning, being buoyed by their earnings reports which were issued after the close on Thursday. The former company is operating now at 99 per cent of capacity and has a current backlog, including $200,000,000 in recent naval awards, of nearly $500,000,000. Chrysler's earnings for the first half of the year were at a new record high.

Chrysler Is Strong

Loft was again the day's most active stock, easing a slight fraction, followed by Chrysler and Bethlehem, up ⅞ and ¾ point, respectively. They eased a bit from their best for the day just before the close. The entire industrial list was helped by these and other earnings statements of leading corporations, the general tendency being one of vast improvement over a year ago.

While the general level of business has been holding steady and the stock market has run almost a level course for a month, it is interesting to note the action of the London market, While Great Britain only recently increased its taxes and the country is threatened with an invasion on any day now, its market reflects buying on a large scale. It advanced vigorously again today and closed generally strong with prices near their best.

In our own market today, the equipments, steels, aviations and store issues turned in the best performance. War issues did well despite the growing skepticism over the placing of orders for war equipment by the Government. Changes were mostly fractional and none of the 15 most active issues moved as much as a point from its previous close.

Bonds Firm; Deals Dull

Listed bonds failed to snap out of their dull routine today, turnover amounting only to $3,460,000. The tone was firm in most sections, but a few soft spots developed. Cuba Northern Railway and Cuban Railroad obligations slipped 4 to 5 points lower, on the announcement on the New York Stock Exchange that these companies intend to pay only 1 per cent interest, owing to a "transitory" provision of the new Cuban constitution. Trading in the issues was stimulated only slightly.

United States Treasury obligations were firm in a dull market. Best rated corporate issues also held to previous level. Among speculative railroad bonds a modest upward trend was in evidence, with only a few issues able to advance as much as a point. Alleghany Corporation issues were fairly active and irregular. Share privilege bonds were in mild demand.

In the foreign section Cuba Government 4½s dropped a point, although they are reported to be unaffected by the moratorium of that country. Other Latin-Americans were irregular. German and Italian government bonds were motionless, and other belligerent country bonds remained dull. Occupied country issues hardly moved.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 26 (AP).—Breaking of the heat wave, predicted yesterday and discounted then by corn and wheat price declines of about a cent a bushel was taken in stride by the grain market today with little or no price reaction.

On the contrary corn prices rose as much as 1⅞ cents at one time, with wheat up ⅞ cent. Buying of corn was attributed largely to disappointment of some dealers as to the amount of moisture received over most of the belt, except in Iowa. They pointed out that continued unsettled weather with regular doses of moisture is necessary to maintain crop conditions in most regions. This was promised for the next 24 hours at least by the official forecast. Some wheat buying at times came from mills.

Corn closed unchanged to ¾ cent higher compared with yesterday, September 61¼@61⅝, December 58½@58⅝. Wheat was unchanged to ⅜ off, September 74¼@74¼, December 75¼@75⅜; oats ¼ higher; rye ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher; lard unchanged to 5 higher.

Hedging sales against bookings of 120,000 bushels of corn to arrive helped to depress the September contract. Grain men said the redemption offer regarding 1938 loan corn is stimulating country sales particularly from sections where cribs must be cleared for the new crop.

Wheat dipped as much as ⅛ cent below previous closing levels at one time, and deferred contracts closed at or near the day's lows but September was steadied by lifting of hedges against 211,000 bushels sold for shipment. A cargo of wheat on July contracts was shipped to Buffalo and more grain is expected to take this route.

Cables indicated Great Britain will permit importations of wheat in Spain solely for domestic use and exporters confirmed sale of 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to Portugal bringing Canadian export business the past few days to 1,000,000 bushels, mostly to Great Britain. Argentine shipments to the United Kingdom have continued in moderate quantities but clearances to Spain have dropped off.

Oats and rye trade was quiet and lard firmed in sympathy with grains and hogs.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, July 26 (AP). — With receipts cut sharply, the hog market rallied today, prices advancing generally 15-25 cents. The top was $6.75. Most killing classes of cattle and spring lambs were steady. Receipts totaled only 4,500, or 3,000 below previous estimates and 3,000 under last week's. Still reacting to diminished consumer demand, best wholesale pork loins declined another ½ cent to 16 cents a lb. Mo

915 Reserve Officers in Va. Called to Duty

58 to See Service For Year; Rest Listed For Short Periods

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 26.—A total of 915 Virginians who are members of the officers Reserve Corps of the United States Army have been called to active service by the War Department since July 1, according to Army orders on file at Eightieth Division Headquarters here today.

The officers in this State who have been called to active duty are roughly divided into three troups: Those training at various military posts for periods ranging from one to four weeks, those who will participate in the first American Army maneuvers in northern New York State during one to four weeks, and those who are assigned to one year's active duty with the Regular Army.

Included among the 915 Virginia officers called to active duty are members of almost every arm and branch of the service. Roughly, slightly more than half of them have been ordered to participate in the first American Army maneuvers next month in the capacity of officers attached to National Guard and Regular Army units.

Fifty-eight of the reserve officers will serve a year's tour of duty with the Regular Army. A list of this group, with the dates that their tours of duty begin and the post to which they have been assigned, includes:

French Ship Sunk, Britain Blamed

Vichy, France, July 26 (U.P.).—The French Admiralty tonight said that the French steamer Meknes was sunk by a German torpedo boat Wednesday night, with a loss of 383 men, because the British government failed to inform the French government of its sailing.

The Meknes, carrying French sailors back to France, was sunk Wednesday a short distance out of Southampton.

"The French Admiralty states that, contrary to the custom of previous repatriations of refugees, the British government did not inform the French government of the sailing of this ship, its route or port of destination," the statement issued here said.

Draft Exemption Urged for Firemen

Recommending that the District Fire Department be equipped to combat fires caused by enemy incendiary bombs, the Military Order of the Purple Heart, has adopted a resolution, it reported yesterday, asking that firemen be exempted from military service in time of invasion.

Copies of the resolution, it was said, were to be sent the President, District Commissioners, chairmen of Senate and House District Committees, the fire chief and Washington Board of Trade.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. M. Barry Hopper et al., plaintiffs, vs. Robert Simpson Hopper et al., defendants. Civil Action No. 7390. Order of publication. To Robert Simpson Hopper and to whom it may concern: You will take notice that your brother, M. Barry Hopper, and your sisters, Jeanette O. Thompson and Celina Orme, have filed in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia a complaint in Civil Action No. 7390, pursuant to an Act of Congress, approved April 8, 1935, alleging that you disappeared from the District of Columbia in the year 1914, that you were last heard from in April, 1928, since which time you have not been heard from, and by said complaint your said brother and sisters as your heirs at law and next of kin seek a decree for the appointment of a receiver to take possession of certain moneys alleged to be due you and the Liberty National Bank holds said money in the form of a Cashier's Check made payable to you as shown by its answer filed herein. Accordingly it is by the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia this 17th day of July, 1940, ordered that you, Robert Simpson Hopper, and all whom it may concern shall appear in said Court in this cause on or before AUGUST 30, 1940, to show cause if any you have, why a receiver of the aforesaid moneys should not be appointed to hold and dispose of the same as provided by said Act of Congress and prayed by said complaint, and that a copy hereof shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and in The Washington Post newspaper, otherwise the said Court will proceed with the disposition of said fund in the manner provided by said Act of Congress and as prayed by the complaint. By the Court: SOLITHA J. LAWS, Justice. A true copy. Test: CHARLES E. STEWART, Jack Knell, the CBS reporter who won the National Headliners Club Award in 1939 for his thrilling broadcast of the rescue of survivors from the sunken submarine Squalus, will bring WJSV listeners another exciting picture of nautical history Sunday night at 10:30. That will be his account of the maiden voyage of the S. S. America—the largest and fastest luxury liner ever built in the United States. The broadcast, arranged by William J. Slocum, jr., CBS's director of special events, is to be short-waved from the ship as it is off the New Jersey coast on its run to New York from Newport News. In addition to his description, Knell plans to interview Capt. Giles Stedman and many of the celebrities on board.

Hot weather note: When Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll have trouble hitting upon an idea for one of their "Amos 'n' Andy" episodes, they break the tension by asking each other the number of the script they're supposed to be writing. When they find out that it's something like 3,438—which it is right now—they can get started. "If we've written that many, we can at least get out another," they argue. And they always do.

Today's Radio Highlights

10:30, WRC—Johnny Mize, Billy Southworth and Ernie Koy, of the St. Louis Cardinals join Christy Walsh on the Sports School.

12:30 p. m., WJSV—The United States Army, through its mess sergeants, technicians, recruits, infantrymen, artillerymen and fliers, tells something of the Nation's defenders and defense on a new series.

2, WRC—Mrs. Frances Rogers, director of the women's division of the National Security League, speaks on "Women's Share in National Security."

3:30, WMAL—Clem McCarthy's husky throat cries "They're Off" in the Yonkers Handicap at Empire City.

4, WRC—Up comes a contest for amateur song writers. And you'll pretty well agree with Bandsman Tommy Dorsey that he ought to have something in this new wrinkle. If you want to write a song, listen in on this one.

4:45, WOL—And now, you racing fans, the running of the Futurity Stakes at Chicago's Arlington Park.

6, WJSV—"Should refugee children be barred from admittance to the United States?" If not, how can they be admitted. This timely question is the concern of authorities Eric H. Biddle, Mary W. Hillyer, Florence Birmingham and Paul S. Lawrence on the People's Platform.

6:30, WJSV—Those Bartlesville Barflies, in New York for defense of their title as champions of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, look in on the Gay Nineties.

8, WMAL—Massachusetts citizens, note: The new 50,000-watt radio transmitter of Boston's WBZ, located at Hull, goes on the air for the first time with Gov. Saltonstall on the network.

9:30, WRC—Col. Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy; Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold observe the fiftieth anniversary of the Sherman Antitrust Act in a special airing from this Capital.

ContractBridge

Here is a hand on which a crowd of masters at a recent tournament tried to make four hearts. Some did and some didn't; but head work is more important to the success of the contract than playing skill. See what you can do with it.

West leads a diamond, and as south your assignment is to take ten tricks at hearts. Here are the cards:

North
◇ K J
♣ K J 8 7 3
South
♠ K Q J 9 3
♡ K J 5 3
◇ A 9

Declarer has three sure tricks to lose and possibly four if east holds both clubs honors, or if he guesses the location wrong. Therefore, it is important, that south guess the club situation right; and unless the adversaries can be made to help, he will have to leave his fate pretty much to chance.

A surprise attack has merit, particularly when his two-suiter hand has been revealed by the bidding and the defenders will be looking for a singleton in the other suits.

Declarer's best plan is to win the diamond, in his hand, and lead a low club at once: West may be frightened into rushing up with the ace, or at the very least declarer may get an inkling as to the location of the honors. Certainly, if he first establishes the spade suit and pulls trumps, the defenders will have time to realize the situation and prepare for it.

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

Church Press Group Hears Talk by Editor

Many Religious Units Represented at New Association's Meeting

Representatives of 13 churches and other religious organizations in the Washington Metropolitan area turned out for the third meeting of the newly-organized Washington Church Press Association last Monday night at the Federation of Churches' Building.

Robert Tate Allan, religious editor of The Washington Post, principal speaker, stressed the growing publicity-consciousness of religious organizations, outlined his beliefs regarding church press association aims, and answered queries on religious publicity and the secular press.

William Egbert, publicity chairman of Mount Rainier Christian Church, elected temporary chairman, also spoke briefly. Mrs. Linda O'Hara, vice president of the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild, Egbert and Allan were named to a temporary "ways and means" committee which will plan a program for the next meeting—August 26—and present a tentative organizational plan to the association.

The organization, the purpose of which is to raise the standards of religious publicity in churches and other religious groups, hopes to sponsor forum discussions on church publicity problems and present speakers from religious and secular publications. A church periodical contest, with awards for the best-appearing church bulletins, papers and citywide religious publications, also may be held.

Mrs. Nettie B. Stringer, Sherwood Presbyterian Church; Henry L. Sweinhart, First Baptist Church; Charles R. Russell, Mount Rainier Methodist; the Rev. Fred L. Miller, Ralph Dudrow, jr., W. H. Dunn, George Targett and Gurney Thompson, Mount Rainier Christian Church; Miss Madeline Kane, Washington Catholic Evidence Guild, and D. Sterling Wheelright, director-organist of the Washington Chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

Also Harold J. Clay and Miss Ethel Morris, of the Brookland Baptist Church; Miss Marguarette Marlowe, of the Baptist Young People's Union Federation; John E. Cross, Douglas Memorial Methodist Church; George H. Kruelle, Trinity Lutheran Church, Mount Rainier; the Rev. Kenneth C. Buker, Cheverly Christian Church; Eric Daenecke, Fifteenth Street Christian Church, and Miss Mary J. Zitnick, St. Matthew's Cathedral and Washington Sodality Union.

Committee of New Women's Society Meets

Church of the Week

Hamline Methodists Act To Merge 3 Women's Groups

Units to Be Organized Into the 'Society Of Christian Service;' Study Group of 9 Chosen to Plan for Formal Consolidation

By Robert Tate Allan

Women's work at Hamline Methodist Church took a forward step last week, as initial plans for merging the three principal ladies' organizations were mapped.

In line with plans of the now united Methodist Church, the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary and Ladies' Aid societies are being called the Women's Society of Christian Service.

A study committee of nine women, three from each society, has been chosen to outline plans for a formal merger and will hold a charter meeting in September, when officers will be elected.

They include Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm and Mrs. Frank Welch, president and treasurer, respectively, of the Ladies' Aid Society; Mrs. H. W. Burgan and Mrs. William L. Evans, president and treasurer, respectively, of the Foreign Missionary Society, and Mrs. S. Louis Lieb and Mrs. William Olson, president and treasurer, respectively, of the Home Missionary Society, and the following committeewomen at large:

Mrs. Harry C. James, Ladies' Aid Society; Mrs. Harry Havens, Foreign Missionary Society, and Mrs. Thomas F. Law, Home Missionary Society.

Many Activities

The new society, whose annual budget is expected to exceed $5,000, will conduct all missionary enterprises, social service work, including Red Cross, social welfare, refugee and other projects not directly connected with the denominations, and also the regular local Methodist Church work.

Another plan emphasized at Hamline, and which is expected to be fully organized during the fall and winter, is the younger adult departmental activities, for the 24-to-40-year-old group. L. L. Fansher, church school superintendent, is helping promote the movement.

Also growing in interest at Hamline are the Bible class programs for adults and young people. All affiliated with the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association, they include the following:

The Harriet T. Lipp Class of Women, of which Mrs. Thomas F. Law is teacher and Mrs. E. H. Orr president; the Mizpah Women's Class, of which Miss Ada Williams is teacher and Miss Nellie Hawks is president, and the Young Married Couples' Class, with Dr. E. H. Orr as teacher.

Men's Activities

Bulwark of the men's activities of the church are the Men's Brotherhood, of which G. R. Wilhelm is president, and the Men's Bible Class, whose president is Frank L. Smith, and the teacher Prof. Charles H. Omo, assisted by C. O. Reynolds. The two groups promote Bible study, educational programs, and Christian fellowship.

Active in those organizations are Page McK. Etchison, religious work secretary of the Central Y. M. C. A. and president of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association, and William R. Schmucker, treasurer and song leader of the latter group.

Hamline Church is proud of its four Scout troops, including the Boy Scouts under James Murray; the Girl Scouts supervised by Mrs. Earl Emerson and Mrs. I. R. Detherage, and Sea Scouts. A cub pack is being formed. Harry A. Havens is chairman of the Scout committee.

Miss Annabelle Spangle, among Washington's most active youth leaders, has been in charge of the religious educational program of the church for three years.

Diamond Jubilee Soon

Hamline Church, which in September will celebrate its diamond jubilee, has had many prominent lay and clerical leaders on its rolls.

Dr. Chesten Smith, noted figure of Methodism, once served its pulpit, as did Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, until recently chancellor of American University. Dr. Lucius Clark, first chencellor of that institution and original executive secreetary of the Washington Federation of Churches, also was pastor. Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington ball club, and Mrs. Griffith attend services there.

Also officially related to Hamline is Dr. A. Earl Kernahan, author of the nationally known Kernahan Evangelistic Visitation Campaigns.

Organized July 2, 1865, Hamline was first known as the Ninth Street Methodist Episcopal Church; later as the Golden Rule Sanctuary, and then the Hamline Methodist Episcopal, in honor of Bishop Leonidas Lent Hamline.

The first frame church was dedicated on July 1, 1866, at Ninth and P streets northwest, and a brick edifice on November 23, 1873.

During the summer of 1909 meetings were held in a tent at the corner of Fourteenth and Emerson streets northwest, culminating in the organization of the Iowa Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Merged in 1924

Union of Iowa Avenue and Hamline congregations took place in 1924. Site of the present church at Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest was purchased in 1924, ground broken by the late President Calvin Coolidge, and the building dedicated on January 3, 1926, during the pastorate of Dr. J. T. Herson. The approximate cost was $325,000.

A reduction of $50,000 in the church's outstanding debt and a church membership increase of 600 have been among the achievements of Dr. Harry W. Burgan since becoming pastor a decade ago.

One of the foremost clerics of the Baltimore Conference, he has been a member of five General Conferences, is recording secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, secretary of the board of trustees of the American University member of the board of trustees of Sibley Hospital, Swartzell Methodist Home, Strawbridge Home, and the Methodist Union. He is Protestant vice chairman of the committee on religious life in the Nation's Capital and member of the Knights of the Round Taole organization.

"JERUSALEM, THE GOLDEN"
BERNARD OF CLUNY

Jerusalem, the golden:
With milk and honey blest;
Beneath thy contemplation
Sink heart and voice oppreat.
I know not, O I know not
What joys await us there.
What radiancy of glory,

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS

All that a devout imagination can picture of heavenly beauty—all that great faith can reconstruct from the Revelation of its glorious happiness—is found in this great hymn of Bernard of Cluny. Little of the original exuberance is lost in this translation of Dr. John Mason Neale.
